The Longest Sermon
Two Ladies in Knickers
A Useful Decoration
Sir George Sees Goblins

By Arthur Brisbane

THE REV. G. Z. BROWN, of the Mt. Zion Baptist Church, Washington, D. C., declares himself holder of "the world's record for long sermons." He preached for 12 hours and 10 minutes, on prohibition, fast living, "the evil in dancing," famine, blight, drouth and pestilence. And in the long sermon he paused only to eat four lamb chops, some chicken and a glass of milk. The quality of his sermon is proved by the fact that attendance and collections were excellent.

Dr. Brown's talk was surpassed by an Indian Chief, Red Jacket, whose bronze monument stands in Buffalo's fine park. His Indian name, Sa-go-ye-wat-ha, means "He keeps them awake." Or at least so the old pioneers of Batavia, N. Y., used to say.

He talked all night, and nearly all day, to the Indians of his tribe, persuading them not to adopt the British suggestion, and help along by massacring the American whites of Batavia.

Bishop Byrne, of the Galveston Catholic diocese, says: "The season of silliness is on," and, wisely, forbids girls "wearing knickers, sailor suits or pajamas in church." Church is not the place for pajamas.

On the other hand, in the right place, knickers for women are a blessing. Every morning, two ladies, one middle aged, the other young, dust out the cars of the New Jersey Central Railroad, in the main terminal. Both wear knickerbockers, the older lady wears sensible shoes, with flat heels; the young lady has fancy shoes, with high heels.

Their knickerbockers, better than old-fashioned skirts, do not collect germs and dust, and they are modest. Everything in its place.

Napoleon invented the Legion of Honor, saying that with a piece of red ribbon he could change a radical to a good imperialist.

That Legion of Honor has delighted many Americans, changing several into good imitation Frenchmen. All they get is a ribbon and a doctor's title, sometimes with their names incorrectly spelled.

Russia, with the Czar or Lenin, has a different idea. The order, usually given to workers, entitles them to ride free on the railroads, all owned by the government, of course, and entitles them to a reduction in taxes.

Sir George Paish, formerly economic adviser to the British government, sees all sorts of trouble ahead, including, perhaps, "revolution on a world scale."

That has been feared at intervals for centuries. But it does not happen. "This is no mere trade depression," says Sir George. "It is a catastrophe of the first moment."

All the goblins that Sir George sees may be real, and many more. However, land hasn't disappeared, our five billion dollars in gold are still piled up in the Treasury, we have too much of the great essentials, coal, steel, oil, wheat, money, labor. If we can't take care of this "catastrophe," we deserve whatever may happen.

Every American will regret the apparently unprovoked killing of two young Mexicans in Oklahoma. The young men had come to the United States to study, were good students, one had distinguished himself in a School of Mines. They were on their way back to Mexico by automobile, when a deputy sheriff, for reasons not clear, decided that they were "desperados," held them up, and shot them dead. A third young man with them was uninjured.

The young Mexicans are alleged to have carried weapons, which is not an offense punishable by death in Oklahoma. Considering the fact what overtook them they can hardly be blamed for going armed.

The government of the United States should, and the governor of Oklahoma doubtless will, take the shooting of these Mexican students as seriously as either would take the shooting of two Americans in Mexico under similar conditions.

"Time at length makes all things even," sometimes. You remember the cruel cages, built for Louis XI of France, by an ingenious bishop. The cages were built so that a man locked inside could not sit up, or lie down. Louis called the inmates of the cages his "little birds," and the first of the little birds, quite appropriately, was the bishop who invented the cages to please the king.

PLAYBOY JURY TRAILERS HUNTED

Judge Walsh Orders Arrest of Two; Death Clothing Introduced as Evidence

PICTURES ON PAGES 2 AND 3

By WIN BROOKS
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Newport, R. I., June 10—A charge by Judge Charles A. Walsh that two men were suspected of attempting to tamper with the jury, and grim exhibits of the dead Vera Russell's tragedy clothing and the photographs in death kept Hathaway trial spectators tense today.

Judge Walsh, addressing Deputy Sheriff Frank P. King, declared the court had received information that two men were continually following the jury and attempting to reach the deputy to obtain information about jurors.

ARREST IS ORDERED

The judge ordered that the two men be arrested on sight and brought immediately before him.

Pathetic in their very limpness, the garments worn by Verna Russell on the night Elliott R. Hathaway, the defendant, is alleged to have strangled her in Tiverton, were held up, one after the other, and dangled before the drooping gaze of the accused slayer.

There was a black, fur-collared coat, a black and red-flowered dress, black pumps, black gloves, undergarments—and then a string of pearl beads.

As the excited eyes of the spectators fixed on the clothing the eyes of Hathaway, seated beside his counsel, dropped their gaze on the counsel table, as they had previously dropped when an enlarged photograph of the murdered nurse's body was exhibited.

DEATH NECKLACE

QUESTIONED IN GIRL'S TRAGIC DEATH

Francis Peabody Hamlin, prominent Boston society man, shown at police headquarters where he told police of "whoopee parties" on a liner in New York at which Starr Wyman Faithfull was present a week before her body was found on Long Beach, L. I. Officials said the girl had been murdered by being forcibly held under the water. Hamlin gave the authorities various "leads" to aid in the search for her slayers. (Staff photo.)

'FORCIBLY DROWNED' OFFICIAL ASSERTS

The revelation was made, according to Dist. Atty. Elvin A. Edwards of Nassau County, New York, during questioning at Boston police headquarters of Francis Peabody Hamlin, Boston society man and an official of the Cunard Line.

Investigators also seek to question another prominent Boston man, a politician who formerly held high public office, in connection with his financial dealings with Starr Faithfull and her family. Hamlin, during the headquarters questioning, today was asked if he knew this prominent figure.

Hamlin, son of B. Nason Hamlin of Dedham, a State st. broker, and grandson of Gen. Francis W. Peabody, State st. and Dedham lawyer, told of seeing her at a boat party a week before finding of her scantily clad body on the sands at lonely Long Beach, L. I.

OTHERS FACE GRILL

"The pretty girl, figure at many such gay ship parties in New York on the eve of sailings, was murdered by being held forcibly under water, it was charged by Dist.-Atty. Edwards, and he said that free leads given him by Hamlin 'many other Bostonians with noted names may be questioned.

These Bostonians, staid business and professional men while on their daily rounds in Boston, frequently have enjoyed the pre-sailing gayeties in New York, it was indicated by the Nassau prosecutor, and some of them, it is said, were present on the beautiful Starr's "last night."

Hamlin, who went voluntarily to police headquarters at the request of Police Inspector Frank Haggerty and Mark Morrison, gave a detailed account of the boat party to Dist.-Atty. Edwards, Commissioner Hultman, Supt. Crowley, Deputy

LOST HEIRESS FOUND IN LOFT

Clad in sou'wester and oilskins and looking for a job, Miss Catherine Bill, missing daughter of Alexander H. Bill, Boston coffee merchant, was found today in the loft of the Provincetown Cold Storage Co. plant in Provincetown.

The Bill girl disappeared Saturday in Orleans after she eluded a nurse assigned to her while she was recovering her health in the family summer cottage.

John Davis, foreman of the plant, saw the missing girl today as she stuck out the window of the plant.

Thinking it was a new man he hired for this morning and completely fooled by the girl's garb, he approached to give the "employe" instructions.

He said afterwards that he "could have been knocked over by a feather" when a feminine voice replied.

She told Davis she wanted her pay and said she had hired herself there and wanted to be put on permanently."

Two States Rocked by Meteor

Toledo, Ohio, June 10 (AP)—Heavy earth shocks caused by the falling of a large meteor or by the blast of some powerful explosive shook Northwestern Ohio and Eastern Indiana early today.

Thousands of persons were awakened by the shock and windows were broken in houses at a considerable distance from the place where either a meteor struck the earth or where an explosion occurred.

The center of the shocks was at a large hole ten feet in diameter and five feet deep, on a farm, near Malinta.

The heaviest damage was within a 200 foot radius of the hol. In this circle, four telephone poles were broken and small trees knocked over. A field of oats was crushed. There was no evidence of hea. or fire.

GUEST BEATEN UP, SAYS WIFE

Lowell, June 10—Mrs. Ray F. Webster, who is trying to have a conservator appointed for her husband on the ground of incompetency to conduct his chain of five drug stores, today admitted under cross-examination in Probate Court her husband beat up a Mr. Gilooley, a business friend, at the Webster home and then ordered the visitor out of the house.

"My husband beat up Mr. Gilooley without reason," Mrs. Webster explained. "Mr. Gilooley was a business friend of my husband and had dinner at our home that evening. My husband went upstairs and went to bed. Mr. Gilooley remained downstairs talking to me. Later in the evening my husband came downstairs and gave Mr. Gilooley a beating and ordered him from our home.

Mrs. Webster admitted that during the summer of 1929 she took $150 from the cash register of one of her husband's stores, leaving a note that she had taken it, and spent the money on a trip to New York.

'PLAYBOY'S' GAZE DROPS AT PICTURE OF MURDERED NURSE

ernment claims Hathaway strangled the girl, two maps of the scene of the murder and two empty bottles of the type that sometimes hold beer, were also introduced.

Three witnesses were called during the morning session. They were Clarence P. Barker, state civil engineer, who prepared the maps; Walter W. Coolidge, Fall River photographer and Henry B. Applin, of the Rhode Island identification bureau.

Coolidge and Applin made the photographs. Applin introduced the bottles, one of green glass and one of plain glass, minus fingerprints. These bottles, it was indicated, were found near the body.

The pictures went into the evidence as government exhibits soon after Atty-Gen. Benjamin M. McLyman in his outline of the government's case to the jurors had stated:

"We feel certain that when you have heard the story you will return a verdict against this defendant as charged in this indictment."

MOTHER PRESENT

The atto ney-general's opening required only 30 minutes and included few of the details not previously known, few of the details of evidence on which the State hopes to imprison Hathaway for life.

No mention of motive for the crime was made. Two bottles of gin, Hathaway's rendezvous with the Truesdale Hospital student nurse and his departure from the scene of the crime were stated.

McLyman did not say where Verna mother died. Nor did he state the alleged motive for her slaying.

In his blue suit and blue tie, Hathaway came to court to hear the first evidence against him. His mother and his twin brother Alden, absent yesterday, were again on hand. As was his father, Representative Louis E. Hathaway of Fall River, and his brother, Dr. Louis Hathaway.

A good-sized crowd waited outside the court building for an opportunity to get seats, that were soon filled as the doors were opened to the public.

A fair proportion of about 35 spectators, for whom room was found were young girls. No spectators left their seats at the recesse.

District Attorney William C. Crossley of Fall River, who investigated the case from the angle that the murder might have been committed over the Massachusetts line a mile and three quarters from the scene in a state where the penalty for first degree murder is death, vas in the courtroom today.

Among others in the court house was Leah Johnson, Verna Russell's nurse chum at the hospital, who has said she was invited by Verna to go on the auto ride that ended in tragedy.

Carl H. Russell, Portsmouth lumber yard superintendent and father of the slain girl, was again present.

Asst. Atty-Gen. Sigmund W. Fischer, absent yesterday because of illness was early on hand.

There were two witnesses at the first sitting today, Clarence P. Barker, young civil engineer of the state department of Public Roads and Walter W. Coolidge, Fall River photographer.

Through Barker were introduced three plaque scale survey maps of the Tiverton section where Miss Russell met death.

Coolidge made the photograph of her body which, after it had been passed in front of Hathaway and counsel, George Hurley and John Nolan, was entered as an exhibit and shown to the jury.

A feature of McLyman's opening was the indication that Boston police officers would appear as witnesses in connection with Hathaway's alleged flight to Boston after the crime.

TO COURT IN DRIZZLE

There was a drizzle of rain when Hathaway came to court this morning. For the first time since his comings and goings in custody after arrest he did not cover his face with his hat.

For the first time not a single camera shuttle clicked. He had posed yesterday.

He went at once to court. Chief Gregory, of Newport police, was among the spectators.

The jury was polled, Judge Charles A. Walsh summoned Sergt. Joseph Marceau of the state police and instructed him to allow in the court as many of the public for whom seats could be found—and no more. Two who could not find seats after entering the court room were ejected.

STATE'S CHARGES

Attorney General Lyman in opening the government's case said:

"The state will present this evidence for your consideration in connection with the indictment charging Elliott R. Hathaway with murder. We will show that Miss Russell was born on the West Coast and came to live in this state a few years ago. She attended Rogers High School in Newport and after graduating entered the Truesdale Hospital for training as a student nurse. We will show you that in the middle of March this year the defendant Hathaway visited Truesdale Hospital, where he had friends among the employes.

"We will show through witnesses that he requested to be introduced to Miss Russell. We will show that a few days before her death Hathaway telephoned her at the nurses' home, and we will show what arrangements were made for meeting her. We will show that the two young people made an appointment for Monday evening, March 23, that he came to the nurses' home about 7:45 on that night; that she was waiting for him in the living room, and that they left together. We will show they went to a drug store in New Boston on Fall River; that Hathaway parked his car outside; and that they were observed in the machine by eight or nine people.

BOUGHT SOME GIN

"We will show that Hathaway entered the drugstore, bought a bottle of ginger ale, received change, went to a phone booth, made a call to a tenant, a bootlegger. We will show that this tenant sold the defendant a bottle of gin known to the trade as 'Fifth.' The bottle was marked 'Booth's High Dry Gin.' We will show that he left the store, passed the time of day with several persons loitering outside, stepped into his car and drove away. We will show that later in the evening he went to the home of Galvin and told a certain story of his experiences.

"We will show that he came to the Galvin home late in the evening of March 23 and at about an hour the defendant prevailed upon Galvin to go out with him, ostensibly to put up his car."

SECOND BOTTLE

"We will show that after leaving the house new arrangements were made, that a second call to Joseph Mayo was made and another bottle of gin purchased. The defendant's car was pointed in the direction of Stafford rd., Tiverton, where you gentlemen were taken yesterday. We will show that the Hathaway car was driven through that it entered the Winward lane and that the defendant showed Galvin the body.

"We will relate the circumstances of the return trip, the stop on the road and finally the drive home to Galvin's home. We will show the defendant left the Galvin home at 1:20 a. m. on March 24, that he drove south over the Mt. Hope bridge, through northern Rhode Island into Massachusetts and Boston . . . that on March 24 in the evening he registered as Mr. Sullivan at the Dixie Hotel in New York, giving his address as 32 Moore st., Boston.

"We will show you the Moore st. address and also that the Hathaway car was found on the street of Boston; that he returned after the finding of the car to Massachusetts; that in no way during that it was notified that he was in North Attleboro.

"We will show that I went there, brought him to my office in Providence, and there placed him under arrest. I am now invited to turn to you Mr. Foreman and gentlemen of the jury, will hear the evidence and from that evidence will find the defendant guilty as the indictment charges."

FIRST WITNESS

The first witness called was Clarence D. Barker, a civil engineer in the R. I. Dept. of Public Roads. He testified that on March 31, he drew a map of Winward lane and the surrounding territory; that in my office showing in greater detail the lane itself.

After these maps were marked as exhibits, they were given to the jury.

Judge Walsh left the bench to stand in front of the jury box while markings on the maps were explained by the witness. Special attention was called by the attorney-general to the stake marking the spot where the body was found and also the spots where the hat and shoes of the slain girl were found. The witness, in reply to a question by McLyman, stated that the Winward lane was a mile and three-quarters from the Massachusetts line.

PHOTOGRAPH SHOWN

Next witness was Walter W. Coolidge, a Fall River newspaper photographer. He was asked by McLyman to relate what he saw and did in the lane on the morning of March 24. Mr. Coolidge said:

"I arrived there about 8 o'clock in the morning. Dr. Bryany, the medical examiner, two state troopers and some other persons were there. I wanted to get some pictures before they removed the body."— Jacobs objected, objection sustained.

A moment later there was another objection by Jacobs, which other objection by Jacobs, which the court overruled. Attorney Hurley arose from the defense counsel table and held a whispered conference with Jacobs which lasted several minutes. Coolidge continued:

"The state troopers told me not to come near, that they were examining the ground for footprints. I walked away around and made a picture of the body lying there."

McLyman produced a photograph, which was identified by the witness and then brought to the defense counsel table. As the defense counsel passed the picture back and forth before the gaze of Hathaway, the defendant averted his eyes. The photograph was marked for exhibit and then passed to the jury for examination.

Recess was then called.

JURY TRAILED

Judge Walsh, in opening of the afternoon session of the Hathaway trial, addressed Sheriff King, who was standing by the jury box, as follows:

"Mr. Sheriff, I have received information that two men are following the jury about continually, watching every move they make and are trying to get in touch with you and obtain information about the jury. I now order you to arrest any such persons on sight and bring them before me immediately."

Atty. Hurley of the defense counsel arose and said:

"Your Honor, I would like to have it understood that any attempts to communicate with the jury are not made by anyone connected with the defence."

The court replied:

"It does."

He testified in response to questions that he was medical examiner of Tiverton and that on March 23 he was called on the telephone by the state police and informed that a body had been found in Winward lane off Stafford road. He testified that he received this call about 7 a. m. and that he arrived at the scene at 7:45. He testified that there were several members of the state police and others there at the time.

He said he found in the lane on his arrival the body of a woman, lying on the south side of the lane about 50 to 75 feet from the Stafford rd. He testified that he saw a photographer there and that he requested him to take several photographs for him. Atty.-Gen. McLyman then showed the doctor a photograph, which was previously introduced, and the doctor testified that that was a photograph made in his presence, of the body, as he found it.

Q—Doctor, was the body lying in the position as shown in the photograph? A—It was.

DESCRIBES BODY

Q—Doctor, will you describe the body as you found it? The doctor then proceeded to describe how he found the body lying on the right-hand side of the lane as you enter the lane from Stafford road with the feet nearest to the street, the head toward the house. He described the rocks on the side of the road and then said that the clothing was above the waist, that the girl's coat was pulled up above her chest, the dress was crumpled, her right arm was lying across her chest, the left arm extended, as was the head, extended, and the legs was spread apart in this manner—the doctor demonstrated with his own body the position of the legs. The legs were about 20 inches apart, from heel to heel.

Q—Doctor, will you describe the clothing she was wearing? A—She had on a pair of pink rayon bloomers held up by an elastic band, a pair of light stockings, a black shoe with a fur collar, a black slipper with a buckle was on one foot. The other foot had no slipper on it, her black hair and the other slipper were lying to one side.

Q—You examined the body? A—I did, and pronounced her dead.

Q—Doctor, while you were there, certain measurements were made? were they not? A—Yes, they were made by the state police.

Q—Did anyone touch the body? A—Yes, after the measurements had been made.

TELLS OF AUTOPSY

Q—What did they do? A—I exposed the face a little more.

Q—Then did you do that, doctor? A—I had to push back the fur collar on the coat.

Continuing the answer, the doctor said:

"This picture represents how the body looked after I moved the fur coat collar and arm.

Q—And then you communicated with the undertaker at Newport? A—Yes, and I told him to remove the body.

Q. What time did you perform the autopsy? A. about 3 p. m.

Q. Dr. Peaslee was the medical witness, which was required by law? A. Yes.

Q. From the examination you made of the body, how long would you say she had been dead? A. From the condition, I should judge eight to 12 hours.

Q—Doctor, did you personally attend the removal of the clothing? A—Yes.

At this point McLyman produced a box and a bundle. He opened the box and produced a black cloth coat with fur collar and trimmings.

DRESS IDENTIFIED

Q—Have you seen this coat before? A—Yes, sir. The doctor identified the coat as the one he removed from the body of Miss Russell. McLyman offered it in evidence, and it was marked as an exhibit. The box was then opened and from it a dress was brought forth. The doctor identified it, and McLyman offered it.

Added to the long list of exhibits came the clothing of the slain nurse —her black coat, red and yellow flower-figured dress, black suede shoes, black felt hat, gun metal stockings, string of pearls.

The exhibit pile grew, but to it was not added the bloomers worn by the nurse when her body was found. These have disappeared and the manner of their disappearance was not at once explained.

HAIRS EVIDENCE

To the exhibits were added four envelopes. One was marked, "A hair," another, "hair from stocking." The third, "hair from shoe, apparently from raccoon coat." The fourth, "three hairs."

The envelopes were inspected by the defense. So were the hairs. They were ordered sealed by the court, not to be opened except by the clerk in the presence of counsel for both sides.

In the hairs may depend Hathaway's future.

A typewritten letter and a slip of paper were identified as having been found on the body of Miss Russell, and went in as exhibit.

Q—Those are the clothes which we have just put in as exhibits, which were removed by you from the body of Verna Russell? A—Yes.

Q—Doctor, were there any other articles of clothing worn by Miss Russell? A—Yes.

Q—What were they? A—A pair of pink silk bloomers.

Q—You made an examination of the bloomers for stains? A—Yes.

Q—Where was that examination made? Aft was made at the autopsy table. But the light was unsatisfactory, and Mr. Hurley said:

"I you step this way, to a room adjoining this autopsy room, you will get better light." We went into this room and over to a window and examined the bloomers. The bloomers were intact. Dr. Peaslee also examined them with me.

Q—Were there any other stains on the garment? A—No, none of any kind. Dr. Peaslee also examined them with me. We brought the bloomers back to the autopsy room and, after wrapping them up in a piece of blue paper, laid them down by the wall about four feet from the table and proceeded with the autopsy. Later Mr. Hambley said: "I have a box to place the clothing in." I said: "Yes, and give it to the state police."

Q—What became of the bloomers? A—I know nothing of them.

Q—Would they, in your opinion, doctor, add anything to the case? Objection by Hurley.

Q—Did you find anything else other than you have told us? A—No, nothing else.

PHOTOS RECALL HAPPIER DAYS TO 'PLAYBOY'

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Newport, R. I., June 10—Gruesome memories of Verna Russell were brought back to her alleged slayer today.

He didn't cringe. He didn't turn away. He just wasn't concerned at first.

Not until Atty.-Gen. Benjamin McLyman handed him a batch of photographs to pass to his counsel did "Pinky" perk up interest.

Then he began to carefully scrutinize the pictured evidence that Judge Walsh and jury were asked to consider in the state's murder charge against him.

BROTHER VIEWS PHOTOS

He leaned over his counsel's shoulder and talked with him about the photograph.

Moved to the end of the defense table, he leaned forward in his seat and noted the jury's scrutiny of the photographs.

Verna's father remained firm through it all. The stolid facial expression that had been his since the beginning of the trial didn't leave him today as harrowing revival of his dead daughter stalked before him.

For a moment, Mrs. Louis E. Hathaway, the boys mother, turned away. But preservation of the photographs consumed practically all the morning and the unfortunate mother could do nothing but witness the spectacle.

'PINKY' MISSES NOTHING

As picture after picture of the death scene with the lifeless body of the girl lying in the ditch were offered in evidence, "Pinky" displayed very little interest.

He didn't miss anything, but he just wasn't terribly concerned about it all.

Not until the dental photograph, the enlargement of the girls mouth showing the teeth was presented, did he take such an interest.

It was almost a sudden display of interest as he leaned forward, said something to Atty. Nolan and then settled back for a closer scrutiny of the photograph.

From then the playboy was concerned first during proceedings. He looked as did his counsel. He was curious with only the curiosity of a spectator, apparently.

$20,000 Fund Given Harvard University

Announcement was made today of the presentation to Harvard University of a $20,000 fund to be used for publication of original research monographs, distinguished contributions to scholarship in the field of history.

The fund will bear the name of Robert Louis Stevenson, a graduate of the class of 1927, who died in December in New York.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Financial Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

Dr. Thompson Asks for Economic Disarmament

Durham, N. C., June 10 (AP)—Dr. Huston Thompson, former chairman of the United States Trade Commission, today told the graduating class of Duke University that 'economic disarmament' was needed to "bring harmony out of present chaotic conditions."

"I propose," he said, "that we set up a world treaty whereby representatives shall be selected through the League of Nations. Its can function in an independent way upon the world's major economic problems."

Mrs. Jimmy Walker Returns From South

New York, June 10—Whether Mrs. James J. Walker, wife of Mayor Walker, was homesick or merely decided Florida was a little too warm is not known, but she is back home, it was learned today.

She made her unexpected return last Friday. It became known today. Mrs. Walker had been in Florida since last winter with relatives.

Lady Astor Stars In Golf Tournament

London, June 10—Lady Nancy Astor, Virginia-born member of the House of Commons, is proving herself efficient in the game of golf. She is one of the last eight out of 94 who started in a tournament to settle who is the best golfer in Parliament.

KING 45 YEARS HEAD OF BANK

In spite of his age, King is still active in affairs of the bank, but conducts much of his work at home with a secretary.

He plans to attend a meeting of the directors tomorrow and a baseball game in Merrymount Park, tomorrow.

JURORS WHO HOLD FATE OF "PLAYBOY" HATHAWAY

wits. The insane asylum will take care of him hereafter.

He is the inventor of "the ride," the ingenious plan of getting an enemy, by force or strategy, into an automobile, driving him to a secluded spot, shooting him in the back of the head from the rear seat and throwing out his body.

Dr. Hooton, author of "Up from the Apes," teaches anthropology at Harvard and says there is no absolute "race purity." Races are all mixed and mixed races are not necessarily inferior.

That is true if the mixtures are good mixtures, not true if the mixtures are bad. Good mixtures produced the best results, as witness Greece, Rome, France, England and our country, each in its turn the most successful, powerful nation on earth.

Japan is the most mixed of the Asiatic countries, and most successful.

Sweden complains that Russia takes her timber trade, and Sweden therefore provide saws to Russian timber plants. Similarly this and other countries supply Russia with machinery of all kinds, from oil digging to automobile making machinery, and they teach the Russians how to use the machines.

It could not be otherwise, for if one did not sell the other would. The way to meet competition is with efficiency, not with weeping.

POLICE GUARD HIM IN COURT FROM 'RING'

Harold B. Clarke, alleged member of a nation-wide ring, accused of the theft of $500,000 worth of rare books, was held in $5000 bail in Clinton court today.

The specific charge against him was the larceny of volumes valued at $1000 from the Lancaster Public Library.

Haggard and disheveled from a night in a cell, Clarke was arraigned before Judge George O'Toole and asked a week's continuance to obtain an attorney. The judge delayed the hearing until Saturday after Clarke said a Boston organization had retained John P. Feeney, prominent Boston criminal lawyer, to defend him.

SENT TO JAIL.

Pending the hearing the accused man was remanded to Worcester jail in default of bail.

Clarke was surrounded in court by a police detail, furnished at his request by Chief of Police Peter Sonia. Clarke said he feared attempts on his life for "exposing the book racket."

Mrs. Winifred Clarke, his pretty red-haired bride of a year, was to visit him at the jail this afternoon.

As Clarke faced the court, Boston police acting on a tip uncovered a cache of 30 first editions which, they say, Clarke checked at the South Station shortly before his arrest.

Among them were volumes bearing the bookplates of Memorial Hall Library, Andover; Peabody Institute, Salem; the Salem Athenaeum, the Lawrence Public Library, the Nahant Public Library and Phillips-Andover Academy.

SAYS HE IS SLEUTH

Among the famous collection of books they have raided, police say, is the Widener Memorial Library at Harvard, which recently lost $40,000 worth of rare volumes.

Clarke maintains, however, that he is acting as an investigator against the ring.

He revealed to investigators the names of two men, who, he said, had made a fortune in this racket. One of the men, the originator of the scheme, has fled the country with over $3,500,000, his profits from the thefts. The other is now in virtual charge of the operations of the book theft ring, according to Clarke.

Police and other investigators, however, state they are not satisfied with Clarke's story. They are inclined to believe that the descriptions of the ringleaders are purely imaginative and that these men are really Clarke himself, who used the names as aliases at different times.

GRILLED IN CELL

Louis Berkowitz, police inspector, attached to the New York public library, grilled Clarke for several hours in his cell at Lancaster jail. He left for New York late last night stating he had gained much valuable information and that he expected to make at least 10 arrests in New York in connection with book thefts before the end of the week.

Other New England towns and cities have gotten in touch with Lancaster authorities and asked Clarke be held for them in case he

WHITES GIVEN NEGROES' JOBS

Washington, June 10 (AP)—A greater proportionate amount of unemployment among Negroes than among whites, with a tendency in some localities to substitute white for Negro workers was noted today in the report of a survey conducted by the National Urban League.

Indications of a change in occupational distribution of the two races were seen by the organization investigators. The report said white men and women were taking over many forms of work heretofore belonging to the Negro with the net result "that there is a growing restlessness among Negroes who are moving from place to place in search of jobs." No discrimination against the Negro was found in the matter of relief.

The report said that in one city, unnamed, the statement was made that 800 Negro janitors had been displaced by white men and that in another city hundreds of Negro domestic workers had been replaced by whites.

Passage of Cape Cod Pier Bill Forecast

More than the necessary two-thirds vote was polled today in both branches of the Legislature for the bill under which a bond issue of $250,000 is appropriated for a pier on Cape Cod Canal.

Governor Ely is expected to sign the bill as soon as it reaches his desk.

Vatican Drops Connections With Action Society

While a cold rain beat down upon him, Elliott R. Hathaway, cloaked in a blanket, saw attorneys point out the spot where Verna Russell, his girl friend, was found dead on the morning of March 24. The jurors, who are to decide his fate on a charge of murder, were taken to the scene in a private bus. Handcuffed to a deputy sheriff, Hathaway listened to every word.

POPE REQUESTS ARCHBISHOP TO WITHDRAW

Prelate Pizzardo Is Practically Ordered to Quit Board of Directors

Vatican City, June 30 (AP)—Withdrawal of the Vatican from direct connection with the Catholic Action Society was indicated today by resignation of Archbishop Giuseppe Pizzardo, papal undersecretary of state, from the organization's board of directors.

He acted on a request, which was virtually an Order from Pope Pius.

The archbishop, one of the best known prelates below the rank of cardinal in Rome, is secretary of the congregation of extraordinary ecclesiastical affairs and many believe eventually he will be made a cardinal.

The Fascist newspaper Lavoro Fascista, which recently printed an account of what it described as a secret meeting of the Catholic Action, mentioned the archbishop as one of those who attended that meeting and quoted him as voicing anti-Fascist sentiments.

NO VATICAN CONTROL.

The pontiff's previous order bringing the Catholic Action under the direct jurisdiction of the diocesan bishops, coupled with today's order, removes that organization completely from direct administrative control by the Vatican.

Papal interdiction has been visited upon Catholic congregations in two towns of Southern Italy, where public religious processions were held in violation of the Pope's explicit order forbidding them.

All services in the churches of Campo Basso and Capanzaro have been suspended and the churches have been ordered closed.

WOMEN JOIN FASCISTS

Last week the Pontiff forbade the customary outdoor religious processions of Corpus Christi day, instructing that throughout Italy the services should be conducted inside the churches.

A few days ago a group of Catholic women at Campo Basso voted a resolution of protest against the Catholic Action organization which the Italian government accused of participating in politics, and voted as a body to go over to Fascist organizations for women.

The congregations in the two towns held their Corpus Christi processions in public in direct disobedience to the papal order. The priests, it was explained, took no part in the ceremonies.

JOYCE NEPHEWS PALLBEARERS

Borne by ten nephews as pallbearers, Martin T. Joyce, labor leader, was laid to rest today in St. Joseph's Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Joyce died early Monday morning in his home, 10 Albion rd., Wollaston.

His burial followed a high mass of requiem in Church of the Sacred Heart, Norfolk Downs, Quincy, attended by many prominent in labor circles and representatives of civic and fraternal organizations.

Acting Mayor Joseph McGrath of Boston, Joseph Park of the State Industrial Accident Board and John Mead, commissioner of labor, were among those who attended.

The mass was celebrated by Rev. John J. Casey, pastor, assisted by Rev. Francis Mulrey, deacon; Rev. Francis Murphy, sub-deacon, and Rev. Joseph Smith of Dedham.

The nephew pallbearers were Daniel, Timothy and John Driscoll, Charles and Joseph Riley, Martin W., Albert, Leo, Paul and Anthony Joyce.

Christ to Come 'Any Day Now,' Wife of Littleton Says

Manhasset, N.Y., June 9 (AP)—Clad in robes such as were worn in ancient Palestine, Mrs. Martin W. Littleton looked over her costly collection of Biblical literature and a garden typifying a bit of the Holy Land today and predicted the second coming of Jesus Christ "any day now."

She sees in the present "period of tribulation" she said, a preparation for His return to earth. "He may come today or tomorrow, but the time is not long. Then will begin the millenium, which will last a thousand years."

Mrs. Littleton, wife of one of New York's prominent criminal lawyers, opened her library of Biblical literature and the garden today.

N. P. M. Jacobs Dead

Portsmouth, N. H., June 10 (AP)—Neminh P. M. Jacobs, 68, widely known New England hotel man and a former member of the Maine Legislature, died here today.

BIG TREE FALLS NEAR PUPILS

Excitement was caused today among 2000 Medford high school pupils when half of a large elm tree in front of the school in Forest st. crashed, carrying several high voltage electric wires to the ground. Some of the older pupils warned the younger ones away from the wires until an emergency crew repaired the damage. Rain softened the ground and caused the tree to fall.

A heavy branch of a tree fell in Dorchester ave. at Peabody sq. today, causing wires to say nearly to the ground. To prevent a tieup in service the Boston Elevated ran buses from Milton to Ashmont station.

Princess Louise Better

London, June 10 (AP)—Princess Marie Louise, King George's cousin, who is suffering from an intestinal infection, passed a better night and was slightly improved, a physician's bulletin said today.

BRUENING MET AT PIER BY MOB

Bremerhaven, Germany, June 10 (AP)—Chancellor Bruening's political opponents met him at the pier today as he and Foreign Minister Julius Curtius arrived from England and police had to use their clubs to disperse a mob of shouting National Socialists.

"Down with the hunger dictator," they shouted as they massed under the Nazi flag with its Swastika emblem, "down with Bruening, down with Curtius."

The statesmen, accompanied by Ambassador Sackett of the United States, boarded a train for Berlin without taking notice of the demonstration.

Britain Will Not Ask for Debt Conference

London, June 10 (AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald told the House of Commons this afternoon that the government has no present intention of making any move toward an international war debt conference.

Asked by a Conservative member whether he considered "calling a conference of the powers interested in international settlements with a view to mutual cancellation of obligations on the largest possible scale," the prime minister replied: "The attitude of this country in regard to war debts is well known and action on the lines suggested would not in the present circumstances serve any useful purpose."

Ducks Can Swim, But Nine in Lynn Drown in Their Coop

Can a duck swim?

Apparently not. At least nine can's as Constable Eben Sears of Lynn found that number of ducklings dead in their coop today. The rainfall was too much for them. Three of the brood were standing on the dead bodies of the others with their heads above the rain water. The birds were eight weeks old.

203 CAUGHT IN SAFETY NET

More than 200 motorists were stopped in the first week of the safety drive of the governor's committee on highway safety, according to a partial report by the State police and 10 of the 39 cities and towns in the State.

Of the 203 halted, 139 escaped with warnings, 64 must appear in court and one must show cause to the registrar of motor vehicles why his license should not be suspended.

Failure to slow down at intersections was one of the main complaints. Others included improper and dangerous parking and violation of signal systems.

23 Boats Ashore

Twenty-three boats, including four motor boats and 19 small sailboats were driven ashore or partly sunk off Wollaston beach boulevard during the early morning hours today, as a result of the storm.

MAINE HARD HIT BY NOR'EASTER

Portland, Me., June 10 (AP)—Two boats driven ashore—one of them destroyed—flooded fields and impassable highways were discussed today as Maine checked up on the damage done last night by a raging northeast storm along the coast and swollen rivers inland.

The freighter Shooters Island, with a crew of 35 aboard, went on Spring Point Ledge just outside Portland harbor last night, but was pulled off this morning by two tugs, the Coast Guard cutter Ossipee and two lighthouse tenders.

A 30-foot cabin cruiser owned by William C. Clifford was pulled loose from its moorings and pounded to pieces on the rocks.

Rumford, on the Androscoggin, still felt the effects of the three-day rain as roads and bridges were inundated and three ferries abandoned.

Five Injured in Post Road Crash

Marlboro, June 10—Five persons were seriously injured early today on the Boston Post road when a truck alleged to have been stolen earlier in the evening by two Worcester young men crashed into a roadster operated by Herbert H. Curry of Oxford.

Curry was cut by flying glass. Others in the Curry car who were injured were Miss Josephine Dowdell of Holliston, and Walter E. Cowern of Main st., Ashland. They were taken to Marlboro Hospital.

The two men in the stolen truck were seriously injured and were also taken to the hospital where they were placed under arrest.

12 Cows Marooned in Amherst, N. H., Flood

Nashua, N. H., June 10 (AP)—Twelve cows were marooned today on an island in the Souhegan river, near Ponemah Station, Amherst, and a call for assistance in their rescue was received at headquarters of the New Hampshire Humane Society.

The society was told the river was rising steadily.

FAMED SMILE IS MISSING

DRIVE OPENS TO 'SAVE' THEATER OF NATION

New York, June 10 (INS)—In an attempt to breathe new life into the theater and supply cities throughout the country with first-class traveling productions, the Theatrical Press Representatives of America will begin this week their militant campaign to "save our stage and restore the road."

A membership drive with the goal set for 50,000 will be inaugurated in the sale of the first "S O S" button and pledge card to Mayor Walker.

Every member of the theatrical profession, including the Allied Theatrical Trades, will be asked to join and pledge themselves to work tirelessly for the rehabilitation of "the road."

Los Angeles, June 10 (AP)—The will of Charles H. Crawford, politician, on file for probate today, revealed that five days before he and his associate, Herbert F. Spencer, were shot and killed, Crawford transferred to his wife nearly $1,000,000 worth of property.

H. I. Davis, Mrs. Crawford's attorney, said the will set up a trust fund of nearly $175,000 for the widow and children. The transfer, Davis said, as well as the trust fund, was made between April 15 and May 20.

DIVORCE

I've often thought of you close in my arms,
Of firelight, and children at our feet,
Our family, the Lullaby of Brahms
Hummed in the quiet darkness low and sweet,
All that is indistinct now, fled afar,
A memory of things that weren't to be
Unless there be some distant star
Beyond the world where souls are sorrow free.

We made great vows—recall?—and each was broken
In quarrels each as certain as our doom
And love we had soon lost the youthful bloom
While we forgot the vows so rapidly spoken—
Ah! We forget, but age makes us remember
Each summer day soon turns into November.

Idle Dollars Get Busy! Help BANISH DEPRESSION!

Houghton's Is Doing Its Share By Offering the Lowest Prices In Ten Years!

There are a lot of idle dollars in this country today that should be working. If they were working everybody who wanted a job would have one and business would be good. These idle dollars would be working if the people who owned them were buying their normal needs.

One of the surest and quickest ways to restore normal business is for those who are able, those whose jobs and bank accounts have not been affected by the depression, to start now buying the things they need and want.

In that way the stocks of retail stores will be turned over. The stores will have to go out and buy more merchandise. This will start factories producing. They will need help, call their employees back to work. Then those who have been unemployed will start buying and business will be quickly restored to normal.

We are not advocating that you spend your money just to increase employment either, even though you would be glad to help those less fortunate than yourself. But, we are advocating that you buy what you need here now during Founders' Week, because you are going to find during this sale that Houghton's is offering the most extraordinary bargains in at least ten years, and the most unusual opportunities to benefit yourself that you will probably have for years to come.

And, incidentally, by taking advantage of these enormous savings you will help to end the depression.

BOSTON SOCIETY MEN FACE GIRL DEATH GRILL

Starr, vivacious and gay as ever, was there, Hamlin said, when he arrived at the party early in the afternoon, but several hours later complained of feeling ill. When Hamlin left late in the afternoon, Starr was still on the shore but the ship's doctor had relieved her indisposition.

The Boston man, an ex-Yale oarsman athletic in appearance, told his questioners that Starr walked up to him a short time after his arrival on the Franconia and asked if he remembered her.

Hamlin said he did not recall her immediately and she explained that she was Starr, "the girl you danced with on that West Indian cruise a couple of years ago."

OTHER BOSTONIANS NAMED.

Then he recalled her. Hamlin said, as a girl whom he had met on the cruise he took with his mother.

Some time later on the Franconia, Hamlin said, he came across Starr again and she appeared to have been drinking. She said, however, that she was ill and he arranged with her to be relieved by Dr. Terr, the ship's physician.

Much more about these men friends. Hamlin told the police officials, Dist.-Atty. Edwards admitted, but Edwards said he could not reveal the "leads" given by the Boston man for fear of handicapping further probing.

"I have talked at great length with Hamlin," said the Nassau prosecutor, "and Hamlin, like the police here, has offered every assistance possible and has offered to go to New York at any time requested for questioning."

Hamlin, the prosecutor said, denied being present at the Mauretania party on the night the girl disappeared, but said he met Starr at the Franconia party the week before. He gave Dist. Atty. Edwards names of Boston society men who attend the parties, and the investigators began a search for these partygoers.

AUTOPSY SHOWS DROWNING

"There is no question now in my mind," said Dist. Atty. Edwards, "that the girl met a violent death. I have been in communication with Prof. Schultz at Cornell University, who performed the second autopsy, and his report shows that Miss Faithfull died of drowning.

"He found in her throat a considerable quantity of sand. Bruises on her body, with this, lead us to believe that she was held under water.

"The investigation is far from complete here in Boston, I might add, and the authorities have assured me that they will conduct this end of the inquiry further."

The district attorney also revealed that he had letters written by Hamlin to Starr Faithfull, but refused to reveal their contents.

HAMLIN ISSUES STATEMENT

Hamlin following the conference, handed out a prepared, typewritten statement, however, which said that he had had no social contacts," with the girl. His statement read:

"I have just talked with Dist.-Atty. Edwards from Nassau, and Supt. Crowley and have told them all I know about Starr Faithful, and am ready to co-operate with them in every way.

"I have told Mr. Edwards if at any time he needs me in New York I will go to New York immediately. I will do everything in my power to help in any way I can. I knew the girl in a business way but had no social contacts with her."

Police, however, had said previously that Hamlin admitted having known the girl and her family for a long time. He first met her several years ago when she took a tropical cruise, they said.

Indications were today that Starr, beautiful daughter of tragedy and victim of the modern gin-and-jazz age, died at a point remote from the spot where her body, scantily clad, was found, and that the body was carried from a possible "wild party" and deposited on the sands of Long Beach.

Although the girl's mother has denied that she had intimate men friends, it has been learned that Starr spent the Decoration Day week-end with an unidentified man in the vicinity of Long Beach.

INTRODUCED BY BOSTONIAN

The mother did reveal, however, that about three weeks ago her daughter was introduced to a New York man by a man friend from Boston.

Whether these two men attended a party with Starr has not yet been revealed as part of Dist. Atty. Edwards' declared "definite information" regarding the tragedy.

On at least two occasions, it is declared, a girl answering the starry-eyed Starr's description and giving the Faithfull address at 12 St. Luke's pl., New York, hired launches at a transatlantic pier on the North River, while she was in an intoxicated condition.

On one of these two occasions she rode only a few blocks and then told the taxi driver she had only 10 cents—and left the cab.

ARTIST TO BE QUIZZED

A well known Greenwich Village, New York, artist, believed by New York police to have been an intimate of the girl was to be questioned today regarding his knowledge of her activities outside of the conventional world in which her parents believed she moved.

Edwards said he was in possession of the identity of her slayers but refused to disclose anything about them other than to say they were both prominent "men politically and the other important mediocrity."

According to Edwards the girl met her death soon after she disappeared from her home on Friday. Her body was driven to Long Beach in an automobile, he said, and then either dumped on the sand or taken out in a small boat east overboard and allowed to drift to the shore.

CLUES CONFUSING

The two prominent men, suspected in the case, were both seen with the girl after she left home Edwards declared. Denied to confuse the exact time when she left home. Although she was reported by her family to have disappeared at 9:30 a. m. Friday, it was learned she had been there later in the day.

Edwards not only hinted that strangulation might also have been a cause, but declared emphatically that he believed the girl had been brutally beaten, but not criminally attacked, before she was killed.

MOTIVE NOT DEFINED

The autopsy surgeon also said only froth and a small amount of sand were found in the girl's lungs indicating she had drowned in shallow water. In view of Edwards' hint as to a bath tub drowning it is possible that the autopsy showed fresh water was found in the lungs and that this fact was withheld at the time.

Edwards did not give the slightest indication as to what he believed the motive was for the crime.

He did indicate, however, that the disposition of the body was an elaborate attempt to make it appear that death was due to accidental drowning and thus remove suspicion from any one.

KIN FURNISHED CLUES

Most of the evidence that led him to his conclusions, Edwards revealed, came from Mr. and Mrs. Stanley E. Faithfull, the girl's stepfather and mother.

Detectives and attaches of the Nassau district attorney's office descended upon the Faithfull apartment at 6 p. m. last night. They questioned the girl's family and searched the apartment, appearing anxious to locate the diary which Faithfull was reported to have destroyed and which he stated yesterday "no longer existed."

SUICIDE SCOUTED

Closeted with police questioners, it was learned the family still scouted any theory of suicide.

"She was captain of the swimming team at Rogers Hall in Lowell," said Faithfull. "She couldn't have drowned if she wanted to. Self preservation is the first law of nature. If she wanted to end her life there are plenty of chemicals within easy reach in the house here. She could have killed herself instantly. Starr was murdered."

Mrs. Faithfull said last night:

"I know Starr was murdered. We know that she was with someone and that she must have been murdered. She had everything to live for and she had never been happier."

Edwards' revelations apparently cast into the discard his earlier suspicions that Miss Faithfull might have been thrown overboard from a liner.

CHECK IN SHIPS

His aides had radioed to ships which have left New York since Friday, asking captains to ascertain if any unclaimed clothes were found on their vessels. The inquiry was prompted by the fact that not all the garments Starr wore when she left home were found on her body.

This same theory, too, had led investigators to make a hurried visit to the Mauretania, after it had been learned the girl was seen aboard the vessel Friday, before it sailed on a four-day cruise.

The vessel docked yesterday. Police interviewed the captain and purser, who told them no garments belonging to a woman had been found aboard, nor had any stowaway been discovered in the customary thorough search.

A week before, on May 29, Miss Faithfull, police say, was discovered aboard the Cunard liner Franconia after it had left Pier 56 at 5:39 p. m. Detectives were told that she had explained she had gone aboard to bid farewell to friends.

Then, police were told, she cried out:

"Kill me. Throw me overboard."

She was taken ashore in a small boat, ship's officers said.

The cab driver, Murray Edelman, 1416 Walton ave., the Bronx, told police a young woman of Miss Wyman's description, who had evidently been drinking, told him to drive to 12 St. Luke's pl., the home of her stepfather.

But at 10th ave. and 14th st., he said, the girl told him she had only 10 cents and got out of the cab.

He said:

"I read of my daughter's death and wanted to learn all I could, as any father would. I did not come specifically to see police, but if there is anything I can do I want to do it."

Wyman, who was graduated from Harvard in 1900, is a Boston capitalist, being director of the Maine Steel and Ship corporations. He was divorced by Mrs. Helen McGregor Wyman, of Brookline, in 1924. She then married Faithfull the following year.

Wyman, who said he had not seen his daughter since 1924, "for reasons I cannot go into," expressed belief she was slain, adding:

"She was vivacious and happy when she left Boston."

Sylvia Tucker Faithfull, the dead girl's sister denied Starr had been melancholy before she vanished. The police missing report, however, given by the stepfather, carried the notation:

"Mental condition poor."

Although the family would not discuss it, it was learned Starr disappeared a year and a half ago. When she returned her brief absence was explained as "amnesia."

Boston friends and relatives today revealed that the murdered girl had a very unusual temperament but that she was involved in no love affair and was not engaged to be married. She was related by marriage to former Mayor Andrew J. Peters, his wife being a cousin of her mother, it was learned.

MOODINESS RECALLED

The dead girl was revealed to have been moody, inclined to introspection, long walks and seclusion. Even in childhood, friends remember her as a girl who talked like a much older and more learned person. She also was noted as an ardent and assiduous reader even at that time.

It was learned the dead girl kept a diary from the time she was 12 years of age and made entries every day, putting down every little occurrence of her daily life. She confided to a girlhood chum that she was keeping a diary in order to be a writer some day. She wrote all her thoughts and actions in this book, it was revealed.

The dead girl was very sensitive about her family affairs and about her sister, Tucker, friends recall. Curiosity over her family affairs ended her friendship with two close girlhood friends, it was learned.

Her sister has had a streak of white hair, running from her forehead straight back across her head, since early girlhood. She has always been sensitive about this and Starr's greatest worry in early days was to avert fits of temper of her sister over this.

The girl's uncle, Stuart MacGregor Pierce, of 1 Primus st., Beacon Hill, said as far as he knew the girl was not engaged nor did she have any love affair. She was in good health and had suffered from no nervous breakdown so far as he knew, he said.

BATTERED BODY FOUND ON BEACH

The most recent portrait of Miss Starr Faithfull, former Brookline heiress, whose battered body was washed ashore at Long Beach, L. I., Monday. She is the daughter of Frank W. Wyman, 2d, Boston capitalist.

In a conference at police headquarters today, Dist. Atty. E. A. Edwards of Nassau County, New York, and his police aid, Inspector Harold R. King, laid their plans with Deputy Supt. of Police McDevitt for the apprehension of two prominent men involved in the death of beautiful Starr Faithful, formerly of Brookline. Intimate friends of the girl are said to be known to both Boston and New York authorities. (Staff photo.)

19,500 CHICAGO EMPLOYES GO UNPAID

Chicago, June 10 (AP)—Chicago's financial troubles, growing out of its delay in collecting 1929 and 1930 taxes because of reassessment difficulties, were spreading today.

With failure of the county board to pay their hospital nurses yesterday, the total of unpaid public employes exceeded 19,500, and the past due and unpaid salaries aggregated $5,195,000.

It was estimated by officials, however, that in reality the local governments were in salary arrears to the extent of $8,250,000. Of this $3,000,000 was represented in judgments.

This is the second time in two years that county hospital nurses have gone temporarily payless. The first time was in 1929 when the Continental Illinois Bank advanced $1,010,687 to keep the nurses on the job. The bill remains uncollected, although the bank has obtained judgment.

The bank also loaned the county $1,900,000 about the same time to pay other employes, on this bill, too, remains uncollected, although a judgment has been procured.

Meanwhile, J. L. Jacobs, efficiency engineer, went to work on an extensive plan for reorganizing city departments on a more economical basis.

Southern Textile Mills to Curtail

Charlotte, N. C., June 6 (AP)—The Observer says numerous textile mills will sharply curtail production the latter part of this month and early in July.

The paper says the practice of halting operations entirely for a week in July, generally adopted by the industry, will again be followed by a number of mills in this section. Other mills, the paper says, are planning to operate only every other week during July and August.

Foot Troubles Will Not Cure Themselves

Foot troubles arise from definite causes, and until these causes are removed, the condition grows steadily worse.

The usual cause is the wearing of ordinary, unscientific shoes, that are not built on anatomical lines. They battle with the feet. They throw the weight of the body out of balance. They strain muscles and torture nerves.

Arch Preserver Shoes support the feet at the three points at which Nature distributes the weight of the body. They and the foot work together, whether you are walking or standing. Muscles have free play; bones are not crowded; nerves are at ease. You stand straighter; you have more energy; you are eager for the activities you formerly dreaded. You feel younger and look younger.

Arch Preserver Shoes are priced as low as good shoes can be priced... $8.85 - $10 - $10.50 - $12.50

Here, Man smoke a FRESH cigarette!

THE new Humidor Pack has made millions of people mighty particular about their cigarettes.

For once you have smoked Camels, known all the delights of the Camel blend of choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos in fresh, factory-prime condition, it is hard to endure the sting and bite of parched-dry, stale cigarettes.

Cigarettes wrapped the ordinary way begin to lose their moisture and flavor as soon as they leave the factory.

Not so with Camels. An outer wrapping of moisture-proof Cellophane air-seals all the natural moisture and rare flavor in and keeps out the dust and germs.

That's one of the "why's" of the great national switch to Camels.

That's why in any climate, in any land you are always sure the Camels you buy will be fresh and flavorful and mild.

If you're hard to convince, surely you have an open mind. Just switch over to Camels for one day, then leave them—if you can.

RUM ROW SELLS UNCUT HOOCH CHEAP, BUT—

New York, June 10—Rum row—that shadowy shifting mart on the bounding main well outside the 12-mile limit—went on the air last night.

One of the captains of the fleet was interviewed, and a broadcaster who had gone out from New York on a yacht described the scene over a nation-wide hookup.

Scotch sells for $15 a case and dry for $17 on Rum Row, the captain said, and none of it is cut; but, by the time it reaches New York, Scotch costs from $60 to $75 and rye $90 and it's all cut.

Rum Row is not so prosperous as it once was, the captain said. Nowadays a ship has to hang around out there a month sometimes before it has a chance to unload.

Sale of liquor on Rum Row is legal, because it is outside the 12-mile limit, but between Rum Row and New York is where the coast guard comes in—so efficiently, the captain said, that deliveries have been cut down 20 per cent. One cargo out of every five is lost.

"Not more than 10 per cent of the liquor they drink in New York comes from out here," the captain said. "The rest is bathtub stuff."

Cousins' Wedding Ends Suit on Loan

A suit of Antonio Gammaldi, Marginal st., East Boston, against his cousin, Miss Nicolina Gammaldi, came to an abrupt end today when it was learned that the couple had been wedded. The suit, filed May 27, 1927, was to have been heard in Suffolk court today.

When his lawyer, Atty. Cosimo D. Nicastro, asked him if he was prepared to appear today, Gammaldi replied that he was not going to court—he had married the girl. Gammaldi had been suing for money he claimed to have lent his cousin.

ANOTHER YOUNG PLAN

However, unlike the Young plan of her famous father, Owen D. Young, Miss Josephine Young, shown in this painting by Savely Sorine, the Russian artist, plans to wed Everett N. Case. She has just announced her engagement. The bridegroom-to-be is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Herbert Case of Plainfield, N. J. (International Newsreel photo.)

BEER BLOC PLAN IS RIDICULED BY W. C. T. U.

Washington, June 10 (AP)—The W. C. T. U. today said every resident in a dozen states and the District of Columbia would have to drink two and one-half gallons of beer a day next year to raise $1,000,000,000 through taxes as advocated by what was described as "the Congressional beer bloc."

"The biggest beer tax ever paid the government in normal pre-war days," the union said, "was $87,573,672 in 1916 with the tax a dollar a barrel, the per capita consumption at 11½ gallons annually."

The W. C. T. U. said it would "require 2,000,000 saloons, set up next year, to sell the beer planned under the beer bloc's proposal" in referring to recent statements of House wet bloc members advocating sale of beer to provide revenue to meet the Treasury's deficit.

"To raise $1,000,000,000 tax in the fiscal year almost upon us," it continued, "would mean the drinking of 12½ times as much beer as ever before, or nearly 21,000,000,000 gallons of beer a year, 2,000,000,000 gallons more than all the drinkers in America drank in 16 years before the war with the consumption increasing enormously every year."

Trainmen Vote to Shun Truck Users

Utica, N. Y., June 10 (AP)—Following the example of Oneida Lodge, 164, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, the Railroad Carmen's Local 1015 tonight unanimously voted to boycott commercial houses using truck rather than railroad transportation facilities.

The organization represents about 100 Utica families. The move is in interest of increased railroad business and employment.

PURCHASING AGENTS

Another edition of the New England Business Telephone Directory is being prepared. It will contain the names, addresses and telephone numbers of all business telephone subscribers in New England, grouped by states and classified by business or profession. SALES MANAGERS can instantly find and call by number (the most economical way) any customer or prospect in New England. ADVERTISING MANAGERS can use this Directory as a live mailing list. PURCHASING AGENTS will find it a valuable reference book of dealers and supply houses. And all EXECUTIVES will find in it a means to quick action, information or detailed discussion where out-of-town business transactions are involved.

Support Your Free Listing

The free listing to which each firm is entitled, assures publication of its name, address and telephone under one business heading. But if its business is subject to two or more classifications, it may need additional listings to support the first. For example: the free listing of a concern might be under "Contractors' Equipment." But if it did considerable business in heating and ventilating machinery, an extra listing under "Ventilating Equipment" would get the attention of those looking first under that classification. Likewise, further listings might be advisable under "Pipes and Fittings," "Plumbers' Supplies Wholesale," or still other headings. Such extra listings may be obtained for a small monthly charge. For rates and information, apply to your Telephone Business Office, or the Directory Department of the Company, 245 State Street, Boston. Call SHErwin 9800.

METEORS NEVER CAUSE A FIRE, SAYS SAVANT

In connection with the meteor fall in Ohio the Associated Press presents herewith an article by Dr. Willard J. Fisher, authority on meteors.

By DR. WILLARD J. FISHER
(Lecturer in Astronomy, Harvard College Observatory)
(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press)

When a meteorite falls to earth, contrary to recent stories and widespread belief, there is little danger of fire. Often the fragments of the ball of fire that may have startled the residents of several states, are not even hot when they strike the ground.

Meteorites occasionally have done a little damage besides scaring people and digging holes in pastures or grain fields. When two iron masses fell in Braunau, Bohemia, July 14, 1874, the smaller went through a roof and the room below it in which small children were asleep. Several similar cases are well established.

FROST FORMED ON METEOR

But in these cases no fire has resulted—the meteorites have been hardly too hot to handle, or they soon cool enough within a short time. And that has generally been so when fresh-fallen meteorites have been dug up.

A small stone that fell at Colby, Wis., July 14, 1917, was said by the excavator to have been so cold that frost immediately formed on its surface. An iron mass that fell at Nanpil, Zaca Tecas, November 27, 1855, about 9 o'clock in the evening, was hot, but not so hot as to prevent them from getting it out presently from the fool-deep hole in which it lay.

In spite of tales there is no convincing evidence that any small meteorite ever set a fire where it fell. As to meteorites burning for two hours, with flames 40 feet high, such tales are quite incredible.

300 METEORS CHECKED

All meteorites which have been examined by experts—more than 500 actually have been seen to fall—have proved to be either of stone, or of iron, or of stone and iron mixed, and anyhow incombustible.

This is not saying that the surface of the stone or iron which flies along at the core of a fireball is not hot. On the contrary, the temperature is so high that the exterior substance melts, boils and is swept away in the fierce blast heating the front side. Such temperatures must be far above 2000 degrees fahrenheit.

The heat produced during flight is due wholly to the slowing down of the speed: when the resistance of the air has brought the speed down to that of an ordinarily falling body, the production of the melting temperatures has ceased, and the object falls on, dark and cooling.

So there is little theoretical reason to expect to find any meteorite very hot. Plenty of cases are known in grasses, leaves etc, have been pushed into the ground by falling meteorites and have been found beneath them, still unscorched.

JAIL ESCAPE IN CAMBRIDGE

Jarvey Stevenson, serving a sentence of a year in the East Cambridge House of Correction, escaped today. His absence was discovered by officials at 8:45 this morning. A search of the yard, buildings and shops was fruitless. Officials believe Stevenson had an accomplice on the outside of the prison and that he made his getaway in an automobile.

He is 25 years old, about 137 pounds, medium complexion and short mustache. He wore prison clothes. He was sentenced about a month ago for larceny and receiving stolen goods.

Judge Raymond Dead

Providence, June 9—Judge George H. Raymond, a judge of the municipal court for 22 years, died last night, after a short illness. He was a native of Winchendon, Mass.

Slips His Bonds

Jarvey Stevenson, serving a year in East Cambridge jail, took French leave today and vanished. Officials are unable to explain how he made his getaway.

HIGH HAT GANG IN BOOK RACKET

Seen in his cell today, Clarke talked freely regarding the widespread operations of the book theft ring.

"This racket has been operating quietly throughout the country for the past three years," he said.

"The total losses to libraries throughout the country must amount to $5,000,000 annually. In New England alone the losses are about $200,000 while the South suffers to an equal extent.

"The theft of books is more profitable and less risky than liquor running and jewelry smuggling.

WIDENER LIBRARY EASY

"The libraries and librarians throughout the country are chiefly to blame for the widespread success of this racket. The libraries are the angels and the librarians the suckers for the racket. College and small town libraries are particularly easy picking.

"The Widener library at Harvard is probably the easiest picking of any college library in the country. Why the reported loss of $40,000 worth of books there is not even one-eighth of the total loss there for the last three years. There are books stolen from there, the loss of which has not even been discovered.

"Scouts or 'rooters' are operating throughout all sections of the country. There are 50 working in New York, 15 in Boston, 25 in Philadelphia, five in Springfield, 23 in Chicago, and others in Baltimore, Memphis, Washington, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

"A capable scout can gather in about 25 books a day, whose value averages from $25 to $10,000 each. Some run as high as $50,000. Small libraries are particularly easy to secure these valuable books from. The librarians seem to be unacquainted with their worth.

STOLE 34 BOOKS IN DAY

"There is a ready market for them too. What are apparently respectable book stores throughout the country are actually fencing stolen books. They employ their own help to eradicate all marks from the books which show from what library they were stolen.

"Two stores in Boston, long regarded as above reproach, are actively operating with the gang. There are six like them in New York, and others in Philadelphia, Chicago and Baltimore.

"There are stolen books now on the market, which have not yet even been noted as missing from the libraries where they were taken. There is a man, whom the police are now seeking, who made three trips into the Lowell library in one afternoon and stole 34 books. These were in my hotel room when the Boston police arrested me."

Clarke's wife, Winifred Clarke, says she will stick by her husband and asserts her belief in his innocence. The couple are childhood sweethearts, she said, and were married in New York 18 months ago. She said she knew nothing of the charges against him and believed he had bought the books.

Another Wheat Surplus Seen

Washington, June 10 (US)—The 1931 winter wheat crop will be 457,000,000 bushels more than last year, according to a report issued today by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the Department of Agriculture. The estimate as of June 1 is that the crop will amount to 649,115,000 bushels.

The Federal Farm Board holds about 200,000,000 bushels of wheat. The surplus of this year's crop is expected to result to another 200,000,000 bushels.

Cambridge Chief and Coppers Weep, But Not for Joy

Chief John J. McBride and his assistants in the Central sq station of the Cambridge police department wept today, and they were not tears of joy.

Two tear gas bombs, accidentally dropped by workmen removing them from the third floor to the basement, filled the structure, forcing the chief and policemen to open windows and beat a hasty retreat to the street for the time being.

The workmen, being nearest to the exploded bombs, leaped down the stairs three at a time.

indicated that she had been around the plant for some time, but probably around the coal pile or engine room, where there are many hiding places.

REFUSES FOOD

Miss Bill readily identified herself, and was much concerned over the news that the harbor was dragged for her yesterday, and that her father and sister had made a special trip there for the search.

"You'd better notify the coast guard and police to drag no longer. They work hard enough as it is," she told Chief Williams.

Although there were no indications that she had had anything to eat since her disappearance, the girl refused food.

Her chief concern, according to Chief Williams, was to join her father and sister at Red Inn, where they had been staying during the search.

MEN'S CLOTHING

It was a joyous meeting, Chief Williams said.

The clothing worn by the girl consisted of a heavy sweater over the light clothing she had on Saturday, oilskin trousers and coat and the broad sou'wester. All were identified as clothing used by different men at the plant.

Gets One Month for Larceny of Gun

Edward Pope, Walnut st., Lynn, was given a month in the House of Correction today by Judge Reeve in Lynn District Court when found guilty of the larceny of a revolver from Oren Sewell, a Saugus garage man. ANCIENT TOMB ON COMMON TO BE OPENED

For the first time since the city took it over 70 years ago, the old Central Burying Grounds on the Boylston st. side of Boston Common will be opened for a burial tomorrow.

The tomb of Guyer Tucker of Revolutionary days will be opened to receive the body of George Commack, who died in New York.

The burial plans disclosed a peculiar condition among heirs entitled to burial there, the only Boston heir knowing nothing of the history of Commack.

The Boston heir is Mrs. James H. Means of Chestnut st., according to Nellie V. Norton of the city cemetery division.

Commack was simply listed on city records as an heir entitled to burial there but no further information accompanied the record.

He died at the age of 71 in the home of his sister, Mrs. Charles Oakley of West End ave., New York City.

Undertaker Lewis E. Jones of Lagrange st., to whom the body was shipped today by George F. Bunker, New York undertaker, said he knew nothing of Commack's history.

The burial will require two city permits, one from the park department for the opening of the tomb and another from the health department for the interment.

Jones is withholding application for them until he receives the body.

The Central Burying Grounds, formerly the South Burying Grounds, dates back to 1756. The city acquired it in 1860.

ANCIENT TOMB IN SCHOOL ST.

Workmen excavating for a new heating system in School st. today broke through into a concrete tomb 15 feet from the corner of King's Chapel.

The grave, apparently that of a wealthy man of pre-Revolutionary days, contained crumbling bones and the richly-engraved silver handles of a casket.

Records of the King's Chapel show that no burial has taken place in the location of the tomb since 1740. A more careful scrutiny of the records will be made to determine, if possible, the identity of the occupant, in order that descendants may be notified. Meanwhile the tomb will be walled up temporarily.

Detroit Clerk Held in $207,000 Swindle

Detroit, June 10—One of the greatest swindles in Detroit's history was revealed today and a young $130-a-month city clerical worker with a penchant for impersonating high officials and a taste for custom-built automobiles and yachts was in jail.

The prisoner is Alex F. Lewis, until last April a clerk in the Department of Public Welfare. He is accused of defrauding the city of $207,000 by a system of faked grocery orders.

Dr. Fitzpatrick Is Honored at Dinner

Three hundred Somerville city officials, physicians and teachers gathered at the Hotel Commander in Cambridge last night for a "bon voyage" dinner to Dr. Francis J. Fitzpatrick of the Somerville school committee, and his wife.

Dr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick will sail for a summer in Europe within a short time.

10,000 IN CHINA SLAUGHTERED

Nanking, June 10 (AP)—Advices from Nanchang, capital of the bandit infested Kiangsi Province, today said 10,000 persons had been slaughtered near Kiafu in a clash in which outlaws, farmers and soldiers figured.

The reports said the outlaws succeeded in isolating 3000 soldiers, but due to the latter's supply of machine guns and rifles did not dare to attack them directly.

The bandits then rounded up 10,000 non-combatant farmers, according to the report, and drove them against the soldiers. Using the helpless mass of humanity as a shield the bandits were said to have waited while the soldiers mowed down the farmers with machine guns until their weapons were overheated or otherwise out of commission. Then the outlaws charged, annihilating the troops.

The bandits were said to have escaped virtually unscathed.

Chorus Girls Aren't Dumb and Red Won't Arouse That Bull

These and many other popular fancies are fallacies, Albert E. Wiggam, authority on heredity, says in the July issue of Cosmopolitan. He cites figures to disprove the popular theories.

And speaking of history, he asserts Betsy Ross probably had nothing to do with making the American flag, and that Nero was a busy fireman rather than a fiddler as Rome burned.

Fit to Drink? That Is Problem in U. S.

Paris, June 10—In the words of Andre Tardieu, minister of agriculture, it is easy to get something to drink in the United States, but hard to get something fit to drink. He said so at a banquet of the League of Prohibition Adversaries.

12 SKUNKS ROUT 8 POLICE

Tear gas bombs versus skunks—and the skunks won.

A dozen polecats that invaded the pretentious summer home of the Misses Franks of Salem, at 824 Hale st., Beverly Farms, still held the fort today after eight policemen and firemen tried to dislodge them.

Headed by Sergt. Frederick Steele of Beverly, the bluecoats charged the house and cast six tear gas bombs within. Although the fumes from one of the bombs would have floored 100 men, the skunks did not bat an eyelash. They gave the policemen the "hah-ha" and descended to the cellar.

Then the firemen laid a line of hose and flooded the cellar in the hope of drowning the animals but the skunks climbed on boxes and other articles in the cellar until both police and firemen quit in disgust.

Aboard the Submarine Nautilus, at sea, June 10—More than a thousand miles from New York, plowing a lone, long trail, our strange craft is making a good 10 knots headway.

As I write this dispatch, the position of the Nautilus is Latitude 40.40 north, Longitude 47.30 west. We made 230 miles in 24 hours.

Our escort, the ice patrol cutter Pontchartrain, with Capt. Stromberg in command and bearing a band of newspaper and movie men, turned back Monday evening.

We were glad of their company thus far. Fortunately we did not need their aid and now that we are by ourselves there is a brighter look, if that is possible, on the faces of the crew. They are a great crowd. They like to feel that from now on, God willing, we will do the job alone.

Sir Hubert Wilkins' own story of his experiences on the historic journey of the Nautilus to England and thence to the North Pole will appear exclusively in the Boston Evening American and associated Hearst newspapers.

CREW KEEPS BUSY

There might come a time, of course, when we will need help and we will be grateful for it as we have for the great help we have received in the past.

But on this vessel, the strangest no doubt that has swept across the Atlantic since the war time raiders were recalled, one can sense the determined desire for accomplishment. We are as a child when it first walks alone.

However, yesterday afternoon I did notice a group get out their bridge cards and play a rubber or two in their off watch.

Our radio is working splendidly, and the telephone as well. We exchanged conversation with the ice patrol cutter just before she left.

On board the Pontchartrain they had the crew lined up before a loud speaker so that all heard Capt. Danenhower through their skipper, thank them for their services. Then several members of our crew exchanged messages.

It was almost like being at a city office, except, of course, for the surroundings.

Tonight, at the latest, we should know whether we can afford to call in at London for additional scientific gear and to keep a word of promise given early in the preparation of the North Pole expedition.

Coast Guard Cutter Leaves Wilkins' Craft

A radio message was received today by the commander of the eastern division, U. S. Coast Guard service from the Coast Guard cutter Pontchartrain saying that she had left the submarine Nautilus. The vessels parted company yesterday 887 miles east of Pollock Rip lightship.

The submarine was proceeding at easy speed toward London aided by the Gulf Stream.

The Pontchartrain is proceeding toward the Grand Banks where she expected to contact the Coast Guard Cutter Gen. Greene to pay off the Gen. Greene crew.

B.U. SENIORS TO HOLD DINNER

The entire senior class of Boston University's College of Practical Arts and Letters will meet tonight in the New Ocean House at Swampscott, for their annual Class Day dinner.

The guests of honor include Dean and Mrs. T. Lawrence Davis; Mr. and Mrs. Graydon Stetson of the B. U. board of trustees; Prof. and Mrs. Harold J. Smith; and Miss Elisabeth Carvell of the faculty.

The B. U. School of Education senior class also will hold an informal banquet tonight at the Hotel Kenmore.

Eastern Massachusetts students in Boston University's college of liberal arts have been chosen for leading roles in the annual class day program to be held tomorrow afternoon at the William E. Mickinson Recreation Field, Riverside. Mildred Wells of Chelmsford is Class Day chairman.

Auto Is Ruled Not Part of Distillery

Judge James A. Lowell in federal court today ruled that an auto seized in connection with a raid by dry agents in dismantling of a distillery is not part of the distillery and could not become the roperty of the government by court action.

The auto, property of Abranam Smith of Lowell, to whom it was ordered returned, was seized during the raid and dismantling of a distillery in Dracut September 14, 1930. It was parked inside the building.

CARDINAL GIVES B. C. DEGREES

Owing to the heavy rainfall the exercises incident to the 54th annual commencement of Boston College were brought to a close this afternoon in the auditorium of the Library building at University Heights, instead of on Alumni Field.

Cardinal O'Connell conferred degrees on more than 350, including many sisters of the teaching orders.

Edward F. Connolly, Boston opened the program with the valedictory, "The Eternal and Necessary Foundations of the Christian Home." John J. Wright, intercollegiate debater, gave the salutatory address. His subject was "The Magna Charta of the Working Man."

PROF. EINSTEIN HAS NEW PROOF

Berlin, June 10 (AP)—Prof. Albert Einstein, in a treatise submitted today to the Prussian Academy of Sciences, offers further proof of the theory of an expanding universe which holds that cosmic masses are constantly moving outwards.

The theory received confirmation by Dr. Edwin Hubbell's observations of the Spiral Nebulae and star clusters from Mt. Wilson Observatory at Pasadena.

Dr. Einstein's treatise works it out further and adds to his earlier writings on the uniform field theory in which electrical and gravitational phenomena are considered together from uniform viewpoints.

About people you know in Boston stores

—By FRANCES BAIRD—

The Baltimore Association of Commerce has commissioned Jacob Binder, Boston artist, to paint a portrait of Ralph C. Hudson, former president of the association, and present general manager and executive vice-president of Jordan Marsh Co.

This move is in accordance with an established custom of adding to a gallery of distinguished leaders of the Baltimore organization. Binder recently gained fame with two recent pictures, a life sized portrait of Gaspar G. Bacon, president of the Senate, and "The Scribe." He was awarded the Ralph C. Hudson art prize in the contemporary New England show of 1930, for the "The Scribe." Binder studied under John Singer Sargent.

Massachusetts Unit No. 1 of the Florists Telegraph Delivery Association will meet tonight at the Weber Duck Inn. Delegates to the national convention of this association, to be held in Atlantic City in September, will be appointed at the meeting. William Penn is active in the F. T. D. A. affairs.

WATSON HEADS F. C. A.

George Watson, of the payroll office, was elected president of Filene's Co-operative Association in the annual election of officers yesterday. Watson has been associated with the store for 25 years.

Benjamin F. Robbins, of the basement store staff, was elected vice-president in one of the liveliest contests in the history of the organization. The returns gave Maurice Lee two more votes than Robbins. On a recount, Robbins was elected.

MISS LEACH TO WED

Invitations are out today for the wedding of Miss Ella Elizabeth Leach, training representative for Gilchrist's, and Robert N. Sanderson of North Abington, on Saturday, June 27.

The ceremony will be solemnized at the First Universalist church at Abington at 8 p. m. The bride will be attended by Mrs. A. Slayden Reynolds, the former Miss Christine Germaine, assistant personnel director for Shepard's, who will return from her honeymoon to fill this role. The groom's brother, Gordon Sanderson, will be best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception will be held at the new home of the couple at 375 Washington st., Abington. After a motor trip through Maine and Canada, the couple will be at home to their friends about July 15. Store associates who will attend the wedding include Miss Lucy Thayer, personnel director; Miss Amy Buck and Theda Page of the training staff, and others, both from Gilchrist's and other retail stores.

SUMMER SHOPS TO OPEN

Mrs. Mildred Jennings will have charge of the Hyannis branch shop of L. P. Hollander's, which opens for the summer season next Monday. On Thursday, Miss Helen Haggerty will supervise the opening of the Magnolia branch and take charge there. The following Monday, June 22, Miss Bell will open the branch shop at York Harbor, Me.

ELY A GUEST AT K. C. BANQUET

Bunker Hill Council No. 82, K. of C. of Charlestown, will give their 30th annual "night before" banquet in observance of the anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill in their clubhouse at 44 High st., Charlestown, next Tuesday.

Congressman Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York will respond to the toast "The United States"; Gov. Joseph B. Ely, "The Commonwealth of Massachusetts"; Mayor Curley, "The City of Boston"; Judge Charles S. Sullivan of the Charlestown Municipal court, "The Day We Celebrate"; Rev. George F. Kettell, national chaplain of the American Legion, "Patriotism."

The Rev. James J. Corbett, C. M., who recently returned from China, Congressman John J. Douglass and others will deliver addresses.

Magnus Case Put Over to June 30

Twenty-two men arrested with "Big John" Magnus, bootleg chief, by Customs officials during the seizure of a large amount of liquor in Dorchester failed to appear when their names were called in Federal Court today.

Magnus, however, and Timothy Downey of Kimball st., Dorchester, appeared later, ready for a hearing, but the court, on recommendation of Assistant U. S. Attorney Hugo Bagnuli, continued the case until June 30.

WARSHIPS HERE ON JUNE 17

The light cruiser Concord and two destroyers, the Upshur and Babbit, will arrive at the Boston Navy Yard early next week for participation in the celebration of Bunker Hill Day. The cruiser Concord will remain for some time, undergoing overhauling. Members of the crews of the three ships and also of the cruiser Richmond and the destroyer Dickinson will participate in the Bunker Hill Day parade in Charlestown on the afternoon of June 17.

Joseph F. Stoddard, a Civil War veteran and commander of Abraham Lincoln Post 11, G. A. R., will be the chief marshal of the parade and will ride in an automobile at the head of the line of march.

It is expected there will be 8000 in the military and civic parade which will take place on the afternoon of the holiday through the streets of Charlestown.

The route of the parade as announced today is: Start at Bunker Hill and Pearl sts. over Bunker Hill st., to Main, Gardner, Sever st., to Rutherford ave., Mishawum, Main st., south to Union st., to Washington, Harvard st., to City sq., Chelsea, Bunker Hill to Elm st. to High st., where the reviewing stand for Mayor Curley and invited guests will be in front of the Bunker Hill Council, K. of C., building on High st.

Shippee Expedition Plane in Crash

New York, June 10 (AP)—One of the planes of the Shippe-Johnson expedition, photographing the lost cities of the Incas in Peru, has been wrecked in a crash, but the occupants escaped without injury.

The accident was revealed in a letter from Robert Shippe, youngest of the five young Americans who set out last December on the expedition. Shippee, who is 20, and Irving G. Hay, 24, were in the plane when it crashed.

KEEP KISSABLE

WITH OLD GOLDS

OLD GOLDS were created to give you THROAT-EASE . . . as well as a more delightful tasting cigarette. But the makers also considered your breath, your lips, your teeth, as well as your THROAT.

They created a pure-tobacco cigarette . . . entirely free of coriander and other greasy artificial flavorings* that burn into clinging, staining, breath-tainting vapors.

To avoid unpleasant aftermaths, smoke pure-tobacco OLD GOLDS. Their clean, sun-ripened, natural-flavored tobaccos will be like honey to your THROAT. And they leave no objectionable odors either on your breath or clothing, or in the room.

HERE'S THE PROOF*

Open up a pack of OLD GOLDS and smell the tobacco. Do the same with any other cigarette. Judge for yourself which has the natural, pleasant, all-tobacco aroma. It's a favor to your family and friends, as well as to yourself, to smoke NATURAL-FLAVORED, pure-tobacco OLD GOLDS.

CONTRARY TO THE CUSTOM OF MOST SPORTING events—pardon me, if I refer to marriage as a sporting event, what I really think is that it is more like horse-trading—a wedding is never called off because of wet grounds. You send your little nut dishes or that doggy etching—the man in the antique shop told you it was a "real" etching—and you can be sure of seeing the show, rain or shine, ladies and gentlemen.

To be sure there is less of the "step right up and kiss the bride" stuff and much less of other stuff more to be desired than bride's kisses, maybe, but the old pageant goes on and the old bokum of the lily-white virgin blushingly meeting her mate at the altar continues to be the fashion.

At most of the weddings I have attended, the bride is the most composed and efficient of any of the family and the bridegroom does all of the blushing. The bridesmaids, as a rule, have been used in that position so many times, they are as indifferent as the members of a chorus surrounding the leading lady. Only the mothers appear to know something is going on—the bride's mother hot and bothered, the bridegroom's calm and slightly disdainful. Was there ever a woman's daughter good enough for another woman's son?

Trinity Crowded for Wedding

EVERYTHING WENT OFF AS PER SCHEDULE yesterday at the Williams-Creighton wedding. Boston could boast no better setting than historic Trinity Church and in spite of a downpour which continued all day, the place was crowded to the doors. If it was a cosmopolitan crowd, it was none the less interesting. There were numbers of Peggy's well-wishers from Swampscott and Lynn—Father Creighton was a power down there when Lynn was supplying the world with shoes—and Back Bay and Beacon Hill were showing their approval of Ralph's choice.

THE CREIGHTON GIRLS, Peggy, and Connie, have been very popular with the Junior Leaguers of which they are one and the girls came out in numbers to give the former a hearty send-off. We saw Dorothy Austin, Jane Brown, Faith Donaldson, Jean Read, Catherine Bowden, Priscilla Simonds, Peggy and Betty Perry, Dorothy Preston, Eleanor Gibson, Helen Cabot and hosts of others.

WE GOT A CYNICAL SMIRK out of the remarks of two old dead spirits who were whispering. "I was on the Williams' list," and would have enjoyed washing their mouths out with soap and water as our mother's used to do when we told a lie.

THE BRIDE WAS SWEET in white satin with rose-point lace cap from which flowed her tulle veil. The bouquet of pink Meltonia orchids and lilies of the valley was lovely. The bridesmaids looked awfully attractive in yellow net with sheafs of spring flowers. The bridegroom's sister, Miss Frances Williams, was just too lovely. Mrs. Creighton in beige lace was slim and girlish and Mrs. Ralph Williams was charming in green.

* * *

POPULAR MRS. J. LEWIS BREMER (Mary to her friends), who reminds us somehow of Elinor Glyn, was escorted by Miss Barbara, in pussy-willow print, and Mr. Bremer. If there is one person who always manages to appear charming, whether in a Junior League play or out of it, it is youthful Mrs. Frances L. Higginson, Jr., who wore sprigged chiffon and large hat daintily.

MISS EDITH MARION GRAY ANNOUNCES HER BRIDAL ATTENDANTS

MARRIED IN OLD TRINITY

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Blake Williams whose marriage took place yesterday in Trinity Church. Mrs. Williams was Miss Peggy Creighton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Creighton of Beacon st. and Swampscott.

MANY BRIDES-TO-BE WERE among those at the reception which was held at the house, Sauntering out onto the improvised marquee which had been constructed for the occasion on a sort of porch at the back of the house overlooking the Charles river, in which the collation was served, we met Rebecca Hallowell and her new fiance, Mr. Robert Frazer, and Miss Esther Grew and her husband-to-be, Augustin Parker, Jr.

Sweet Flower Girl

THE "HIT" OF THE SHOW was Little Betty Abbott, cousin of the bride, who walked down the aisle preceding Miss Creighton in a pink tulle bouffant and old-fashioned bouquet, the sweetest and most adorable flower girl in our remembrance. From May to December, and yet just as touching and beautiful as a Madame Norwood Penrose Hallowell, dear old Boston, in silvery gray silk with a touch of shadowy lace who never has relinquished the cherished "thee" and "thou" of her youth.

MR. AND MRS. EVERETT MORSE (Nancy Wentworth), Rachel Warner and her mother, Mrs. Roger Warner, the Evatts en famille, Mr. and Mrs. Frost and Miss Barbara and Miss Helen, Mrs. Alfred Matless, the Karl Adams, Ben Russells, Edward J. Holmes, grandson of Oliver Wendell Holmes, braved the day to send Miss Peggy off amid a shower of good wishes.

AT THE WEDDING WE heard that Mrs. Louis Frothingham of Commonwealth ave. will travel in Europe this summer with her niece, Miss Rebecca Ames, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Ames. Mrs. Frothingham is one of the interesting old residents of this city—not in appearance, but in fact—who has a beautiful estate in North Easton where the Ames family take root. Her house on Commonwealth ave. was formerly the residence of Mrs. Wolcott Johnson, also of Wenham, whose son married the farmer's daughter, Miss Harriet Cummings of that little town, and have lived happily ever after.

Bishop Assigns Six New Deacons

Bishop Sherrill yesterday ordained six students of the Episcopal Theological School of the deaconate at services in St. John's Memorial Chapel, Cambridge.

The men ordained and their assignments are: The Rev. Robert W. Fay, curate at Christ Church, Cambridge; the Rev. Alfred M. Longmire, minister-in-charge of St. James' Church, West Somerville; the Rev. William Dunlop Orr, assistant at St. Paul's Church, Albany; the Rev. Cornelius DuBois, Jr., assistant at Trinity Church, Buffalo, N. Y., and the Rev. Harold T. Handley, minister-in-charge at St. John's Church, Saugus.

Photographs 100,000 Snaps a Second

Paris, June 10 (AP)—A moving picture camera, said to be capable of taking 100,000 impressions per second, was presented to the Academy of Science today by its inventor, I. A. Seguin, as an advance on a rapid-action camera he had previously presented.

He predicted that the taking of 1,000,000 impressions a second will be possible by the future development of the camera.

Canny Scots Are Deserting Homeland

London, June 10 (AP)—Scotland has been losing population for the last 10 years.

William Adamson, secretary of state for Scotland, wrote in a reply to questions from the House of Commons that on April 26 the census stood at 4,842,554, a decrease of 39,943 or .8 per cent under the figures for 1921.

Jacket Yields to the Capelet This Year

By ANN ARDEN

SINCE THERE must be something over the shoulders for the evening gown of the present months, the little extra evening coat has evoluted to a cape.

JACKETS are all very well and are being done multitudinously. But sometimes we need a shoulder covering that is less of an important factor—something that is more a wisp of a thing.

SOME OF the little capelets which are so fascinating have sleeves—very abbreviated, but still sleeves. And some of them are just shoulder coverings that protect against stray breezes and still help to make the evening gown look more attractive.

* * *

IN MANY cases the extra cape is made of the same fabric as the dress. It may be printed chiffon or plain or it may be of some sort of soft silk or taffeta.

THEN THE rage for color contrast brings all sorts of notions in the way of accenting a frock by the addition of a little capelet of some other material and color.

THE MOST popular color seen in Paris recently, and also received with great approval in this country is green, especially in the shade known as "gypsy green," or "Primitiva green." The three piece evening ensemble pictured is delightfully new. The gown is white chiffon, its skirt sunburst pleated; the waist-length overblouse topped in softly draped revers; crystal buttons simulating a center front fastening from the waistline.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs, or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WAAB.

Hoover Host Today to Disabled Vets

Washington, June 10 (AP)—More than 350 disabled World War veterans were invited guests today at the White House garden party given annually in their honor.

Following their usual custom, President and Mrs. Hoover will extend personal greetings to each former man of arms. Cabinet members and their wives will assist in the reception.

Honeymoon in Europe for Couple

Miss Edith Marion Gray will be attended by Mrs. Henry F. Godfrey, Jr., of Brookline, as matron of honor, at her wedding on Saturday, June 13, at the Church of the Advent.

The bridesmaids will be the Misses Elizabeth Hamlin, Edith Mitton, Elizabeth Thomas, Barbara Frost, all of Boston; Mary Lovering Hoffman of North Carolina, Frances Burnett of Southboro, Elizabeth Pratt of New Bedford and Virginia Roberts of Greenwich, Ct.

Robert Jarvis Leonard, Jr.'s, best man will be his brother, John R. Leonard of Pelham Manor, N. Y.

The usher corps who will seat the guests will be James B. Baldwin of Concord, Robert Ogden, Robert L. Scott of Wellesley, John E. Lawrence of Hyde Park, Marshall Stearns, Jr., of New Canaan, Ct., Henry Chalfont of Pittsburgh, Julius Birge of New York and George B. Day of Pelham Manor.

Miss Gray is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Gray of 126 Commonwealth ave.

Big Entry List for Country Club Races

Frederick Parks of Baltimore, one of Judge Frank J. Bryan's assistants, has already arrived at The Country Club to prepare the course for the races June 17 and 20.

The entries closed Friday, June 5, and more horses have entered for the various races than ever in the history of the club.

There will be a schooling for both the flat and steeplechase horses at The Country Club, Monday morning, June 15.

Mrs. George S. West of Chestnut Hill is giving a luncheon for friends Wednesday afternoon, June 17, and Mrs. Charles C. Weld, mother of Mrs. Sumner Pingree of Flying Horse Farm, will give a luncheon at her home Saturday, June 20. Henry C. Vaughan is joining with Richard Danielson in giving a dinner to the gentlemen jockeys, and a few of their Boston friends at the Tavern Club, Friday evening, June 19.

Saturday evening, June 20, at The Country Club the Eastern Horse Club gives their stewards' dinner.

Americans to Meet King Tonight

London, June 10—Eight American women will be presented to King George and Queen Mary in the golden throne room of Buckingham Palace tonight., when their majesties hold the third royal court of the season. Nine more Americans will be received tomorrow night.

Those to be presented tonight by Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, wife of Ambassador Dawes, are:

Miss Barbara Childs of Norfolk, Ct.; Mrs. Lester E. Grant of Dennver, Col.; Mrs. Frederick W. Hillis of New Haven, Ct.; Mrs. Harry S. Lehr of Philadelphia; Miss Helen McCann of New York; Mrs. George Meeta of Washington; Mrs. Cassell R. St. Aubyn of New York and Mrs. Charles E. Van Vleck, Jr., of New York.

Miss Childs will wear a sirapa debutante's dress of white tulle over white satin, with a tulle train. Her feather fan and shoes will match her gown.

Mrs. Hilles will be gowned in pale apricot satin with matching train.

MEXICO, NEW MYTH OF A GOLDEN AGE

By Gilbert Seldes

You do not have to be a great reader of books to feel the new excitement about Mexico and to wonder what has changed our image of the peon and the bandit into the present picture of the happy peasant, the natural artist, the ideal human being leading the ideal human life. The writers have been doing well by Mexico for several years: the late D. H. Lawrence was profoundly moved by the country, recently Anita Brenner's "Idols Behind Altars" told us of the art of Mexico, this week Carleton Beals' "Mexican Maze" has gone into the hands of a book club, and in a fortnight the New Republic will publish a series of articles by Stuart Chase destined in book form for another club's members. Not only our knowledge, but out consciousness of Mexico is immeasurably increased.

Sources of Information

A hundred causes and a hundred accidents probably account for the publicity; the rediscovery of Mexico grows out of the rediscovery of the American Indian, is connected with the existence of an artist colony at Taos, with the climate of Arizona, the appearance of a powerful and radical labor movement in Mexico, the new attitude of our Government to its neighbor, the finding of ruins in Lindbergh's flight, the new significance attached to the ancient Mayan civilization by Spengler—all of these and many others contribute. But there is a special reason for our hospitality to the good news from the south.

Health and Hangovers

In our profound hangover from the industrial dissipation of the past ten years we are enchanted by the story of villages which have never heard of our industry and of our depression; in our weariness we envy a country where one day in three is a fiesta. Mexico is contrasted with Middletown by Beals and by Chase (Middletown being the typical American city whose god is work—the "God of Tepoztlan is play."

The Mexico of oil fields, hemp, and vast estates run by and for foreigners is not the new Mexico revealed to us; we are hearing now of mountain villages to which no motor car can penetrate, where no bathtubs are installed, where each family raises its corn and its children without our whole system of purchased comforts and gadgets and conveniences.

We are warned not to call these hamlets uncivilized and not to lay the flattering unction to our souls that these people are, because illiterate, uneducated. They know how to plant and reap, how to work together for the good of all, how to make exquisite potteries, how to be idle and how to live. We are told that these things are more important than sanitation and miniature golf and subways, and loud noises and loud voices (even from the screen or the radio) and loud manners.

The Myth of the Primitive

A good many years ago George Santayana warned us against the "myth of the primitive," he noticed firmly fixed in our minds by the idea of the Fall in the Garden of Eden, that the savage was all health, all nobility, all we ourselves ought to be. Science and exploration have reinforced the warning; it appears that the savages were troubled by indigestion, lived a great part of his life in an almost hysterical fear of the unknown, was hemmed in by rigid traditions and tabus. But whenever we weary of our own lives, and particularly when we fail for a moment or a decade to master our machinery, we lie back and dream of the golden days before civilization began, when man was "natural" and innocent and happy.

A Recurrent Dream

Upheavals in politics and in industry always bring forward these longings for the past and for the primitive. The noble savage was created when the elaborate civilization of France crumbled in the Revolution and the weariness of the post-Napoleonic era gave us the worship of Nature (almost an unheard-of thing during the preceding century; Dr. Johnson brusquely said that one blade of grass was like another blade of grass, and preferred civilized London to the wild Hebrides). Whenever people lose control of the mechanisms by which they live, they tend to run away; individuals go back to nature or to the South Sea Islands, and nations to forms of government which appear simple and ideal.

A Bargain Day

We discovered a simplicity and a strength which we feel lacking in ourselves. The peasant becomes not only more noble than the profiteer, but more valuable than the professor, and we are willing to trade thirty centuries of research and thought for the grace of a Hawaiian on a surfboard or the ritual of an Indian in a medicine dance. These are the times when we get a positive pleasure out of our severest critics, because everything we ourselves have done tastes of death and ashes. We forget that because we have subways, people can live in the suburbs; all we remember is the noise of the subway and the tastelessness of suburban architecture.

Dat Ol' Debbil, Steam

We have been listening for ten years to lecturers telling us that the civilization made by the machine is all wrong; that it enslaves and deadens us. (It is to the credit of Mr. Chase, by the way, that although he is among the most acute critics of the system, he is not led away into wholesale condemnation; he has the idea that we can still create a good life with the help of the machine if we master it.) The villain of the piece seemed to be James Watt with his steam engine, but this is only a tentative guess; even before steam and large-scale production, life was miserable and people wanted to steal away, into drunkenness or Utopias or strange cults—anywhere out of the world."

The dream of a golden age in the past comes to every one of us. The Freudians suggest that it represents our wish never to have been born, our desire to retrat to the womb of time and cease to be. In religion it is marked by the idea of Sin in the Garden, but the Greeks, without our religious ideas, dreamed of Atlantis, the city which disappeared under the sea. It remains a dream—and it doesn't help us much to hold a dry hand on the work of every day. But when we feel powerful, mastering the hard and evil occasions of our lives, the dream doesn't mean so much to us

Autogiro

By the Reader

After a lean period, the autogiro is coming in for the grand accolade. For some years it shared that derision vouchsafed to the goat, the tailed bullfrog and the doodlebug. And why? Merely because it toted a propeller on its back.

Though nine years old, there is no record of the autogiro having killed anyone. It would seem to be fool-proof, except for the very foolish, who have no business in the air, anyway.

And here's the whole history of this contraption, "Wings of Tomorrow," by Juan de la Cierva and Don Rose (Brewer, Warren and Putnam).

Senor de la Cierva, the inventor, has a good story to tell. A French pilot cracked up near Madrid, killing a lot of innocent bystanders, so the youth bought up the ruins for a handful of pesetas. After much tinkering he put a sort of windmill on top, and the thing worked like a charm—after a few years. Years of struggle, too, though he is only 36 now.

The chief difference twixt the airplane and the autogiro is that when the plane stops, it isn't a flying machine. But the Spaniard a thing hovers in one spot like a dragon fly, and it can go straight up and down with infinite gentleness.

A good name for it should be "Hove." You know, the Lewis Carroll line—"'Twas brillig, and the slithy toves did gyre and wimble in the wabe."

"Wings of Tomorrow" isn't a masterpiece of literature, but it's very interesting to air fiends and the aspiring young. And we recommend it violently to our Navy and Army Departments.

Let's go "toving"!

Another book by the regiment of King Henry's idolaters is "Ford and Men and Methods" (Doubleday, Doran Co.). Tells how the health of the men is looked after as regards pure air and food at the cafeteria, how scrap is saved and how production is, or was, speeded up.

All this has been told countless times. The book stresses humane treatment of the workers and how they get along under the conveyor belt system. What The Reader wants to know is, are workers strong because they work for Ford, or are they Ford workers because they are strong—and young? According to Stuart Chase very few in the Highland Park works are over 40.

More airy and mellow causeries by E. V. Lucas, to fit whom the word "inimitable" must have been invented, is "Traveler's Luck" (Lippincott). Tells you what a valiant trencherman Victor Hugo was—who crunched lobsters whole and tossed off at one gulp a pound of sugar dissolved in a pint of orange juice. A Gargantua!

Also there's rare stuff about the virtues of apples, villages in the Riviera, certain painters, especially the Barbizon crowd, inns, the discomforts of travel, and such-like. A born traveler, Lucas, who loves to grouse at trains, innkeepers and stupid chambermaids.

"Sailor's Progress" is the title of Frederick J. Steinhardt's book, announces Lincoln MacVeagh (The Dial Press), who will bring the book out early this month.

Steinhardt, long a resident in New Rochelle, is one of the popular members of the younger set of racing skippers on the Sound and has won many cups in the last three years sailing his victory boat, Nike. He is a member of the Stuyvesant and Colonial Yacht Clubs.

All Belgium is divided into two parts—the Flemings and the Walloons. There are nine Flemings to eight Walloons, says Sydney A. Clark in his new book, "Many-Colored Belgium" (McBride), yet these two diametrically opposite racial strains, each with its own language and traditions, have somehow blended into one nation. The Fleming is "blond, chunky, obstinate," while the Walloon, on the other hand, is "smaller, darker, and with a Gallic scrappiness about him." But both are Belgians.

June Glory

By Charles Hanson Towne

Now that June has definitely come, with all her green pomp and burdens of bloom, and I see the city people increasing on my commuters' train, I bless the thought which prompted me to get to the country on the very first of April. For I saw the Spring approach gradually. I watched leaf and flower unfold: and I now know, with Swinburne, how "blossom by blossom the Spring begins."

I am glad to have seen this country up at "Shingle Blessedness" when it was desolate and forlorn, before the birds came. The roads were practically deserted when I arrived, and I could see far down our naked lane, and across the river where the neighbors' houses stood empty and stark against the sky.

I thought the rain would never cease; but suddenly, on a miraculous morning, the sun shone; and it did seem to me that it never came out brighter, because I had been longing for it, waiting for it, even praying for its old soft gold.

When to Rent a House

It is always best to rent a house in gloomy weather; for if you like it then you will be sure to like it ten-fold when the hedges shine and there is "the lure of green things growing" all around it. One could not believe that those clumps of black twigs would, before a few weeks had passed, burst out into trembling leaves and become radiant bushes.

Each morning was an adventure. For it brought something new out of the old earth's throbbing breast; and when the forsythia finally flashed in every dooryard, I, the poor gutter-snipe, rejoiced at the wonderful sight, unable to realize that I was not looking at a florist's window. This was my brush, but I had a wild desire to share it with the whole world—

Ghostly Clouds

In my innocence, I thought this bit of glory would last forever. But the yellow petals fell to the ground, and the bush was as empty as it had been on that first rainy April evening.

Yet, as we walked through quiet roads, I soon saw pink and white faces peering at us through the trees, like young girls hailing someone coming home. They were dogwood in all their pristine youth, and we would stand before them, as people before a shrine, and say nothing, because there was nothing to say.

And then one morning, a mad maiden came dancing down the year, with white blossoms in her lovely hair. And one felt that the ghostly clouds had fallen into our apple orchards, and we longed literally to leap from our windows into this rout of foam. How quietly these branches bore their burden of loveliness! Why had there been no sturdy announcement of the miracle?

We forgot that out here the advent of Spring is taken for granted; but in the tragic city there is a festival if even one bud sparkles on some desolate back yard tree.

Nature Lifts Her Wand

As if this plethora of beauty were not enough, Nature lifted her wand, and there was a strange sweetness in the air, and the purple torches of lilacs broke into exultant fire. And in my own single lilac bush a robin built her nest, and we watched another miracle of reproductiveness; and it made the avenues and night clubs seem far away, with their dusty windows and sad little bulbs of artificial lights.

We wanted, like every ardent convert, to bring all the town bred people out into our countryside. How could they miss this radiance, and what had we been thinking of ourselves all these years not to have watched the pageantry of Spring?

But the apple trees were to lose their blooms ere many days had passed, and the lilacs were to droop and become lusteless, and the robin was to fly away with her young. Only in their place came the delicate iris, on their long stems, like an army of gaily accoutred soldiers; and all the while the vast army of the grass was gathering in all the camps of the world, and we could hear the light bugles of the birds as they announced the complete victory of their campaign.

"Glory shall follow glory," we said to one another; and looked at the luscious tiny buds on the rose bush that covers our porch. Only a few more weeks now and these too will have awakened. We shall soon know red repetions of the roses; and it will seem strange to us that out of the dark dust these crimson bits of perfection can spring.

Do We Deserve It?

I have a sense of superiority over the folk who now seek the countryside for the first time this year. They say to me, "Isn't it lovely?" and I find myself replying, "Yes, but you should have seen it two months ago, when the daffodils first sparkled. You should have seen the sudden march of the grass. You should seen that bough of the maple tree put on its green armor. And you should have smelt the clean earth after rain, and watched the slow unfolding of the tulips until they became chalices to hold the morning's wine."

No wonder that the poets have always sung of April! And no wonder, too, that they have told now May is building her house, and then chanted of ripe and lavish June.

July will come with its deeper hush; and August will follow with warm days and cool nights and long shadows in the afternoon; and September will crowd it for loveliness, with everything mirrored in the waters of the river near my door.

And we, though unworthy, will have seen the whole bright pageant, and wonder what we have ever done to deserve so beautiful a sight.

CLARA BOW TO FREE LANCE

Hollywood, Cal., June 10 (AP)—The life of a free lancer—unhampered by contracts—is what Clara Bow would like to try when she regains her health and is ready to return to motion picture work.

The little red-head film star whose contract with Paramount studio was cancelled at her request, expressed this desire as she headed for her Nevada ranch today.

"As soon as I am able," she said, "I will become what is known as a free lance player, contracting for a single production at a time. In this manner I believe I will be able to get parts more suitable for me when the time comes for me to sing a comeback.

"I have definitely decided not to sign a contract with any particular company. It will probably seem strange to free lance after all these years under one banner, but I think I shall like it."

Irvin Cobb Grandfather

New York, June 10—A son has been born to Mrs. Alton A. Brady, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin S. Cobb.

GAS IS PIPED 657 MILES

New York, June 10 (AP)—The record for long distance transportation on natural gas has been broken with the arrival at Louisiana, Mo., of Texas Panhandle gas carried over a pipe line 657 miles from the Texas fields.

Brokaw Dixon, Carner & Merritt, supervising the construction of the new $10,000,000 Panhandle Eastern pipe line announce that the line on its completion will extend over 1000 miles. It will be the longest single unit pipe line in the world.

Some 75 cities and towns in Kansas, Illinois, Missouri and Indiana will be served by the line which will have a daily capacity of 120,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

Statistics in France show an alarming number of premature burials, and now the Chamber of Deputies has been aroused to demand scientific proof of death before interment is permitted. Read about this in the American Weekly section of the next Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Jail for Inventor of Ball Bearing

Los Angeles, June 10 (AP)—Peter Pearcan, 62, who claimed to be the inventor of the first ball bearing for automobiles, was sentenced to eight to ten years in prison for the death of his wife, Victorine, and assault on his daughter, Mrs. Mildred Miller.

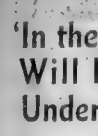
JOEL McCREA GIVEN LONG TERM CONTRACT BY RADIO PICTURES

'In the Mexican Quarter' Will Be His First Film Under New Agreement

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, June 10.—I suspect that Joel McCrea was elected by the ladies to stardom. A year ago Joel was just one of the lads trying to get a break in pictures, good-looking, affable and with a personality. He plays tennis, he dances, he swims, he rides horseback and he has a lot the social graces. He was seen in company with this and that famous star and before we knew it the name Joel McCrea meant something in Hollywood.



Louella O. Parsons

Don't for a moment let me give you the idea Joel is just a lady's man without any other attributes. He is a nice boy and a smart one.

Ray Pinchon has just given him a new contract which he is to be starred. His next is "In the Mexican Quarter" by Tom Gill. I think this picture is probably the best picture for the starring roles to come.

WHAT CAN this mean? "Ladies of the Big House," Is it a burlesque on Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Big House," starring the ladies? We admit we are intrigued. The story by Ernest Booth will be directed by Lou Gasnier and Max Marcin. Peggy Shannon, one of the newcomers at Paramount will have the lead. Clara Bow's illness certainly has made way for the younger generation. Sylvia Sidney and Peggy Shannon both benefited by her illness and were started on the road to fame when Clara had to take a rest.

Ruth Chatterton and Paul Lukas in Film

WHEN WALTER WANGER went out and promptly bought "Tomorrow and Tomorrow" for Ruth Chatterton, the rumor was started that Ruth wasn't leaving Paramount at all. By the way, what is the status of her contract now? Does she or doesn't she remain with Paramount? No matter what happens, before she leaves Paramount she will be starred in "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," the play which had such a long run in New York and which is doing very well in Los Angeles. Paul Lukas is going to play the doctor opposite her. Paramount is certainly going to play the doctor opposite Mr. Lukas, what with Bill Powell and Jack Oakie leaving.

Jack Oakie

THE BRIDAL suite has been engaged by Jack Oakie on the Bremen, New York. I wish I could tell you that Jack is taking Mary Brian or some of the other pretty girls to whom he has been devoted but it happens to be his mother. He is a ready on his way east. He hopes to visit Berlin, Paris, London and a few other cities on the Continent. So many romances are happening here in Hollywood we always suspect some one of having matrimonial intentions. One interesting little romance is that of Irving Ascher, Warner Brothers' executive and pretty little Loretta Young. Both say it is just a friendship, but as I said, I am that suspicious.

SUMMER IS HERE with a vengeance and the inclination to loiter over luncheon has never been stronger. Lady Juno Inverclyde, back from Reno where she sought a divorce from her titled husband is home again. Lothar Mendes looks happy too. Harry Cohn has put a speedboat, a new yacht called the Joboja, named after his parents. The ship, toning took place last week. Miss Jack Warner, Mrs. Joseph Schnitzer and Mrs. Charles Rogers all three very intelligent wives of film executives, lunched together. Miss Jack Warner is entertaining Doris, the daughter of the Hon. Harry Warren. Did I say that Josephine Whittell has been signed by Radio Pictures for "Bird of Paradise" with Dolores Del Rio and Joel McCrea? That's Mrs. Whittell's first fling at the movies although she has sung in concert and over the radio for some time.

A GOOD THING I am about to go away on my vacation. I need it. When it comes to contradicting ones self, well you know, people have gone to extraordinary and psychoanalyst for less than that. Two weeks ago I stated specifically in this column that Constance Bennett and Paul Muni were signed for "Scarface." Then I came out and gave both these plays a try. If no one has yet gotten the right dope, but it was a mistake for which the responsible one is Howard Hughes and Miss Bennett is "Age for Love."

SEEING LINA BASQUETTE dressed in white look so well with her mother and a good looking young man reminds me that Lina has signed with Ken Maynard to play the feminine appeal in "The Arizonian." No more engagements to announce until Lina's next picture when she will be seen in "Dixiana" with Bebe Daniels and Everett Marshall. Lina's other recent appearances in the pictures were in "Seven Keys to Baldpate" and "Sweethearts and Wives."

8 ALIVE ON SUB SUNK IN YELLOW SEA CRASH

Weihawei, China, June 10 (AP)—Twenty fathoms under the Yellow sea, eight men in the sunken British submarine Poseidon waited helplessly today while the surface desperate efforts to rescue them proceeded.

Five others, also missing since the submarine collided with the Chinese steamer Yuta 21 miles north of this port yesterday, were believed trapped in one of the compartments from which rescue would be virtually impossible even if they still were alive.

The parent ship Medway was able to maintain communication with the submersible while the naval vessels Hermes and Cumberland worked with a Japanese salvage ship to try to raise the hulk off the bottom. Naval officials believed they could do that within a few hours.

Five officers and 30 men were saved, six of them popping up through the water within four hours after the disaster. They had used the Davis escape apparatus issued to British submarine crews recently. Two of them died shortly after they were taken out of the water and one of the remaining four is in a critical condition.

HOTEL GUESTS FLEE FIRE

Guests in the Capitol House, Essex st., Salem, early this morning fled from a fire which raged through a business block next door, threatening to spread to the wooden hotel structure.

James M. Koen, a fireman was severely cut on the hands while fighting the blaze and was treated in Salem Hospital.

The fire, which originated in the kitchen of a restaurant next door to the hotel, burned the entire second floor of the business block, causing damage estimated at $15,000.

The contents of four stores on the first floor of the building were damaged by smoke and water.

CHILD SLAYER SAYS 'GUILTY'

With tears streaming down his face, Leroy B. Skillings, of Dracut, pleaded guilty in Middlesex Superior criminal court when arraigned today on two indictments charging first degree manslaughter of his children, Leroy, Jr., and Catherine, May 22.

Judge John M. Gibbs ordered a plea of not guilty entered and remanded Skillings to the East Cambridge jail without bail to await trial.

Three More Banks in Chicago Close

Chicago, June 10 (AP)—The Northwestern Trust and Savings Bank, one of the largest on the Northwest Side failed to open today as the result of heavy withdrawals.

The Second Northwestern State Bank and the Lincoln State Bank also closed today making a total of 22 closed this week as a result of uneasiness created by the absorption of the Continental Bank by the First National and the merger of the National Bank of the Republic with the Central Trust Co.

Slight Increase in Rail Employment

Washington, June 10 (AP)—A slight increase in the number of railroad employes and a boost of $14,000,000 in compensation paid them were recorded today for March over February by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

With the exception of last October, when there was a slight increase in employment on the roads, it was the first upward swing since May, 1930.

Maynard Man Shot Self, He Admits

Maynard, June 10 (AP)—Adam his mother that the mysterious bullet wound he suffered Sunday night was self-inflicted, the police said today. He was found near the home of his sweetheart Sunday with a wound in his abdomen and was taken to the Emerson Hospital in Concord. Police are searching for the weapon.

"Lung" Inventor to Get Gold Star

Washington, June 10 (AP)—For distinguished service in development of a submarine escape device common called the "lung," Chief Torpedoman Raymond C. Wilson, Charlestown, W. Va., naval reservist, will be presented a gold star in lieu of a third navy cross here Monday

Secretary Mellon to Sail Tomorrow

New York, June 10 (AP)—Secretary Mellon is booked as a passenger on the Mauretania which sails tomorrow for Southampton.

Lord Rothermere, owner of the London Daily Mail and other British newspapers, also is a passenger. Lord Rothermere has been visiting in Quebec.

HOTEL ON WHEELS VISITS BOSTON

General Motors truck executives lined up in front of special coach, Carcajou, which is equipped as a "hotel on wheels." The group includes (1) E. T. Herbig, Boston G. M. C. branch manager; (2) P. W. Sellers, president of G. M. C. Truck Co.; (3) O. L. Arnold, vice-president in charge of sales, and (4) Fred T. Mason of the Boston branch, who is the retail sales manager. The photograph was taken in connection with visit of the "hotel" to Boston.

REVERE MAN IS FOUND SLAIN

Joseph "Lefty" Pisano, 34, of Revere was found murdered today in a field off Springvale ave., Chelsea. He had been shot through the head and his face was battered.

He was identified by his blonde young wife who said they started housekeeping in Waite st., Revere, two days ago. Pisano formerly lived with his sister in Cummings ave., Revere.

A bullet had entered the left temple, both eyes were blackened and the face was battered.

Police said there was no doubt but the man had been murdered after he was "taken for a ride."

Schoolboys passing through a field found the body on the bank of a brook. It was lying face down under an elm tree with arms outstretched.

Gene Carimbo, 10, one of the boys, notified Mrs. Mary Policelli, the nearest neighbor, and she notified police.

Dr. Charles H. Green, Chelsea city physician, declared in his opinion the man had been murdered elsewhere and the body conveyed to the lonely section. He notified Dr. George Burgess Magrath, medical examiner, who ordered the body to North Grove st. morgue for an autopsy.

JOHN H. CASEY PASSES AWAY

John H. Casey, former assistant U. S. district attorney and veteran of the Suffolk County bar, died today in his summer home in Hull. He was in his 71st year

He was stricken Friday with a serious stomach ailment and treated by Drs. Thomas B. O'Brien and John Sweeney at 76 Andrews ave., Hull

His winter home was at 19 Wales st., Dorchester, and he maintained offices in the Old South Building.

During the trial of William J. Corcoran, former district attorney of Middlesex County, in the so-called "blackmail" cases, Casey appeared as one of the chief government witnesses.

He was married six years ago to Mrs. Elizabeth M. Porter of Cambridge after a romance that developed during the pilgrimage to Rome conducted by Cardinal O'Connell in the spring of the same year.

Mrs. Porter was the widow of Andrew Porter of the city law department and a close friend of Casey.

Soviet Floating $800,000,000 Loan

Moscow, June 10 (AP)—The government today announced the floating of a new internal loan of 1,500,000,000 rubles (about $300,000,000) "for the purpose of completing 518 new factories in 1931, finishing 1040 tractor stations and fulfilling the five-year plan as a whole in four years."

Judge C. N. Harris ordered the issuance of capiases for the arrest of Miss Bessie Rogers and Miss Yvonne Labrie, upon request of counsel for the wife. Summons were previously issued, but could not be served. Miss Rogers is a former bookkeeper of Webster's and Miss Labrie is said to have been in an automobile with him during an accident.

Argues His Case

Council Rejects Naming of Larnard

The governor's council today rejected the governor's nomination of John S. Larnard of Amesbury as clerk of the second district court of Essex county to succeed Earl M. Nelson. The vote was 5 to 1 against the governor. The only member voting for the governor's choice was Councillor Brennan of Charlestown.

The council held up for one week the governor's nomination of Robert R. Ryan of Weymouth, as medical examiner of the fourth Norfolk district, to fill a vacancy. All other nominations of last week were confirmed.

Cannon Sees Hoover Winner by Big Vote

San Francisco, June 10 (AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South expresses the opinion that if the Democrats should nominate a candidate for President who favored tampering with the Eighteenth Amendment, President Hoover would win by 10,000,000 votes in 1932.

Hundreds Hike in Rain Due to Tieup

Hundreds of people were forced to walk in the rain this morning from Arlington Heights to Arlington Center when the rear wheel of a five-ton truck broke off on the car tracks on Massachusetts ave. near Forrest st., causing a tieup of all trolley car service from 7:37 to 8:22.

D. S. Jordan Gains

Palo Alto, Cal., June 10 (AP)—Physicians attending Dr. David Starr Jordan, chancellor emeritus of Stanford University, who has been gravely ill at his home here, said today a "definite improvement" had been noted in his condition.

JOHN W. DAVIS IN COURT HERE

John W. Davis, ambassador to England during President Wilson's administration and Democratic candidate for President in 1924, appeared before Judge Wilford Gray in Suffolk Superior Court today and asked that the court decline jurisdiction against the Midland Bank, Ltd., of London, Eng., in a suit brought against it by the Universal Adjustment Corp. of Boston.

The suit involves more than $4,000,000, transferred to the English bank from the Merchants Bank of Moscow at the time of the Russian revolution. The money has been drawing interest at 8 per cent from December, 1916.

The defendant says the plaintiff is a Massachusetts corporation organized shortly before the filing of the suit as an instrumentality to receive from G. D. Czamanski, a resident of London, an assignment authorizing him to act for the Moscow Merchants' Bank

Davis argued that the question as to whom payments are to be made must be determined by the laws of England. He asked the court to dissolve attachments made against Boston banks arising from the litigation.

CEMENT TARIFF IS PROTESTED

Washington, June 10 (AP)—A group of importers and one shipper protested to the tariff commission today against the rate established on cement in the Hawley-Smoot act.

The rate which now is 6 cents per 100 pounds, including the weight of the container. Prior to 1920 cement was on the free list.

W. T. Miller, attorney for Lux, inc., Boston cement importers told the commission after the new tariff rate went into effect terminal companies had made some reduction in wharfage and handling charges "to help us out," but his company's purchases had decreased considerably during 1929 and 1930, in the former year because of the impending tariff legislation and in the latter because of the new duties

Miller asserted the United Cement and Brick Works Association of Antwerp, which exports most of the Belgium sales abroad, holds a "very substantial interest" in the Jenney & Lux firm

Boston Ship Lines to Join in Parley

Washington, June 10 (AP)—Ten of the 19 shipping lines invited to send representatives to an intercoastal rate conference here Monday have accepted

The following companies were among those sent invitations by the shipping board: Shepard Steamship Company, Boston; American Hawaiian Steamship Company; Argonaut Steamship line, Arrow Line, Calmar Steamship Corporation, Commercial Steamship Company, Dimon Steamship Corporation, Dollar Steamship Lines, Luckenbach Steamship Company, Mallory Steamship Company, Munson-McCormick Line, Nelson Steamship Company, Quaker Line and Williams Steamship Corporation.

MAN MURDERED IN WINCHENDON

Winchendon, June 10 (AP)—Samuel Hakala, 46, of East Jaffrey, N. H., was found stabbed to death early today in the kitchen of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Harrison.

Harrison was found hiding later in a pig pen behind his home and confessed, police said, that he stabbed Hakala in self-defense during an argument.

Chief of Police Callahan said Harrison's confession revealed that Hakala had gone to the former's home to obtain liquor

Police were notified of Hakala's death by Mrs. Harrison who told them it occurred when an old wound burst open.

5 BILLS SIGNED BY GOV. ELY

An act to regulate the fees of collectors of taxes;

An act to relieve counties of financial obligation in relation to the laying out and construction of state highways;

An act relative to the construction of sidewalks along state highways;

A resolve providing for an investigation by a special commission relative to the location of school buses;

A resolve providing for [illegible] by a special commission relative to regulating the business of transporting certain property for hire upon the ways of the commonwealth by motor vehicles.

YOUTH TELLS OF RUBIO DEATH

Ardmore, Okla., June 10 (AP)—A story of the slaying of Emilio Cortez Rubio, cousin of the President of Mexico, and Manuel Garcia Gomez, was told in court here today at the preliminary hearing of Deputy Sheriffs W. E. Guess and Cecil Crosby on charges of murder.

Salvador Cortez Rubio, surviving companion of the young students, pointed out Guess as the man who shot his friends early last Monday, but was unable to relate details of the shooting as he was standing in front of his parked car, blinded by its lights.

He denied the deputies' story that they had informed him they were officers. He said he did not know if his friends had drawn pistols, before Guess fired, as the deputies stated.

Salvador heard only two shots fired, he said, apparently by Guess.

Five Injured in Auto-Taxi Crash

Three women and two men were injured today in a collision at Commonwealth ave. and Dartmouth st. Back Bay, between a sedan and a taxicab.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. McPartland of Strathmore rd., Miss Irene Fiegl, 21, of Florence st. and Anna McPartland, 28, of Mayfield st., all Worcester, were treated at City [illegible]

of Submarine NAUTILUS and GRAF ZEPPELIN

WILKINS-ECKENER Expeditions

CONTEST OPEN TO PUPILS ATTENDING GRAMMAR SCHOOLS OR HIGH SCHOOLS, PUBLIC, PRIVATE OR PAROCHIAL

RULES of NORTH POLE Essay Contest

Read the Rules!

1—The Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser are offering $500 in Cash Prizes to Grammar Grade and High School pupils who send in the most interesting and accurate essays on the Wilkins-Eckener Expeditions to the North Pole.

2—All Grammar Grade and High School pupils in public, private and parochial schools are eligible to enter the contest except pupils, members of whose families are employed by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser. High School and Grammar Grade pupils will be divided in separate classifications, with separate prizes.

3—After the Wilkins and Eckener Expeditions have met at the North Pole, contestants will be allowed 20 days to prepare their essays. In case the two expeditions fail to meet, contestants will be allowed 20 days after public announcement of the fact.

4—Title of the essay will be "The Meeting at the North Pole." Included in each essay must be answers to 11 questions published on this page. These answers are not to be given in question and answer form, but as part of the information contained in the essay.

5—Essays may be brought to the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser building, 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston, or sent by first class mail, postage prepaid. They should be addressed to the "Meeting at the North Pole" Editor.

6—Name and address of each contestant and the classification under which he is competing (including grade and name of school) must appear twice on each entry—on the essay itself and on the outside of the envelope or package in which the essay is contained.

7—No manuscripts will be returned and no changes can be made after the essays have been sent to the Boston Evening American or Boston Sunday Advertiser.

8—Interest, accuracy, completeness, brevity and neatness all will be taken into account by the judges in awarding the prizes.

QUESTIONS:

THE following questions are based on the adventurous and daring Wilkins-Eckener Expedition to the North Pole, complete news accounts of which are being published exclusively in the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Read the Questions!

ANSWERS to these questions are to be incorporated in the essays to be written by contestants in "The Meeting at the North Pole" Contest. The answers are not to be given in regular question and answer form, but the data which forms the answers to these questions are to be written into the essay.

1—What were the points of departure of the Graf Zeppelin and Nautilus?

2—What was the date of departure of each craft?

3—What was the number of persons aboard each craft?

4—What was the general route taken by each?

5—What stops were made by each craft?

6—On what date did the two craft first sight or contact each other?

7—What were the weather conditions encountered at the pole?

8—What dramatic statements were made by Wilkins or Eckener or both?

9—On what date did the two craft meet at the North Pole, if they succeeded? If they failed, what was the cause of failure?

10—What was the number of miles traversed by each craft from its point of departure to the North Pole or the point nearest the Pole reached?

11—What woman was aboard which craft and what other famous trip had she made before?

INFORMATION which will aid contestants to answer these questions will be found from day to day in the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

CONTESTANTS who wish further information about the contest should telephone or write the "Meeting at the North Pole" Editor of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser. In all cases of inquiry by mail, a stamped, self-addressed envelope must be sent.

HEARST LOAN PLAN HAILED BY WORKERS

A resolution endorsing the five billion-dollar government "Prosperity Loan," suggested by William Randolph Hearst, was voted last night at a meeting of the Columbus Committee of The Workingmen's Club of Suffolk County. The committee is composed of 1400 citizens of the country of Italian birth or parentage, with headquarters located in the Testa Building on Hanover st.

The action of the Central delegate committee favoring an open mass meeting to be held on Boston Common for the purpose of bringing the loan directly to the attention of the wage earners of the city was approved. The following committee was appointed to plan the meeting: Anne Imperato, Frank J. Mancini, Joseph M. Chiocchi, Frank Cucinotta, Leon Gualtieri and James Pascucci.

The resolution follows:

Whereas: The membership of this club is composed of workingmen and women, and

Whereas: Many of our members are either unemployed or working part time and

Whereas: We unanimously approve of the action taken by the central delegate committee, therefore be it

Resolved that we, the members of the Columbus committee of The Workingmen's Club of Suffolk hereby endorse the program proposed by Hon. William Randolph Hearst that a "Prosperity Loan" of $5,000,000,000 be issued by the government of the United States to be used in fighting "the war against the continuation of poor times."

SALE CALLED BIG SUCCESS

Founder's Week sale at Houghton & Dutton's, in progress this week, was described by company officials as one of the most successful events in the 88 year history of the store.

They declared that buying enthusiasm of shoppers at the sale has not been exceeded within the memory of oldest employes and executives.

Declaring that Founder's Week this year was definitely planned as a challenge to depression, an official stated:

"The sale was planned with the definite idea of helping to banish depression by selling more goods and buying more goods. This in turn will increase factory production and employment and speed prosperity."

Tracing the development of Houghton's from 1843, he said:

"Samuel Houghton came originally from New Hampshire, from a family of store-keepers and then went to New York city, where with his brother-in-law, R. H. Macy, he founded the very first department store in the country, known as Macy's.

"A few years later he persuaded E. P. Dutton to form a partnership and open a store for the sale of household goods, crockery and dry goods. A rare combination of sound business methods in Mr. Dutton, and merchandising and advertising originality in Mr. Houghton, immediately made the new firm the most talked-of in New England.

"Perhaps the one outstanding feature of this new store was its strictly one-price policy.

"The next innovation was the use of odd prices, such as 19c, 49c, 89c, etc.

"Other large stores throughout the country followed the advertising methods of the Houghton & Dutton firm and such ideas as Dollar Day, first instituted by this house in 1860, have been widely copied.

"This establishment was also the first store in Boston to employ women as clerks in large numbers."

A feature of the event is the broadcast by Thistle Shopper over WEEI each day at 10 a. m.

LESLIE C. BARCLAY
Assistant Manager, Loft Boston Store
123 Summer Street

I am in full charge of the Soda Fountain of the Loft Store. I hereby certify that only the very finest and purest syrups and crushed fruits in addition to the famous Loft ice cream are used in making up all Loft fountain drinks and sundaes.

In my opinion, it is impossible to produce finer quality fountain drinks and ice cream than served by Loft even at prices from two to three times higher than the Loft prices.

Loft quality is indeed the very highest, and the prices are very moderate, within reach of all. It is a pleasure to be associated with Loft, Inc.!

PURER PRODUCTS AT LOWER COST

The remarkable progress of the Loft stores has attracted wide attention, and the enthusiasm of the personnel of this great Pure Food Organization has caused favorable and frequent comment.

There must be a Big Idea behind every business, and Loft has certainly become the outstanding example of the Big Idea—Pure quality products, sold at prices to meet the demands of the discriminating public, who must upon quality and purity, without extravagance.

The Loft idea is to give purity and quality all the time, in everything that it serves the public. This is accomplished through the great buying power of this wonderful organization, and the ever increasing daily sales in the Loft chain of Candy Stores and Restaurants.

Loft insists that their customers cannot secure equal value anywhere at double the price, and an offer in the Company of the outstanding purity of its candy, ice cream, fountain syrups and foods that it has offered $50,000.00 to Charity for proof that purer goods can be made.

MISS WINONA SWEET
Loft Store—123 Summer Street

I am thoroughly experienced in the candy business, and am familiar with most all of the different makes and brands of candy sold in Boston. I can unhesitatingly say that Loft candies in my opinion are the best that can be made, and the prices are in some cases less than half of those charged by other dealers.

I hear nothing but praise for Loft candies from my customers because Loft candies are so fine, pure, delicious—and above everything, strictly fresh all of the time. You are safe when you eat Loft candies!

LOFT INVENTS NEW PROCESS IN CHOCOLATE MAKING

What is generally believed by many to be the first real improvement in Chocolate Creams during the past twenty years has been successfully worked out by Loft, Inc., which Company controls this process.

The first package to be manufactured by that great Company will be known as "Chocolate Covered Home Made Frappe Creams—with fresh cracked nuts." The filling is the highest quality cream, beaten with the whites of fresh eggs and flavored with pure vanilla. The pieces are rather large, resembling the home made hand rolled style, and each piece is generously filled with fresh cracked nut meats. Each filling is then heavily covered with a special mellow chocolate, which has a real chocolate "punch" to it.

Before offering this new chocolate confection to its customers, Loft, Inc. submitted samples to over one hundred expert judges of chocolate—every one of them unhesitatingly pronouncing it the finest they had ever tasted.

A new Department especially equipped to manufacture twenty thousand pounds of this wonderful confection daily has been inaugurated in the great Loft plant.

Loft will pay $50,000 to Boston Charity for proof that purer candy can be purchased in Boston regardless of price. This offer includes the ritzy, dolled-up candies selling from $1.00 to $2.00 per pound, and is made in good faith—Loft has resources of over twelve million dollars.

Loft PURE ICE CREAM

Vanilla—Strawberry—Chocolate—Coffee

Made from real cream and fresh eggs, direct from the farm, with the finest cane sugar, pure honey, genuine vanilla beans, choicest tree-ripened fruits.

Loft has banished all coloring matter, gelatin, fillers and syrups containing water. LOFT ICE CREAM CONTAINS OVER 20% BUTTER FAT CREAM! The State law requires only 10% butter fat.

HEAVIEST RAIN IN 7 YEARS HITS BOSTON

Foreign Watch Smuggling Racket Here Is Disclosed

THIS IS LIFE

OUR GIRLS ARE NOT SUCH FOOLS AS THEY DRESS; WHAT IS INDECENT?

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

ROBERT E. ROGERS

THE OTHER DAY I saw an advertisement in one of these smart and sophisticated magazines that can be picked up on any subway news-stand for 15 cents—which is about as close as America ever comes to smartness and sophistication. It was a photograph of three rather dull-looking young women, all sprawled over a ship's rail, togged out in loose things that looked like a longshoreman's dungarees but weren't. They had a French name to them and were striped in violent color combinations, but what made them really smart was that just where a man wears his fountain pen and memorandum books, or thereabouts, these confections had little flags embroidered on them. They were marine code signals, so the advertisement said.

And the third displayed the anxious question, V-Y, "How long will you be getting up steam?"

Some Suggested Labels

I suppose—America being what it is—that by the middle of the summer the bargain basements will be full of some ingenious and tricky modification of the idea for the girls who have only a two weeks' vacation, but who are bound that on those two weeks they can't be told apart from the daughters of the anxious rich.

How would you like your daughter (or sister, or sweetheart) to stroll around a pleasure resort proudly conscious that she is signalling "I am loaded with combustibles" to any gob on shore leave who may heave in sight? I do not think that I should.

One can imagine other possible combinations of flags:

"Captain's off the ship" (for a married woman).

"Need food and water badly" (if a girl is hungry).

"In distress, sinking fast" (after the party).

You remember the Washington woman policeman who gave as her definition of a nice girl, "One who wouldn't enter a beauty contest."

One might add others. One who wouldn't allow herself to be tempted by that particular sort of cheap and vulgar catch-penny advertising stunt, just because it is amusing and "smart."

Styles Quickly Available

Our clothing manufacturers in America do not make it any too easy for a girl of limited means to dress like a lady. We have a curious situation over here. There was a time when rich women went abroad for their clothes, and prosperous women had theirs made by dressmakers after (usually a long way after) Paris styles, and all the rest made their own things at home with a keen eye to such modest fashion as was compatible with cheapness and durability.

The extraordinary high-powered organization of the women's ready-made clothing trade has changed all that! Today the latest and wildest European fashion can be caught up instantaneously, whisked across the Atlantic and reproduced expensively for the rich and cheaply for the poor, with a smartness and artistry of design that so far as "ready-mades" were concerned did not use to exist at all. The rich no longer can have anything exclusively. The five-and-ten-cent stores, the chain food stores, the bargain basement clothing shops turn out cheap and attractive imitations of every single notion that can be invented or imported at considerable expense for the wealthy. For people with little money the accessories of life, and even the necessities, were never so colorful, so smartly designed, so luxurious and so amusing. Hamlet speaks of something being "caviare to the general," meaning that it was too expensive and exclusive for the crowd. But now you can buy caviare for 10 cents in any chain-store!

But I was talking about women's clothing. The American world has gone crazy over garments which originated in the smartest, fastest, loosest, most extravagant social sets in Europe. Bathing suits suitable only for highly protected beaches among a few of one's own kind. Gowns whose length sweeping the floor indicate that the wearer never walks the democratic pavement, pajamas for the beach, for the informal dinner, for the dance—but (and here is the point!) never intended to be worn indiscriminately by the crowd in public places.

These things are imported, pirated, copied, redesigned, sometimes made more daring or more eccentric, styled to be sold very cheaply, manufactured in quantity, and spread all over the United States, so that every shop-girl who is clever enough and silly enough can appear conspicuously in the most unsuitable places in clothes which can only look ridiculous upon her.

Vulgarizing a Good Thing

A week or so ago a couple of girls decided to exhibit their fashionable pajamas (which, after all, are as modest a garment as has been invented) on Washington st. Very properly, they were hooted off the street. Very properly because the clothes were never intended to be worn on the street. Nor in a public dining room. Nor at a public dance. They are essentially intended for intimate and informal wear, not for public display. They won't last long over here because the American flapper, the city working girl or the small-town girl, who has never been taught how to dress properly, will vulgarize them to such an extent that girls with any sense of propriety won't have anything to do with them. The same thing happened to the hobble skirt and the sheath skirt of blessed memory. They were vulgarized to death.

A girl in an office or in a noon-time quick lunch wearing an afternoon or evening dress that sweeps the street is a ridiculous sight. A girl shopping on the city streets in a sports outfit only suitable for the country or seaside is equally ridiculous. Tennis clothes and bare arms and bare legs do not belong at the typewriter desk or behind the counter. Yet one sees them.

You can't blame the girls altogether. They want to be fashionable, as they imagine fashion to be. Our dress designers and manufacturers, in a frenzy of haste for novelties to fill out novelties till our fashions become a kaleidoscope of insanities, are primarily responsible for making our American girls look more like fools than they really are. There is too much talk about the indecencies of modern dress. As a matter of fact, it isn't indecent. It is only worn by the wrong people under the wrong circumstances. It is often unsuitable, fantastic, and—in the most literal sense of the word—improper.

OVER 4 INCHES FELL IN PAST 24 HOURS

Northeast Gale Adds to Havoc; New England Rivers Rise Almost to the Flood Levels

New England rivers rose to flood level, a large yacht broke loose from its mooring in Boston Harbor, roads were inundated, cellars flooded and much other damage was reported today in the worst rainstorm this section of the country has experienced in years.

The Boston rainfall for 24 hours ending at 8 a. m. today was 4.22 inches, the heaviest in seven years.

The yacht Primrose IV, owned by Frederick L. Ames, Boston sportsman, broke loose from her moorings off the seaplane ramp at East Boston airport during the night and drifted a mile across the harbor to South Boston.

She was headed for the steamship Northland when First Mate Foster of that ship rowed out and steered her to the other side of the wharf, avoiding a collision.

During the early morning hours a 50-mile northeast gale whipped across Boston harbor, doing considerable damage to craft.

The life saving patrol at City Point, South Boston, rescued the sloop "C421" which had dragged anchor and was drifting toward the Head House. She was towed to a point near Castle Island and anchored by the patrol.

The two-masted schooner yacht Narimova, which was adrift in the harbor, was saved from damage by a patrol boat crew from Coast Guard Base 8, East Boston.

The Connecticut river was rising rapidly in Springfield, being within one foot of the danger mark at 10 a. m. It had risen 4 feet, two inches during the previous 24 hours, the largest rise in the history of the river for such a period of time.

The Boston weather bureau said that much more rain will continue to fall in New England today, especially near the coast.

Somerville was hard hit by the deluge. Engine 3 pumped hundreds of gallons of rain from under the Medford st. bridge which spans the Boston & Maine railroad. Engine 4 pumped water from a warehouse in Clyde st.

SUFFERED HUNGER AMID FORTUNE IN RARE BOOKS

Mrs. Winifred Clarke, wife of Harold B. Clarke, who is in jail on a charge of larceny of rare books from the public library at Lancaster, often only had milk and corned beef to eat.

FIVE AND TEN

(This famous story has been made into a talking picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Marion Davies in the leading role.)

"IF I SHOULD die, Jennifer—"

"Mother. I can't bear it. You'll make me hysterical."

"If I should die, Jennifer, of which I haven't the slightest damnedest intention—"

"Then cut out the requiem mass."

"I want you to be a good girl . . ."

"And not smear my pinafores . . ."

"And do not smear your pinafores, and be good—and happy, Jennifer. I haven't been either. I'm rotten at moralizing, darling; I've never done much for you except love you and . . ."

"If you say that, I'll drown myself under eighty of these pink-satin pillows. If I'm a self, I've myself to blame. Myself, my own self, nobody but myself."

"As a miss, Jennifer, you are clever, beautiful, rich, and desirable. I want you to be good and happy. .I haven't been good and happy, Jennifer.

"If you don't stop it," cried Jennifer, taking a long strand of her mother's red-sun colored hair between her fingers, "I'll yank." She did, and as they fell together among the heaps of pillows the telephone, for the dozenth time that hour, began to crow.

Strange days for the Raricks. Family dinner three nights in succession, no guests, but Jenny at table in the kind of tea-gowns she affected, high at the neck, low laces or furs crowding about her wrists, the rather medieval effect blending with the sonorous splendor of the diningroom.

Ramon was on the high seas by now. On an ocean that sometime, somehow, she had hoped to sail with him. One swallowed the pain, grinding finger nails into tapestry. To have had a lover who could endure to be coveted by Emanuel Burnlap! Shame of that! To sit there quietly, lapped with the low surf of this small and lovely music, and only the wall of her sick flesh to conceal from Rarick what her heart knew.

Little man, you, Rarick, with his head slightly forward and his fingers forming a chapel. We are strangers to each other, even now, than if one of us and never been born. How like you to touch your finger tips that way. Lightly. Shyly. Without intensity. Little man, you.

He had changed so little in the amazing years. The same little map she had used to contemplate across the covers of the bed in the house in Westmoreland pl. in St. Louis.

How like him to pick for his close friend a man to whom an Eskimo bride was satisfaction! What was there about him, Rarick, that created the little area

The pretty red-haired Nova Scotian girl who married her childhood sweetheart, Herbert B. Clarke, when she thought he was a struggling young business man, is going to stick with him "all the way"—even though the way lies through prison gates.

So, Mrs. Winifred Clarke, former cloak model and wife of Herbert F. Clarke, held as a "book racketeer," declared emphatically as she sat in police headquarters while her husband was being grilled in connection with his alleged nation-wide operations in the theft of priceless books.

"He was my first love and my only love," Mrs. Clarke declared, her eyes swimming with tears. "I've loved him ever since I've known him and that's all my life.

"I don't believe this charge against him. I know he had some dealings with books but he told me he bought them, and I believe him."

They were married in New York, she said, after he had been graduated from a theological seminary in Chicago and she was made ing for artists and models.

"Money wasn't very plentiful, and I often worked when times were hard. We always stood together, and I'm certainly not going to fall him now," she said.

Mrs. Clarke said the "biggest shock of her life" came when two detectives accompanied her husband to the hotel where she awaited him, and questioned her regarding his alleged traffic in stolen books.

"I've never regretted marrying him, and I don't now," she declared. "He was never anything but wonderful to me.

"I'm going to help in his defense. I wired my sister in New York for money, and talked to my father in Nova Scotia on the telephone."

CANADA TRIPS YIELD VAST PROFITS

Single Load Nets $250,000; Specially-Built Cars Carry

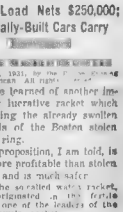
I have learned of another immensely lucrative racket which is swelling the already swollen bankrolls of the Boston stolen jewelry ring.

This proposition, I am told, is even more profitable than stolen jewelry and is much safer.

It is the so-called watch racket, which originated in the fertile mind of one of the leaders of the Boston jewelry racket.

It consists of smuggling into this country nothing more colorful than Swiss watch movements, but the business has grown to millions of dollars profit a year. The profits on one load I am told will run as high as $250,000 or more, and the watch movements are brought through from Canada, routed.



The business is organized on a nation-wide basis, the movements being shipped to all parts of the country, with Los Angeles the chief distributing point, on the coast.

Following the uncovering of a "fence" in New York who was found to have been doing business with the late Arnold Rothstein, the racket suffered a decline, but recently has started up again with renewed vigor.

NO DUTY IN CANADA

Swiss watch movements, I am told, come into Canada free of the heavy duty which is collected at United States ports of entry.

The movements can be purchased in Canada for from $1.15 to $1.65 each that is for one watch, according to my information. They can be smuggled here for $1.75 each up, so that the profit on the movements for one watch runs from $4 to $5.

Specially built automobiles are used to smuggle them into this country, the movements being packed in flat boxes which give forth no be raving rattle. The cars are cleverly built with the upholstery so arranged that the boxes are completely hidden, and time

DAILY TRUE STORY
OLD-FASHIONED

SHE WAS JUST AN OLD FASHIONED LADY

SHE HAD been christened Dorothy Florence, but she was such a fluffy little thing that no one ever thought of her as anything but "Dotsie." She grew up with that name and she grew old with it. Even that great big boy of hers, Gerald, never called her anything but "Dotsie." She was still "Dotsie" to the family, what there was left of it, but strangers spoke of her as "that queer mother of Gerald Deming's," or "poor, dear Helen Deming's affliction—that mother-in-law, you know."

When Mr. Deming died, she moved from her old home to the larger city where Gerald had made such a success. She occupied a sunny back bedroom in Gerald's house. "We can't have guests," Helen Deming used to say, "Mother Deming has the guest room."

Mr. Deming died at a most inopportune time for his family, leaving very little, but Gerald gave his mother an allowance. She spent most of it in "fixing up" her room. She did not care to sit around when "the children" had company. She said young people should be alone, so she spent most of her time there. She loved her room.

On the bed was a spread of point d'esprit with a big blue bow in the center. Ruffled shams covered the pillows and at the windows were ruffled curtains tied back with big blue bows. A large piece of wire netting adorned one wall and pinned over it to conceal the round holes were many old photos.

Two rocking chairs were in the room. Dotsie rocked incessantly. It annoyed the cook who could hear the creak, creak as she worked in the kitchen below.

"As if it wern't hard enough to keep a cook," Helen said to Gerald but Gerald only laughed.

Sometimes Dotsie would ask Helen a friend to come in for out a moment. She was very hospitable and would offer them pink taffy candy which she kept in a painted box on the table. She entertained them with anecdotes of Gerald's childhood.

Hard to Keep Cook
But Gerald Only Laughed

She did not know many people but often went to meetings and concerts and teas with Helen. At such times she dressed with great care. Her taffeta dress with tiny ruffles covered her slim figure, her feet were shod in little satin slippers, her hair done in crimpy waves, she spent hours with the curling iron, and on her head was a large lacy hat with one pink rose depending from it. Her eyes always looked stramed and red. Helen tried to make her change her style of dress, but there the usually pliant Dotsie was adamant.

"I may be old fashioned" she would say, "but I know what is becoming, and dear Mr. Deming used to say—Dotsie, never wear anything but large hats and ruffled dresses. If he were here he wouldn't want me to change."

At tea Dotsie would hang on to the edge of conversations. No one would talk directly to her. She was always smiling, nervously, and pretending to enjoy herself. She was lonely. Finally Helen would come to take her home.

At dinner that night Dotsie would tell Gerald about the party," and to Helen "Don't Mrs. White look lovely" and "I was a beautiful tea though of course, there were lots of strangers. Glad you had a good time Dotsie," Gerald would say. After dinner Dotsie would go to her room and the next day her eyes would be redder than ever.

Gerald and Helen were to give a party. It was to be in honor of the Governor and was an important to Gerad Helen said. She was much excited.

"If only Mother would let me dress her," she said to Gerald. "Why what's wrong with Dotsie's clothes," said Gerald, "she looks just like she always did."

"That's it," sighed Helen.

With trembling fingers, the night of the party Dotsie arrayed herself. Her hair in tiny crimps, a pink rose poised coquettishly just behind her ear, a very full black lace dress rippling over tiny satin slippers, she entered the room late. The Governor was already there. Helen saw her. Her heart sank. That pink rose!

The Governor happened to be looking toward the door as he stood talking to the important Mrs. Waite. In the midst of a sentence he stopped, his eyes widened, and leaving that matron entirely alone he hastened toward Dotsie.

"Dotsie Deming," he cried, so that every one heard him, "is it really you?"

Before the crowd could catch its breath, he kissed the frazed head and as she looked up at him and gave a breathless little laugh, he said. "You are the only one in the world who hasn't changed. Thank God for that!"

Dotsie's evening was a great success. The Governor had not changed either. Always was a big old bluffer who couldn't resist a petticoat. But it was nice to meet him again. And Mrs. Waite. Dotsie wondered if Helen had noticed how nice Mrs. Waite was to her. And Mrs. Johnson and others! Asked if they could call! She supposed they had forgotten the many times she had invited them. Perhaps at the next Art Club tea they would come up and talk to her. She would ask Helen if she could ask them to lunch some day. She would like to show them her room.

The next day her eyes were very red but as she bathed them with boric acid, she laughed happily. She had cried for joy last night.

HURLEY SAYS HE 'LOST HEAD' IN SHOOTING

GAVE O'BRIEN A CHANCE, HE TESTIFIES

Youth on Stand in Trial for the Murder of an Officer Says Policeman Fired First

If Paul Hurley fired the shots which killed Patrolman Joseph O'Brien, he did it "without thinking," the Roxbury youth testified today in his trial for the murder of the Brookline policeman. Hurley was on the stand in the opening of his own defense.

"I told him to put up his hands. I heard two shots and my hat was knocked from my hand by a bullet.

"I didn't have any notion of shooting him. I intended the whole thing as a bluff to keep him from arresting me.

"But he fired first, and I lost my head."

Writhing under the questioning of his own attorney, young Hurley pictured the encounter with the officer substantially as the same Thomas G. Healey, his companion on the fatal night, had outlined the shooting yesterday as a state witness.

STARTED TO MOVE AWAY.

During his testimony Hurley fidgeted nervously in his chair, wiped his forehead continually with his crumpled handkerchief and answered queries in tones often inaudible in the jury box.

"Both of us were moving all during the shooting. After he frisked Healey, I started to move away and O'Brien followed me. I had my hand on my gun in my pocket and I covered him as he started to frisk me. I gave him a chance. I told him to put up his hands."

In attempting to evade O'Brien's searching hands, Hurley said, he stumbled over the curb. The bullet which struck Albert W. Daniels, in whose car the officer had trailed Hurley and Healey, might have come from an accidental explosion of his gun as he fell, Hurley said.

BULLET HOLES IN HAT

Once during the questioning Hurley left the stand, at the request of his attorney, and exhibited his hat, punctured by two bullet holes, to the jury. He donned the hat and walked in halting fashion along the jury box, then hurried back to his chair.

Again he was asked about the shooting.

"As O'Brien tried to frisk you, who fired?" Atty. Gallagher asked.

Hurley mopped his forehead again, shook his head, and said:

WATCH RACKET REVEALED

after time have baffled the keenness of Customs men who hold up the machines to search for drugs.

I am told that from 50,000 to 75,000 movements can be brought to Boston from Montreal in one load, so that the tremendous profits are apparent.

Once safely stored in Boston, the movements are prepared for shipment to other sections of the country in camouflaged packages. At one time they were shipped to New York as pottery, but the "fence" was uncovered, through the medium of some stolen rugs, and the pottery camouflage was discontinued. I don't know what system is being used now, but I am informed the watch movements are being shipped to key cities throughout the country under the guise of legitimate merchandise.

GET RICH QUICKLY

Seldom is the traffic interfered with by the authorities, with the result that members of the Boston ring with their allies in other cities, are fast becoming rich on this racket alone. Taken in conjunction with stolen jewelry it is said to be a gold mine.

As I have said, Los Angeles is a distributing point for the Pacific Coast in the watch racket. It is also a dumping ground for stolen jewelry which for various reasons the local ring does not dare handle here. Hollywood is one of the best jewelry markets in the world and Los Angeles is therefore a regular stop in the itinerary of a leading member of the Boston stolen jewelry racket.

Valuable stones can usually be disposed of to movie players, and the various motion picture companies are always in the market for antique or period jewelry.

The Masked Reporter will make further revelations tomorrow.

$5 Excursion to N. Y. by Fall River Line

Another $5 excursion to New York, this time over the Fall River Boat Line, is offered the coming week-end by the New Haven Railroad. To provide additional enjoyment smooth, roomy dance floors have been installed on the steamers.

The boat train leaves Saturday at 5 p. m. (E. S. T.), connecting directly with the Fall River boat which arrives in New York early Sunday morning. Returning, the boat leaves Pier 14, North River, New York, at 4 30 p. m.

BOMB ROUTS 3 FAMILIES

Three North End families were saved from death early today by the heavy torrents of rain which reduced the effect of a crudely fashioned bomb which exploded in the doorway of their home at 46 North Bennet st.

The explosion aroused all occupants, but caused only slight damage to the doorway. Muni Marcella, 28, an occupant of the second floor, doused the smouldering death missile with a bucket of water.

Joseph Marcella, a building contractor, who lives on the second floor, told police he believes some disgruntled job seeker might have placed the bomb. He said he has had many requests for work, but has not been able to hire many men.

The bomb was crudely fashioned from a cardboard box about six inches long and three inches wide.

SENATE BLOCKS RAIL CONTROL STUDY

House Powerless to Push Ely Plan for Special Investigation

Rejection by the Legislature of Governor Ely's recommendation for creation of a special commission to continue the study of acquisition of Boston & Maine and New Haven stock by the Pennsylvania railroad loomed today on Beacon Hill.

The Senate is blocking action on the recommendation by refusing to concur with the House in referring the message to the joint rules committee.

HOSTILE TO COMMISSION

It is no secret that the upper branch leaders are hostile to the special commission idea, believing that a further checkup on the Pennsylvania's activities can be made by some State agency such as the public utilities commission.

It has been learned also that some influential Senate members are not unfriendly to the Pennsylvania holdings and disagree with railroad heads, the governors' railroad committee and the legislative committee on transportation, in their stand for local control of New England roads.

SEES NO MENACE

This group takes the stand that there is nothing alarming in Pennsylvania control or in any trunk line coming in. The New York Central lease of the Boston & Albany, they argue, has not worked to the disadvantage of Massachusetts.

Because of a change made by the last constitutional convention, it is not possible for the House to adopt an order to continue the investigation without members of the Senate being included in the commission. This method of solving the deadlock, it is pointed out, is therefore blocked.

Governor Ely, when informed of the situation, made no comment other than to say that he intends soon to call a special meeting of the New England governors to discuss the railroad problem.

Kellogg's RICE KRISPIES

COUNTLESS children are now disappointed if their cereal doesn't pop and snap in milk or cream. And that's why many mothers always get genuine Kellogg's Rice Krispies — the cereal that actually crackles.

Nourishing, toasted rice grains. That's Rice Krispies. Crunchy crisp. Crammed with the flavor of rich, fluffy rice.

Serve for breakfast. Add fruits or honey for lunch. Great for nursery suppers — or to accompany the afternoon glass of milk. Just the treat for a late bedtime snack. Healthful and easy to digest.

Use Rice Krispies in cookery too. Make crisp macaroons, candies. Butter and serve like pop corn. Use for ice-cream sundaes.

SCHOOLS NEED FIRE ESCAPES

Three more Boston public schools that need fire escapes immediately are revealed by the Boston Evening American in its survey for more and better school accommodations.

They are Richard C. Humphries and the Old Edward Everett schools in Dorchester and the Dillaway school in Roxbury.

The Humphries school is a three-story brick structure at the junction of Sumner and Willis sts. It was built 55 years ago. The stairways are of wood. This school contains 600 pupils in grades ranging from kindergarten to sixth.

Separated from the Humphries school by a playground is the Old Edward Everett school on Willis st. This obsolete building was erected 76 years ago.

It is a two-story structure, built entirely of wood and has wooden stairways. Two hundred and thirty young children attending grades one to three are housed in this school. Not only does the building need fire escapes, but a complete new system of lavatories.

The Dillaway school on Kenilworth st., near Dudley st., was built 55 years ago. It contains 341 pupils in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades, as well as two special classes. [illegible] wooden stairways. It also has the obsolete latrine system of sanitation.

In the last batch of the City Record bids were called for to construct fire escapes on the Dillaway school. These bids will close June 24. The specifications call for two iron fire escapes. It is expected the job will cost in the vicinity of $6000.

The schoolhouse commission is considering the addition of fire escapes to both the Humphries and Old Edward Everett schools in the near future.

WHO SAID CHIVALRY WAS DEAD? NOT 'TEX'

Chivalry still rules part of the roost in Europe. When Texas Guinan, American night club queen, was barred with her troupe of performers from England and France, Harry Aslett offered to marry Texas so that she could enter England. He even went so far as to say Texas could divorce him, but the night club queen turned down the offer. (Int'l photo.)

Marry-Go-Round

THE OPTIMISTIC DREAM OF A HOPEFUL WOMAN

By HELEN ROWLAND

I AM a trustful, hopeful woman, and I believe—oh, I DO believe!—

That, some day, marriage will cease to be a matter of chance—and will become a matter of intelligent choice.

That, some day, someone will evolve a "standard fashion" for women—and that the women will STICK to it.

* * *

That, some day, a man will cease trying to "conquer" the woman he loves—and will begin trying to understand her.

That, some day, the scientists will stop inventing T. N. T. and poison gas, and things like that—and will invent a collar button that does not leave a red spot in the back of a man's neck; a face-powder that will stick to a woman's nose, through thick and thin; and a porcelain tooth that does not look like a tombstone in the graveyard of beauty.

HELEN ROWLAND.

That, some day, the great discoverers will stop trying to find new and useless ice-fields and that SOMEBODY will discover—

A man who will tell the WHOLE truth to a woman—and a woman who can stand hearing it.

A woman who would rather be called "intelligent" than "pretty"—and a man who would rather have her that way.

A man who actually WANTS to get married and is conscious of it—and a woman who honestly does NOT want to marry.

A "violet perfume" that smells like VIOLETS—and a motor car that will do more than the salesman claimed it would.

* * * *

A man whose "conscience" works BEFORE the kiss—and a woman who knows when love is done.

A woman who can be trusted not to open a package marked "Not to be opened until, etc."—and a man who can be trusted to mail a letter.

A bachelor who does not "know more about women" than a married man—and a girl of sixteen who does not know more about "life" than a widow of forty.

A reducing diet that does not reduce life to a hideous penance and a philosophy that will not fail you at the vital and critical moment.

Oh yes—and a patent "cooker" that will COOK; a patent "lighter" that will light; a pencil sharpener that will work—and a "permanent wave" that is permanent!

Lorry Asks Delight to Marry Him

"Oh, be honest with me, Lorry! Isn't that the most important thing we have left to give each other?"

But she flushed as she said it. For she had not given him honesty. Not yet, and thought, fleetingly and rather tragically, that if he denied accusations she might close her eyes to everything else and try to believe him, and so forget her own integrity.

"No," said Lorrimer finally "I don't love you, Delight. I loved the girl you were, a long time ago, and then, as you have said, her memory."

"And since then," she probed, with a sharp stab of authentic jealousy which she was unable to conquer, "since then, you've loved the understudy of that memory, have you not?"

He did not answer. How much was real, how much a part? The question had tormented him for hours; would continue to do so he thought, until he died. Did he love Mary Lou, the girl herself, the girl who had become suddenly and dramatically, a stranger?

"I don't know," he answered, miserably.

Delight watched him. There was pity in her eyes and a sort of cynical resignation.

"Why not?" she asked him. "Come, Lorry; let's be perfectly frank. When you saw Mary Lou again and thought her Delight Harford you, I suppose, experienced no abrupt alteration, in your emotions, I mean. You couldn't go on loving her as me; could you go on loving her, as herself?"

He said slowly:

"How much of that girl did I know, Delight? How much of her was Mary Lou Thurston and how much a very clever little actress playing the part of Delight Harford as she conceived it."

"She'll have to tell you that," Delight answered.

"I'm not likely ever to see her again," he told her.

Delight raised one eyebrow and shrugged her round shoulders under the lace and chiffon of the little bedjacket.

"No? That wasn't the impression your mother and Doctor Mathews gave me," he said.

"Why should I see her," he asked violently, "with all that there has been between—me?" he stopped, and said abruptly, almost formally, "I fancy she would rather I didn't see her. The situation is, after all, almost fantastic.

"So, will you marry me, Delight? You have asked me if I love you, and I answered you honestly. It won't take you to care for me; I know that you do not. But—do you care for anyone else?"

"I might ask you that," she murmured; "in fact, I have! No, Lorry."

"Then—will you marry me?" he asked again. "We loved each other once, don't have, I think, something to build on. I—do you know," he said, and stopped to smile at her, in a sudden, whimsical astonishment, "I am really very fond of you, Delight. I just found that out! I think perhaps I could make you happy. At all events I could take you away from a lot of things which I don't believe you like very much, and do my damndest to make you a good husband. I don't suppose I'm offering much."

"Too much," she answered, after a pause. "You'll have to let me think it over. I'm not going to rush you—or myself—into something we might regret. There's your mother to reckon with, too. No, I won't answer you now. But will you do something for me, Lorry?"

He rose and looked down on her.

"Anything," he told her, conscious of a sense of relief, of reprieve, for which he hated himself.

"Then get hold of that press agent lad. I want to talk to him."

"Larry Mitchell? Of course. It won't be hard. He's probably at the Wynnes' now."

"Wynnes'?"

"Neighbors of ours. Mitchell is engaged to the daughter."

"Oh, yes, I remember. A young man in love. He was the perfect picture of that touching state. Well, get him for me if you can; I want to ask him something."

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

Dr. Copeland

He shows the mother or father pacing the floor and madly pressing for the cause of baby's woe.

Such pictures speak the truth even though they are considerably exaggerated. It often rates they teach a lesson which can be applied today.

A child should not be allowed to develop habits of crying. Many times it is not the child's fault that he cries. If the baby is lonely, wakens often, there is reason for it. The thing is to find the cause and correct it.

Worn out by the day's play and cold, or too warm. Some thing may be annoying it, misplaced pin or wrinkled clothing.

Make a careful examination before leaving the child to sleep at night. Make sure it is not lying in a cramped position.

If the child is restless it may be because the diaper is too tight. Make the necessary adjustments, but do not take the child from the crib. Don't provide material for the proverbial cartoon by treating the parent as he walks the floor.

The child's bedroom, just as the adult's room, should have plenty of fresh air. The room should be quiet. No light should shine on the baby's eyes. The crib should be well covered and protected from draught.

When the baby is cross, cries at night and not sleeping well, a cool bath or a warm one, depending upon the weather, will promote sleep. During the summer months, a tub bath just before bedtime will give relief.

As a rule, most young mothers are anxious. They hate to leave the child alone. Please remember, that if the baby has been properly fed and diapered, if the room is properly adjusted, the windows and lights taken care of, the child may be and should be left alone.

Permit the child to go to sleep by itself. Never go back merely because it cries. Once you do so the child will expect it of you and will cry again.

Sea Shore Costumes Are Chic

By PARIS BUREAU

PARIS, June 10—All we need to make us beach-pajama conscious is a dash of warm weather and the wherewithal for a seashore vacation. They send us headlong into the sea of waterside and nautical fashions.

All the houses are in the conspiracy to put us into beach costumes as quickly and as nicely as possible, with the result that this year's crop of beach pajamas and ensembles is better looking than ever.

Clever color contrasts, and vivid color are used with happy results and most models eschew all hint of the bizarre and yet manage to be strikingly original and unique.

The noble order of beachcombers should draft several new members this season, for the new beach costumes are most wearable, cool, comfortable and good looking, a fine combination as we see other types of costumes, but one while in clever alliance is one of the best color bets.

From Captain Molyneux's smart collection comes the beach pajama with a very clever hat as an added attraction. Red jaspard dotted in white makes both pajamas and turban, the latter corded to form a pointed crown with a scarf edge tied closely round the head and knotted over one eyebrow.

Over this is slipped a stiffly starched and wired brim of white linen, extremely wide at the front and sides, but cut away to within a few inches of the head and at the nape. The brim is easily adjusted on the turban and slips off just as easily.

Miss Fairfax Tells Her to Help Boy

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going with a boy for a year. He says he will do anything just to prove his love. Now, Miss Fairfax, will you please advise me what to ask him to do for me? Please don't tell me that the only way a man can prove his love is by asking a girl to be his wife, for we can't do that as we are both too young.

SYLVIA.

Dear Sylvia: "In days of old," as the ballad begins, men did all sorts of things to prove their love—some of them extremely absurd and foolhardy. They fought duels on horseback and killed each other just to prove how smitten they were with some lady looking down from her tower. We're a trace more intelligent today, though sometimes it's barely perceptible. And now, Sylvia, if you want the young man to do something for you, why not be unselfish and get him to do something for himself also—something for both of you if you should ever sign up for life? To succeed in this, a young man must have some special skill or knowledge. Why not urge this boy to go in for some course of special study that will help swell his pay envelope? Some good courses may be had through correspondence schools, and night schools have turned out many creditable students.

Wear Wraps to Ballroom

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it correct to go from your room at a hotel where the banquet is given to the ballroom without a wrap? E. M. P.

No. It is best to wear your wrap.

Often It Makes Good Conversation

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Please tell me your opinion of the following: A woman I have known for over 20 years has several old-time friends for dinner. Must pictures a society affair. Just a make yourself at home. It so happened a few of them there that they could be themselves, and, as they see each other almost every day, they did not feel they must stand on ceremony. One of the women picked up a magazine and glanced through it. Another woman has since made slighting remarks that the one that picked up the magazine was rude. I have found to do such a thing. Of course Mrs. Beeckman, if the affair had been a dinner where strangers were present, or if the persons present did not see each other so often, I think you would not have looked through the magazine. She was not taking part in the conversation at the time and, thinking she was unobserved, she looked through the book. Was she terribly impolite?

READER.

To criticize this woman for doing such a small thing is hardly indeed to make a mountain out of a molehill. At an informal party of this kind there wasn't any reason why she shouldn't have looked through a magazine if she wished, and if she didn't do it too long. People often do this and make good conversation of what they see in the magazine. Just as they look at the pictures in a home or at the books in the library.

NEW QUIRKS IN MAKING CAKES

By MARTHA LEE

Taken from Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB.

I'M SO thankful every time that I'm introduced to a new cake recipe because so many of you write me asking if there is anything novel in the cake world.

Martha Lee

Today I have for you some small queen cakes, an ice cream layer cake and a new checkerboard cake recipe, all of which I hope you will like. Firstly, the queen cakes.

QUEEN CAKES

½ cup butter
½ cup sugar
3 unbeaten eggs
3 cups cake or pastry flour
1 tsp. salt
3 tsps. baking powder
½ cup milk, or a little more
2 oz. very finely chopped candied fruit peel
2 tbsps. finely ground blanched almonds
1 cup white sultana raisins, washed and plumped in a little boiling water.

Cream the butter, then add the sugar and beat until fluffy, then add the eggs, unbeaten, one at a time, beating each one in thoroughly. Sift flour with the salt and baking powder and add alternately with the milk. The batter should be quite stiff. Last of all, add the chopped fruit peel and the ground nuts and raisins. Bake in deep small muffin tins and ice the tops to suit your taste.

ICE CREAM LAYER CAKE

1 cup softened shortening.
1 cup granulated sugar.
4 unbeaten eggs
2 cups sifted cake flour.
Grated yellow rind of one lemon.

RATE RAISING FOR CARRIERS DIFFICULT

By FRANK H. MELOON

Those who predicted rate raises for the carriers would be in effect by July 1 belong in the class with those who thought it would take only a couple of months to put through the railroad consolidation plans, now standing somewhere on a sidetrack. Traffic officers of the railroads approved the idea of a rate increase adding their voices to those of Eastern executives.

* * *

A news dispatch quaintly adds "Discussion of the proposition, however, developed a conflict of views as to which traffic should bear the increased rates necessary to restore credit and service of the railroads."

Horace Bowker

Some carriers have the bulk of their business in coal, some in automobiles, some in still other commodities. Obviously an advance in coal rates would not, for example, benefit the automobile carrier, or vice versa. It will take a while to thrash out the rate increases according to individual requirements.

Presidents Horace Bowker of the American Agricultural Chemical Co., is the latest to take a flier at Farm Board methods. He says:

"Farming is a good business. When properly managed, few other industries will, over a five to ten-year period, pay a sounder profit on a given investment of time, money and brains. But my contact with farmers leads me to this inescapable conclusion:

"You cannot legislate prosperity to the farmer; you cannot subsidize prosperity; you cannot bring it about by artificial means, much as we might like to do so.

What President Bowker has to say paraphrases the comment in this column when the Farm Board experiment was launched. There is no substitute for the efficiency of the individual.

A recent study shows there are more than 2,000,000 customer owners of public utilities in the United States. The movement for customer ownership saw its beginning in Cambridge about 20 years ago. There, in connection with a split in Edison shares in Boston in 1929 which would have placed the price within reach of the average customer, but it was blocked at the State House.

* * *

With public utility enterprises owned by customers in such extensive degree as they are in this country, the customers would have an opportunity to see that management was what it ought to be and a tight rein could be kept on mismanagement.

Rhode Island Finance Commissioner Peck suggests that Farm Board donate its wheat holdings to federal and state institutions supported by taxation. Giving 200,000,000 to 250,000,000 bushels of wheat to taxpayers he declares is a "logical and efficient means of getting the government out of the grain business and restoring trade confidence in the markets."

* * *

If Mr. Peck's idea were carried out, how many would know what to do with the wheat aside from feeding it to cattle, pigs or poultry? Not many in New England would know how to convert wheat into flour, a process practically everyone here knew much of a century ago. The grain mills of Colonial days are now recalled only by tablets placed by historical societies on neglected dams like that near Fore River and the great Edison plant at Weymouth. Great industries drive out the small. Sometimes the industrial law appears to be the survival of the largest.

President Frank D Comerford of the New England Power Assn., just returned from overseas, is not impressed by Soviet progress. He says:

"The effect of the Russian economic plans on the rest of Europe is greatly exaggerated. Just now, with the whole world suffering from an over production, the small amount dumped by Russia is of course unfortunate. Under normal conditions it would not be noticed. Her inefficiency is so obvious that it will not, except perhaps generations, before Russia can compete in any industry that requires skilled labor or individual initiative."

Copper Is Sold at 8 Cents, Old Low

New York, June 10 (AP)—Copper again has sold at 8 cents a pound, delivered, in the domestic market, equaling the record low price established last week. Amount of metal changing hands is reported small.

New York, June 10 (AP)—A gain of 12,800 barrels in the country's crude oil output for last week was due largely to an increased flow in Oklahoma.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

New York Central's declaration of the regular dividend was the outstanding spot affecting today's market, in a quick $4 spurt. Central carried upward a number of the railroad favorites to an extent that brought profit-taking. The market headed higher at the finish.

Steel and "Can" Now Well Apart

Recently it was considered noteworthy when U. S. Steel and American Can moved all the same price, four above $100 a share. Today saw Steel traded under $88 and Can above $101. First reports of 'ex-bear' buying of American Can came when the stock was higher than it today.

United Shoe Pays Regular Dividends

United Shoe Company sold fractionally above its years low today, but declared its regular dividends on both the common and preferred. The latter advanced fractionally.

Steel Tonnage Off Less Than Expected

The "Street" expected U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage to show a drop of 500,000 tons. The actual figure was 277,277. Trading in "Big Steel" was quiet as this report was awaited to-day, but improved later.

Pennsy Loadings for Week Larger

Pennsylvania Railway today sold fractionally lower along with announcement that the car in the week ended June 6 handled 121,452 cars, against 112,574 in previous week and 147,217 last year. From Jan 1 cars totaled 2 671 817, against 3 249,335.

Dividend Resumed by Re-insurance

Dividend resumptions are rare news of late. It was announced today that at directors' meeting of International Re-Insurance Corp the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents was declared for the first quarter. This was deferred in January. In addition, the regular quarterly dividend for the second quarter was ordered. Both dividends are due July 1 to stock of record June 25.

Columbia Pictures Are Not in Merger

Despite merger rumors which took Columbia Pictures sharply up to the showing of the previous quarter, net for the full year was disappointing, at $3.57 on a share. This would compare with $5.85 a year ago on the present basis. Hence, it would be the second most profitable year in the company's history.

Some Low-Priced Oils Are in Favor

Low-priced oils are coming into more favor in some speculative quarters, although thus far there has been no evidence of any attempt to stage demonstrations in these shares. Something may happen in the future, however, if the market holds steady to firm. The theory is spreading that many of the low-priced oils will benefit from mergers, because it is the growing belief that one of the solutions of the oil problems is the concentration and direction of affairs in fewer hands.

Picking Up of Loew's Noted

Loew's, like other amusement shares, has been affected by a declining trend of earnings in the industry, due to unemployment and other factors, but the company has done comparatively better than many others. As a result, some interests identified with the amusement industry have been quietly picking up the stock at times during reactions in the general list. They believe that when a definite turn in Loew's will be the outstanding leader of the group.

Raybestos Meets Gain in Sales

Increases in sales have been reported by interests close to Raybestos-Manhattan. The volume showed a 10 per cent increase in May over the preceding month, and June thus far has been also satisfactory. About 55 per cent of the company's business is with the automobile industry and it is among customers in this branch right along. The remaining 45 per cent is controlled by the operations of Manhattan Rubber, which does a good business with miscellaneous manufacturing concerns.

United Biscuit's Dividend Covered

United Biscuit, with 15 bakeries and 40 warehouses, has done well in the past. Last year net income was $4.04 a share, compared with $4.39 in 1929. The point is made by the market interested that the current annual dividend rate of $2 a share is being amply covered, and the attitude of the management toward the future is reflected accurately by the action taken a few months ago when the dividend rate was raised from $1.60 a share to $2.

American Chicle's Cost Reduced

American Chicle's results since the beginning of the current year have not reflected the adverse business conditions in other lines. Reporting in income is said were offset by curtailment in expenses, and in the first quarter net at $7 cents a share, 27c more than in excess of the same period of 1930. The company has been aided to this showing by lowering of costs in its raw materials, and this will be advantageous in the future, when the benefits of cuts in prices will be continued and reflected in net results.

Market Sentiment on Union Carbide

Few stocks are being subjected to such sharply divergent reports as is Union Carbide. On the one hand, there is persistent talk to the effect that stocks are accumulating the stock and that one of the big bears had definitely resumed a bull position. Against this is the knowledge that persistent selling of this stock is coming from very active speculative interests.

Kennecott and Copper Situation

It is not at all unreasonable to accept Kennecott stock's action as reflecting the trend of events in the entire copper situation.

BUTLER MILLS GET FRESH CAPITAL

A plan of reorganization of Associated Textile Companies is being evolved, whereby this holding company, in which former U. S. Senator William M. Butler is largely interested, and constituent companies will be linked together more closely.

A minimum of $1,000,000 new capital for the new organization is already assured. Stockholders of the various companies will consider the plan at special meetings to be held June 24 and 25.

At present Associated Textile Companies owns all the common stock of the Butler Mills of North Adams, and New Bedford Cotton Mills Corporation, and substantially all the common stock of Butler Mill of New Bedford. Under the plan, these three constituent companies will be consolidated into a new company, whose common stock is now held by the associated.

There are at present preferred stocks in the constituent companies outstanding in the hands of the public. These stockholders will receive, they say, $6 non-cumulative preferred stock of Associated Textile Companies, a holding company, for their stock, and a share of 5% cumulative preferred stock of the new consolidated company, in which they will receive $1 in cash, $53 paid in cash, plus .42 of a share of present preferred 1.42 shares of preferred stock of the new company.

William M. Butler, who is president of each of the constituent companies, states:

"Marked signs of improvement in industry (line cotton goods) have been apparent in some recent months, and, if the improvement crystallizes and continues, the business should be back on a paying basis."

STOCK PRICES ARE MIXED IN BOSTON

Stock prices were mixed in dull days dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange. Changes ranged from fractions to 2 points or more. Allies & Fisher dipped fractionally to a new low for the year.

American Woolen preferred was an active leader on the upside, gaining 1%; Hathaway preferred and 2 points higher. Atchison advanced a point and American Telephone was around a point higher.

Edison receded 2 points. Losses of a point or more were shown for Chandler, Jackson preferred, Hygrade Lamp, Torrington and United Fruit.

Walter A. Trumbull, former partner in Kidder, Peabody & Co., is now associated with R. L. Pierce & Co. in the Boston office.

Copper sold at eight cents a pound delivered in the domestic market. Amount of metal changing hands is small. Price of eight cents a pound equals the record low made for copper last week.

STEEL REPORTS DECREASE

New York, June 10 (AP) Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corp. decreased 277,277 tons in May to a total of 3,820,482 tons on May 31. In April a decrease of 87,801 tons was reported.

The backlog as of April 30 was 3,797,705 tons. In March 311,506 tons filled orders aggregated 3,909,336 tons, against 3,965,194 tons on February 28. In January a decrease of 4,059,227 tons.

Unofficial estimates of the decrease ranged from 250,000 to 300,000 tons. A decline during May is seasonal. Since 1920 there have been only the drop for that month has averaged about 350,000 tons. In May, 1930, unfilled orders declined 294,993 tons.

The steel corporation's operations fell off greatly last month and new buying was down to an even larger extent. Specifications calling for deliveries on previously contracted tracts kept the mills working beyond the requirements of incoming business, which is believed to be running light thus far into June because of the cautiousness of buyers.

Business Defaults Smaller for Week

Business defaults this week, a holiday week, as reported to Bradstreet's, were smaller than any week since November last. A decrease of 16.5 per cent was shown from the preceding week and of 3.5 per cent from the like week last year.

Business with a capital of $5000 or less aggregated 76.4 per cent of the total number failing, comparing with 80.3 per cent the preceding week.

Industrial Bonds Move Up Slightly

New York, June 10—Unusual interest marked the bond market today. Industrial liens staged a general, if modest, advance, but the volume of trading was narrow. Foreign obligations were more active than industrial issues, but the trend in them was uncertain.

LIGHT SUMMER STEEL WORK EXPECTED

New York, June 10 (AP)—Expect that operations in the steel industry might fall below the summer low anticipated by many was suggested today by the weekly review.

The Iron Age said raw steel production declined 2 points to 40 per cent in the last week, due principally to the slackened demand from the automobile industry. Motor car manufacture, it stated, appears to be headed for a low operating rate in July, with a consequence of suspensions such as occurred a year ago a possibility, although improvement in business sentiment may change the outlook.

"Steel," reporting operations were on the verge of breaking through the 40 per cent rate regarded as the summer minimum, said it was not illogical to expect moderate further recession in view of ebbing of automobile and railroad demand.

Both reviews agreed no important gains might be expected in the near future. Iron Age said a reasonable possibility of a revival lay in the coal strike which so far has been limited to a few mines in West Virginia and western Pennsylvania.

It recalled that a strike in the same region came at the turning point of the 1922 depression, driving prices of coke, pig iron and finished steel. So far the coal trouble has virtually no effect in any markets.

CURB MARKET LEADERS UP

New York, June 10 Curb stocks successfully overcame early reactionary tendencies today, and under the impetus of an aggressive buying wave in the final hour, the market forged ahead to within reach of their best levels of the current week.

The utility group showed up particularly well in the late dealings, with a broad covering adding momentum to the upturn in the list. American Gas and Electric was a feature with an advance of close to 2 points.

Oils were again prominent on the tally with Standard of Ohio and a comparative newcomer, featuring the drive with a gain of 3 points.

United Corporation continued to display a soggy tone. Deere featured the specialty list with a spurt of more than 4 points to a new high on the movement.

Insull Utility Investments made a strong comeback in the investment trust group with a gain of 2¼ points. Tri-Utilities Corporation continued under pressure, sinking 2 points to an altogether low at 4. This compares with last week's high at 15, and with the high for the year around 20.

CENTRAL PAYS ITS REGULAR

New York, June 10 (AP)—Directors of New York Central Railroad, contrary to expectations in many quarters in Wall Street, today declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50, payable Aug. 1 to stockholders of record June 26.

Expectations in some sections of the financial district had been that the dividend would be again reduced, this time to a $5 annual basis from the $6 rate which was established March 11 last, when the rate was reduced from $8.

St. Regis Paper's Dividend Reduced

New York, June 10 (AP)—Directors of St. Regis Paper Co. reduced the annual dividend basis on the common stock to 60 cents from $1 by declaring a quarterly payment of 15 cents a share, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 15.

ACTIVE STOCKS RISE 1 TO 5 POINTS

New York, June 10—Uncertainty which had hung over Wall Street in the earlier hours of trading today was dispelled during the afternoon, and prices turned upward under short covering. Net gains in active stocks fell in a 1 to 5 point range.

Decision on the regular New York Central dividend again expected to be made tomorrow, or another reduction cleared away part of the unsettlement and the disclosure that the drop in Ford Sales a unified tonnage during May was no worse than had been estimated gave a better tone.

SALES ARE 1,300,000.

Bonds were generally firm featured by a sharp recovery in Italians and a better demand for domestic industrials.

Trading in stocks was largely professional. Public participation in the market has not yet made itself felt and brokerage houses report that investors are still on the sidelines. Sales dropped under 2,000,000 shares.

New York Central prominent on the rally closed 4 points higher and pulled other rails up part of the way. Baltimore & Ohio, New Haven and Southern Pacific gained 2 to 3.

U. S. Steel, with a decrease of 75 net was in a large group that showed improvement of 2 to 3 points.

American Telephone was up 1¼.

AT ALASKA JUNEAU MEET

Allied Chemical, National Lead, McKeesport Tin Plate and Eastman Kodak rallied 8 and Western Union 5. Alaska Juneau was heavily sold in the late trading losing 4 points.

Payments of a dividend cut by New York Central to either a $5 or a $4 annual basis were confounded before the market session was half an hour old. There has been reports of disagreement among the directors as to what action should be taken and the prompt announcement of the cut was far naturally led to a quick scurry to cover among the shorts.

Central of Georgia 1st quarter resulted in a small deficit but the second three months are expected to make a much better showing. May net is estimated at something more than $200,000 partly reflecting payment of the extra dividend by Pittsburgh & Lake Erie.

Decrease of 277,277 tons in the backlog of the steel corporation was under the average May decline for the past seven years and in the face of unfilled orders on the company's books at about 3,800,000 tons.

Needs of the automobile manufacturers apparently hold the key to the steel industry's position for the near future. Other users are maintaining a fairly steady demand, according to trade circles. "Iron Trade Age" estimated the steel ingot production average for the entire country at 40 per cent against 40 per cent a week ago.

Commonwealth's Net Shows Gain

American Commonwealth Power Corporation, in its annual report for 1930, shows net income of $13,418,350 as compared with $11,722,833 in the preceding year, an increase of $2,006,842.

Gross revenues during 1930 increased from $25,596,048 to $27,997,428. The 1930 report does not include gross or net income from Dominion Gas & Electric acquired May 31, 1930.

During the year sales of manufactured gas rose from 12,841,166,000 cubic feet to 13,263,850,000 cubic feet, while electric sales increased from 148,327,475 kilowatt hours to 161,861,958 kilowatt hours.

Cotton Higher in New York Market

New York, June 10—Cotton futures today closed 15 to 18 points higher. July $.08 bid, October $.07. December $.07 to $.08, January $.07, March $.05 May $.07, Spot steady, middling $.05.

Rockport Bonds are Awarded in Boston

Rockport awarded to Atlantic Corporation at 100.677 for 5½ per cent water bond dated June 1 and maturing 1932 to 1940. Other bidders were Faxon, Gade & Co., 100.61 and E. F. Moseley & Co., 100.26.

Puget Sound Power Notes Are Called

Holders of Puget Sound Power & Light Co. seven per cent 5-year secured gold notes due Feb 1, 1932 are being notified that all outstanding notes are called for redemption and will be paid Aug 1, 1931, at par and interest accrued.

Sachs Is President of National Transit

Closing Is Mixed in Chicago Market

Chicago, June 10 (AP)—Wheat today closed mixed, ¾ cents off to 3/8 up corn unchanged to ¼ lower; oats ¾-¼ down, and provisions unchanged to 3 cents advance.

American Encaustic Acquires Company

FANNING

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Young Heavies Loom. Retzlaff and Hamas. Sirutis and Poreda. ↑ Looking Them Over. Max Is Autocratic. Walther Is Barred. ↓

"Fightah! Watch Your Dawgs!" Warns Joe

But a flock of youngsters should receive a boost,
Retzlaff and Steve Hamas, Stan Poreda, too,
Bold Yustin Sirutis—he's from N. Y. U.
Jeanette, who trains Poreda, on the Jersey bogs,
Fightah! Watch yoh puppies! Let me, Stan, repeat,

THE WISE GUYS of the Cauliflower Patch are turning the binoculars on the youngsters of the game. The tyro of today is the champion of tomorrow. Sharkey, the world's best heavyweight, is getting along into fistic years. Prosperity is softening him up. Schmeling came too fast and his development has been retarded by conditions. Stribling is slipping past the peak. Carnera is not of the type that lasts. Schaaf seems to lack the electric spark that separates the superior from the mediocre. Two, three, four years from now there will be an entirely different crop of heavyweights. Who are they? Where will they come from?

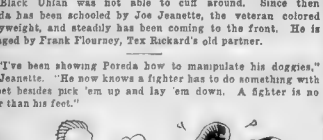
Retzlaff is the young Duluth Dutchman who knocked out Tom Heeney and gave Johnny Risko a terrific shellacing. Charlie also rocked Jack Gagnon and Tiny De Bolt, a sparring partner of Max Schmeling, to sleep. Jack Hurley, who brought Billy Petrolle to the front, is piloting Retzlaff, and seems to be bringing him along steadily.

STANLEY POREDA is the Jersey lad who jumped into fistic prominence through the form he showed in sparring bouts with Max Schmeling at Endicott. Poreda was the only sparring partner the Black Uhlan was not able to cuff around. Since then Poreda has been schooled by Joe Jeanette, the veteran colored heavyweight, and steadily has been coming to the front. He is managed by Frank Flourney, Tex Rickard's old partner.

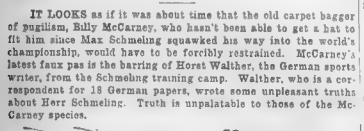
"I've been showing Poreda how to manipulate his doggies," says Jeanette. "He now knows a fighter has to do something with his feet besides pick 'em up and lay 'em down. A fighter is no faster than his feet."



STEVE HAMAS is the former Penn State all-around athlete who invaded the professional prize ring and knocked out 14 of his first 15 opponents. One of his latest k. o. victims was Al Morro, the protege of Jim Jeffries, now handled by Johnny Buckley. Hamas is handled by the veteran Charlie Harvey, manager of Tom Heeney, Jem Driscoll, Owen Moran and a flock of famous fighters. Harvey thinks Hamas is the rarest fistic product that has come up in years.

YUSTIN SIRUTIS is the big, blonde, 216-pound N. Y. U. student who won the heavyweight honors in the amateur Golden Gloves tournament. He is just as rare a fistic prospect as was the late Al Lasman, the Violet gridiron star, whose injury and subsequent death by drowning was one of sport's greatest tragedies. Sirutis made his professional debut in Madison Square Garden last Monday night and wafted one Gus Rodenberg into the arms of Morpheus in the second round.

IT LOOKS as if it was about time that the old carpet bagger of pugilism, Billy McCarney, who hasn't been able to get a hat to fit him since Max Schmeling squawked his way into the world's championship, would have to be forcibly restrained. McCarney's latest faux pas is the barring of Horst Walther, the German sports writer, from the Schmeling training camp. Walther, who is a correspondent for 18 German papers, wrote some unpleasant truths about Herr Schmeling. Truth is unpalatable to those of the McCarney species.



Horst Walther blows a wicked saxophone. Hypo Igoe can make a ukelele jump through and roll over. Your humble correspondent is a virtuoso on the harmonica. The three of us, accompanied by every dog in the country—their howls could be heard for miles around - once gave Schmeling a midnight serenade at Endicott. Apparently Schmeling and his Man Friday, McCarney, never have forgiven Walther for that.

Knowing Horst Walther as we do, we'll bet you dollars to doughnuts that he not only will get into the Schmeling camp but will be found perched in a front row seat. Those Teuts are nothing if not tenacious. Perhaps Horst will disguise himself as a barrel of Wuerzburger and roll his way in.

"Verbotten!" gargles Schmeling. "Keep out!" McCarney roars. "Chase Walther from the windows and padlock all the doors!" But Horst will see Max training—for him don't shed a tear—
He'll roll into Camp Schmeling disguised as lager beer!

WHEN THE DETROIT Tiger climbs into Fenway Park for the coming series, it will look strange to see Detroit without a great outfield. Johnson, Stone, Doljack and Funk comprise a good outfield, but not a great one. Those Detroit outfields of other days—Cobb, Crawford and Veach, and then Fothergill, Mannsh and Heilman—shone almost as brilliantly as our Ed Sox's famous hinterland patrol of Lewis, Hooper and Speaker.

Scouts tell us that Frank Doljack is one of the rarest of baseball prospects. The 20-year-old Cleveland boy, who the Tigers obtained from Wheeling, isn't burning up the baseball woods like that other Cleveland phenom, Joe Vosmick, but he is showing all the earmarks of future greatness.

ENGLISH AND AMERICAN THOROUGHBREDS IN LIMELIGHT

PROUD OWNER IS DEWAR

J. A. Dewar was a happy man, as the above photo shows, as he led Cameronian and Jockey Fox to the scales after his horse had won the English Derby. Cameronian also made Joe Kennedy, Boston negro, about as happy as Owner Dewar. Kennedy held the winning ticket in the Irish Sweepstakes and won $154,000 on the result.

TAKING THE FIRST TURN AT BELMONT ON HIGH

Grove Pulled Vosmik Out of Batting Slump

New York, June 10 (AP)—Joe Vosmik, just about the classiest rookie of the 1931 season, has Lefty Grove to thank for pulling him out of a batting slump a few weeks ago that was threatening to ruin his first season in the majors.

Joe came up to Cleveland this spring from a background of two years in slow minor league company and a boyhood spent on the Cleveland sandlots. For weeks the American League's crack pitchers couldn't get him out. He hit everything and he hit it for distance. He was the spring sensation, another Ty Cobb, a .400 hitter plus.

"Then one day" says Joe, a blonde, curly-headed kid of 21 with a nice smile that brings out two deep dimples in his cheeks, "I marched up there and I couldn't hit a fast one if they laid it right on my bat. I was in a terrible slump.

Groves' Fast Ones Just to Rookie's Liking

"The tough thing about a slump," explained the big-fisted 183-pound youngster, "is that you haven't any idea what's wrong. You feel all right, but you can't meet the ball. Every time you go to the plate you fuss to see if your feet are spread right and your elbows are out from your body. You get to fighting the bat and ball. You get worse. When you're hitting you don't think about a thing. You go right out there and slug.

"I sat on the bench awhile and then Lefty Grove came to town with the Athletics. The first two times I batted against him he blew the belly out of me. I never saw anything like it. The only thing I could do was shorten my swing and punch at the ball. I barely pushed the bat into one of his fireballs and it bounced off the right field wall for a double. The next time I just met it again, but he hit. The slump was over. I've been hitting ever since."

Vosmik, one of the pleasantest youngsters in baseball, thinks Grove taught him the most important baseball lesson he ever learned. He's meeting the ball every day now and he's batting .350. He expects to wind up the season little under that mark.

And as for the all-round difference of the pitching between here and Terre Haute, where he banged out a .397 average last season, he has this to say:

"You swing against a good pitcher every day in the majors. They're faster, smarter and their control is way better. You better not look at the big one when the count is three and two. But they've all got to pitch strikes here and in Terre Haute. That's all you can ask anywhere."

Postponement Relief to Detroit Tigers

By JOE CASHMAN

The rain which has been falling steadily since Sunday greeted the Detroit Tigers upon their first visit to town today and caused a postponement of the opening of their series with the Red Sox until tomorrow.

The halt was anything but pleasing to the Sox, who have ambitions to climb into fifth places before the week is over, but it was hailed with joy by the visitors.

For the Bengals, long the most popular and colorful of all visiting attractions in this city, have fallen upon evil days. They have dropped 12 out of their last 13 games and have slumped from fifth place to the cellar in the past fortnight. They can't lose when they don't play, so every postponement is a welcome relief to them.

Injuries have been responsible for the Tigers' dismal showing. Charlie Gehringer, game's greatest second baseman and a .340 hitter, has been on the hospital list since the early days of the race and Dale Alexander, slugging first baseman, has been keeping him company for several weeks.

These men must return to the lineup in a hurry if the club is ever going to get very far from the cellar, for the rest of the Tigers are a very mediocre lot.

Reserve material is so scarce that Manager Stanley "Bucky" Harris, who retired as an active player two years ago, has started playing second again and he is compelled to use Marvin Owens, a rookie shortstop, at first.

Team Lacks Real Diamond Stars

And none of the regular players, with the exception of Marty McManus, veteran third baseman, is the envy of any rival pilot.

Mark Koenig, once a Yankee, and Bill Rogell, alternate at shortstop, Funk and Johnson, veterans, and Doljack, Stone and Walker, youngsters, take turns in the outfield, and Hayworth and Grabowski divide the catching duties.

The Tigers have four first-class experienced pitchers in George Uhle, Earl Whitehill, Waite Hoyt and Victor Sorrell, and such promising youngsters as Tom Bridges, Art Herring and Charlie Sullivan, but, like all pitchers, this crew needs help to win and doesn't often get it.

There was a time, and a long time it was, when the Tigers, whether high or low in the standing, were the most powerful offensive club in baseball. Cobb, Crawford, Veach, Heilmann, Manush and Fothergill made Detroit a synonym for slugging for almost 20 years.

The present Detroit lineup goes to the other extreme, being the weakest hitting club in the league.

If our Red Sox are ever going to do anything, they ought to do it while the Bengals are present.

Tomorrow's game will see another shift in the Red Sox lineup. Manager Collins has already fired Ebbie Reeves, Jack Rothrock and, Alfie Marquardt at second base without getting the results he is after, so he has decided to give Rabbit Warstler a chance in the berth.

Warstler, who was purchased from Indianapolis late last season and finished the campaign as the regular shortstop of the Sox, has looked very good in workouts around the park.

The rain which halted yesterday's game enabled Collins to confer with Bob Quinn, and as a result Outfielder Gene Rye and Pitcher Jim Brillheart are no longer members of the Sox. Both were released outright, the owner to Galveston and the latter to Minneapolis.

Bucky Harris Fills in at Second Base

Philadelphia June 10 (AP)—Injuries to his infielders has forced Bucky Harris, manager of the Detroit Tigers, to return to active service as a second baseman, and he actually enjoy the experience.

"I get a lot of fun out of it," said Bucky, before boarding a train for Boston, "but I will say for myself that I certainly do pick the tough spots. Back in 1929 Gehringer was hurt and I took myself off the retired list and played second base for two days. Who do you think the pitchers were I had to face? Lefty Grove and Earnshaw.

"When I discovered that if the Tigers suffered any more injuries I might have to play, I started training. That was three weeks ago, and I got into fair shape. How do I feel? Well, the first day I thought four trucks and a couple of express trains had rammed into my back. It's not as bad tonight. I feel a lot easier."

During Bucky's two days' tenure there has been nothing in his playing to indicate that he had virtually been out of action for three years. He fielded faultlessly in two games, made a double off Earnshaw yesterday and would have had a single but for a beautiful stop in back of second base by Eric McNair.

COMPLAINT IS NATIONWIDE ON SPHERE

By BILL GRIMES

In Columbus, O., a large and nationally known golf ball manufacturing concern is marketing a ball which is the opinion of Jack Shea, the veteran professional at the Kenwood Country Club, would solve the problem which is now confronting most of the golfers and must in the near future be acted upon by the U. S. G. A.

This ball is the same size as the one recognized by the U. S. G. A. but it is the same weight as the gaits discarded by the powers that be at the beginning of this season. The ball of the present ball has met with the approval of the golfers but the majority of them are complaining concerning its lightness.

The old ball weighed 1.62 but the new one only goes 1.58. Theoretical tests have failed to disclose any noticeable difference in the actions of the new ball over those of the 1.62 but unfortunately these theories have not been borne out in actual play and there is a vast difference under certain conditions.

"The larger ball has benefited all golfers," said Shea, "for the larger the target the easier it is to hit but only the best can control the present standard ball due to its lack of weight."

"In my opinion the 1.58-1.62 ball which Burke is trying out in and around Columbus, O. is the ideal combination. With the extra weight the larger ball would not only be easier to control but it would not be subjected to the whims of cross winds and would be the means of more distance or shots played into a head wind but I believe that a following wind of any real velocity would add yards to the flight of this ball."

Pros Have Mastered New Golf Ball

"The outstanding professionals have mastered the new ball," continued Shea, but only after weeks of arduous practice. They have been obliged, I might say, to revolutionize their game, for while playing shots into a head or cross wind they no longer take to the air as of old when, because of the weight of the old ball they could play high pitch shots without fear of a fluffed shot or drifting off line according to wind conditions.

"Most of the protests which have come from the low handicap golfers are in my opinion alibis, for these players have no excuse for not keeping pace with the professionals who have, generally speaking, set an possible mastered the new ball."

Pros Will Squeal on the Northern Courses, Says Evans

Chicago, June 10 (AP)—Charles "Chick" Evans of Chicago low-score record holder for the national open championship, believes there will be a thunderous cry of protest over the new golf ball when the "big shots" try the Northern courses.

"Out in the South and up and down South the boys generally agreed the new ball was all right," Evans said, but wait until they get up North here and hottle the stiff cross and the stiff winds, They'll squeal plenty. There'll not be within several strokes of their game with the new ball."

Donahue Is Given Release by Giants

New York, June 10 (INS)—Pete Donahue, right-handed pitcher, today was given his unconditional release by the New York Giants. He is now a free agent. Donahue, sent to Minneapolis a few days ago by the Giants, refused to report to that club, claiming he lacked only 10 more days of having served 10 years in major league ras ball, which would prevent the Giants from sending him to a minor league

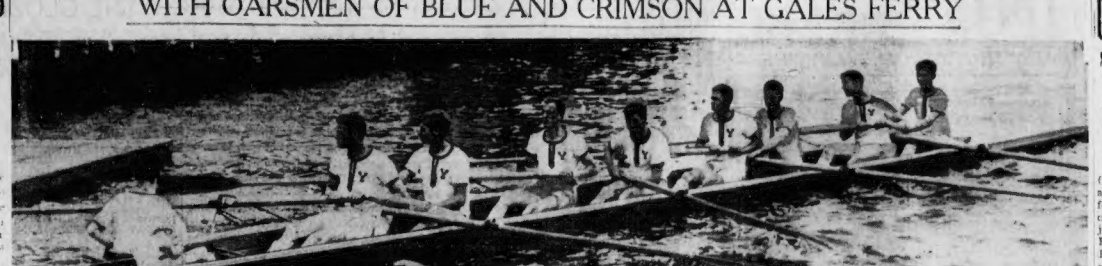
BROUILLARD SLUGS OUT WIN OVER PERRONE

WITH OARSMEN OF BLUE AND CRIMSON AT GALES FERRY



N. E. CHAMP CONQUERS IN 8TH ROUND

By JACK CONWAY

Lou Brouillard, New England welterweight champion, proved that Paul Perrone of Cleveland is just another fighter in their skirmish at the Boston Garden Brouillard belted Perrone out of the picture in eight rounds.

Jack Conway

"What is the matter with you, are you tired?"

Rather unkind to a fairly rugged youth who was hit with about everything but the well-known bucket.

The gallery god who did a little shouting at the end of the third round was even more severe. From his lofty perch, and incidentally well removed from where the warriors or their seconds could take a punch at him, the gallery god yelled:

"You knocked out an old man in Mello, Brouillard. Now you've got a bum in Perrone. A couple of more such bouts and you'll have a reputation."

How do they get that way?

Bob Quinn Red Sox owner, once told me it was the privilege of a cash customer to air his opinions at an athletic event. The only time Bob got peeved was when a person who came into his baseball orchard on an Annie Oakley started to tell his manager how to run the ball club.

Perrone is no near-champion. But he's a rough, tough fellow far from the setup variety.

The Cleveland warrior didn't win decisions over Tommy Freeman and Gorilla Jones as it was so cleverly set forth in some of the press agent copy concerning the bout. Readers of this column were given the correct facts which were to the effect Perrone got a draw with Freeman and lost a decision to Jones after a hard battle.

For rounds it was a fairly good fight. Brouillard kept out front, but his margin wasn't anything to cheer about.

Brouillard did his best work at close quarters where he ripped hard left and right hand wallops to the body.

Beginning with the fourth round, Brouillard started a parade. He kept Perrone going back under his barrage of blows. Paul tried to keep in clinches, but Lou wouldn't let him. The New England champion tossed his rival off, and belted him with lefts and rights to the head.

The sixth and seventh rounds were all Brouillard. In the eighth frame, Brouillard went out to end it. He drove Perrone into a corner and opened fire with both hands. Maybe Lou hit Perrone 80 times, or maybe only 78 times, but he sure did give Paul a beating. Perrone went down under the fury of the attack and was counted out.

It must have cheered Perrone up a lot when his second asked:

"What is the matter with you, are you tired?"

5077 Fans Pay $6887 to See the Show

Despite the deluge of rain, some 5077 fans paid $6887 to see the scrap. This indicates old man boxing is able to sit up once more.

Vernon Cormier of Worcester was given the duke over Stanley Winneryck of Lawrence in the eight-round semifinal. I thought Winneryck won. He carried the battle to Cormier most of the way, and landed with the cleaner punches to the body. That's fans apparently held similar views judging from their actions following the tussle.

Tony Aquaro of Lynn won from Val Nadeau of Nashua, N. H. in five rounds. I considered this the best bout of the show. Maybe the boys will divide the $300 purse the Garden hands out at each show for the best fight.

Victor Lotti of Marlboro won from Patsy Pacino of East Boston in five rounds in a tussle filled with action.

Tommy Rawson, Jr., of East Boston entered Leo Ledoux in five bouts in a bout that went on after the main event. This bout is playfully referred to as the "chaser" because it is usually so bad that the fans start walking out before it is over. Rawson and Ledoux kept the fans in their seats until the final blow has been delivered. Give the kids a hand!

SPORT TRUTHS

By W. S. Farnsworth

Primo Carnera Terribly Handled

New York, June 10—If Primo Carnera's squad of managers had devoted as much time in teaching the big Italian how to fight as they have in finding tankers for him, he would be the greatest heavyweight of all time.

This writer watched the Spaghetti Bender as he trained at his Long Island camp. He marveled at the speed he displayed, both on his feet and with his hands. He also marveled that Primo, more powerful than a Samson, has no knowledge of how to use his strength. He flashes around like a bantamweight—also he hits like a bantamweight.

After he had outpointed such a master gymnasium boxer as Tom Kirby, the Boston heavyweight, Leon See, his French manager, exclaimed:

"Ah, you see that speed? It see w-o-n-d-e-r-f-u-l, yes?"

"Yes, Leon, the speed is wonderful," we answered, "but you have sacrificed power for speed."

Later Carnera punched the big bag. He threw lefts and rights into it as though it was a nice fat lady that he didn't want to hurt.

"Sock it, Carnera!" we yelled at him.

He stopped dead cold, looked at us in amazement.

"But they tell me to work for speed, to forget the hard punching," he said.

"But just try a couple of good, healthy socks," we urged.

In another second he was belting that bag with everything he had—and what a belting! I never saw a man hit with such force. Old-timers, such as Jimmy Johnston, today a promoter but a very good fighter himself some years back, and others could not believe their own eyes.

I wish two of Carnera's managers, Billy Duffy and Owney Madden, who really know something about fighting, could have seen their man do that socking. Bill and Owney seem to leave all of Carnera's training up to See, the French member of the managerial squadron.

See may be a great developer and manager of boxers on the other side of the Atlantic ocean, but he sure is a big flop over here, if the way he is handling Carnera is any criterion.

Carnera has a perfect, straight stand-up poise. Towering over every other heavyweight, he should be taught to turn his punches loose with full power. Especially should he be taught a right-hand uppercut—one like Jess Willard developed, which was one of the most vicious blows of all heavies.

Primo is ten times as fast as Big Jess, and taught to punch like the former champion, he'd bowl over every heavyweight in the world one after another.

But as long as See is in full charge Duffy and Madden will have to keep on scouting for softies and tankers to keep Carnera up in the fistic race.

"Sport Truths" will be a regular feature on these pages. Praise will be given where praise is deserved. Criticism—severe criticism —will be forthcoming when it is called for. No friend will get the best of it in this column, no enemy the worst of it.

Jack Conway Again Selects a Winner

Jack Conway added one more to his list of winning selections when Lou Brouillard stopped Paul Perrone in eight rounds at the Boston Garden.

"Brouillard proved he can punch and that he is a fine infighter," said Jack. "I'd like to see him in there with Johnny Indrisano. Who do you think would win that one?"

Conway's 1931 record follows:

BOWSER, LUTZE WIN LAW SUIT

Judge Greenhalge of the Superior Court, in sustaining the contention of Harold W. Sullivan in a demurrer, rules that Stanislaus Zyganiewits, alias Zbyszko, wrestler, cannot maintain his suit for an accounting against Nick Lutze, wrestler; Paul Bowser, promoter, and John Doe, because the alleged contract Zbyszko sued on expired on Jan. 1, 1931.

Zbyszko claimed he contracted with Lutz, to run for five years, to get engagements for him and that John Doe and Bowser, in violation of his alleged contract, matched Lutze with an opponent at Boston Arena on Feb. 19, last.

Zbyszko wanted an accounting of the gate receipts of that match and to prevent Bowser and Doe from paying out money so collected until Zbyszko established his rights under the alleged contract. By the court's ruling, Zbyszko cannot further maintain this action.

IOLLAN TO RACE IN BROOKLINE MEETING

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Interest is growing each day in the Eastern Horse Club race meet at The Country Club, which starts one week from today. The second meet will be held on Saturday, June 20, while a third meeting will be at Framingham on Monday, June 22, at Raceland, the estate of John R. Macomber.

Miss Dorothy Neyhart of Framingham, double winner last season at the spring meeting of the Eastern Horse Club races with her Iollan, speedy son of The Midshipmite, will again challenge the field of starters. This time Iollan will have a greater task, as a better entry list is on hand.

Miss Neyhart will send Iollan into the Chamblet Memorial Steeplechase on the opening day, June 17, while on Saturday, June 20, the Neyhart entry will get off with the rest of the field in the Grand Annual.

With Willie Hunt astride last year, Iollan swept home to victory in both events.

In the Chamblet Memorial Steeplechase, 28 nominations have been made, while the Grand Annual has drawn 24 nominations. The Chamblet, a two-mile test for four-year-olds and up for a purse of $2000, has some of the leading chasers of the country entered.

BOOMER WINS FRENCH TITLE

Deauville, France, June 10 (INS) Audrey Boomer, English golfer, today won the French open championship with a score of 291 for the 72-hole championship play. Thomas Genta, brilliant Argentine who broke the course record with his 67 in the first 18 holes of play today to take the lead, placed second in the final ratings with a score of 293.

Genta cracked wide open on the final round of the play, taking an 83 for the last 18 holes.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

All good golfers are thoroughly conversant with two essentials of the niblick explosion shot. They hit down on the ball. They swing hard enough, making the swing

DON'T STOP BLADE AT BALL
HIT DOWN TO THE BALL FOR EXPLOSION SHOT FINISH
MAKE THE FINISH AS LONG AS THE SWING
HIT ONE INCH BEHIND BALL

finish. This means they make the club go through the sand. The explosion shot is impossible of faithful execution if you baby it or if you swing the club only to the ball, then stop your action. That's what most of you do, only to see the ball bump against the bunker and then dribble down into the trap again. To make the explosion shot, which is always in the best method for hoisting the ball from the sand if there is any rise in front of you, take a good firm grip, give the ball complete attention, so you see it, then swing to a point about one-half-inch to an inch directly back of the ball. Go into the sand right there, then keep your head down until the blade goes through. The ball will come out every time.

At top is the Yale Varsity leaving the float on a practice spin for the big race with Harvard. From stroke to bow, left to right, the men are Goodall, Anthony, Manuel, Knott, Guernsey, Childs, Esselstyn, Foster. The two serious faced genis standing talking things over are the Harvard coach Charlie Whitside and John Hallowell, captain of the Crimson varsity.

Diamond Dust

By JOE CASHMAN

The Braves open a four-game series with the champion and league-leading Cardinals in St. Louis today after dropping three games out of four to the last-place Cincinnati Reds.

The 7 to 2 defeat the Warriors suffered in the final tilt with the Howeymen dropped them under the .500 mark for the first time this season. They now have a record of 22 victories and 23 defeats.

With seven games to play with the Cards and Chicago Cubs before returning to Wigwam, it will be a miracle if the Braves come home with more wins than losses to their credit, but they have played their best ball against the strong clubs all season and may upset the dope.

Since rain washed out all four games of the series between the Tribemen and champions scheduled to be played here last month, the rivals will be meeting for the first time this p. m.

The Red Sox climbed out of the cellar by remaining idle yesterday, passing the Detroit Tigers who were whipped by the world's champion Athletics for the fourth time in a row.

The passing of Jim Brillheart from the Fenway fold leaves the club without a single southpaw pitcher. Bob Quinn has picked up many fine right-handed flingers but not one winning portsider during his eight years as president of the local American League entry.

Neither Brillheart nor Gene Rye, who also has been shipped out by the Sox, enjoyed a very long stay here, but each had a chance to make good and failed. We believe that Manager Collins showed very good judgment in letting them out.

It doesn't seem possible for a club to win seven out of eight games and not gain an inch of ground on the leaders in a baseball race, yet that is what the Senators have done in the past week. They were six games back of the pace-setting Athletics when they started their streak and are just as far behind today, as the champions also won seven out of eight.

Fred Hoey Day is rapidly approaching. It will be observed at Braves Field a week from Saturday during the game between the Braves and Cards. The committee in charge, headed by Dist.-Atty. William Foley and Johnny Igoe, promises the affair will be the greatest of its kind ever staged in this city. .

What the Stars Did

By the Associated Press

George Earnshaw, Athletics—Held Detroit to six hits and hit homer and three singles.

Bill Terry, Giants—Drove out two triples, a double and a single against Cubs.

Benny Frey—Held Braves to five hits for 7-4 victory.

Jon Cooney, Cardinals—Allowed only one run in last six innings as relief pitcher to insure triumph over Robins.

Chuck Klein, Phillies—Hit 24th homer of season with two on base to gain lead over Pirates.

CALIFORNIA '31 CREW THE EQUAL OF '28

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 10 (AP)—In the matter of form, at least, California's contender for the intercollegiate rowing championship here June 19 is just as good as the Golden Bears of 1928 and 1929, says Ky Ebright, coach of the Far Westerners.

"In blade work and rowing form," says Ebright "this year's eight is just as good as those other two. Of course, I don't know yet if it is as fast."

That's high praise, for the 1928 crew set the course record for Poughkeepsie and won the Olympic championship at Amsterdam.

Rough weather kept all but the California, Columbia and Navy crews idle yesterday. One change was announced in Rusty Callow's Penn eight, Bried replacing Melbinch at bow. Massachusetts Tech arrived during the day, bringing the total number of crews to seven with Cornell and Washington yet to arrive.

Hicks and Hurd Tie for Eastern Title

Engineers Country Club, Roslyn, N. Y., June 10 (AP)—Miss Helen Hicks, metropolitan champion, and Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, former national champion from Philadelphia, finished in a tie for the eastern women's title today with 81 hole scores of 263 each.

Miss McCullough of Huntingdon was third with 267.

Miss Edith Quier, of Reading Pa., whose steady play all but clinked her the title with but two holes to go cracked badly. Her final round of 79 put her in fourth place with a total of 268.

MISS ORCUTT BEATEN

ENGLISH GIRL PUTS OUT U. S. STAR

Portmarnock, Ireland, June 10 (AP)—Maureen Orcutt, of Englewood, N. J., only American challenger for the British ladies golf championship, was eliminated in her third round 18 hole match today by Miss Elsie Corlett, 4 and 3.

Miss Diana Fishwick, defending champion, also failed to survive the third round, bowing to Miss D. Pimm on the 19th green. Miss Enid Wilson, who won the qualifying medal, easily defeated Miss Costa six and five.

Jockey Succumbs to Race Track Injuries

Chicago, June 10 (AP)—John Fisher, a 16-year-old jockey employed by the C. Darnell Stable, was injured fatally today when his mount tossed him against a fence at the Washington Park race track.

Fisher was warming up Little Tony, a horse owned by Griffith Watkins, when the horse shied and threw him. He died in a hospital a few hours later from a fractured skull and internal injuries.

Londos and Steele in Milk Fund Go

New York, June 10—Official sanction was given late yesterday by the New York Athletic Commission to the heavyweight wrestling championship match between Jim Londos and Ray Steele for the benefit of the Milk Fund.

The match which will be held June 29, probably in the Yankee Stadium, will be promoted by the Campania A. C.

Rain Halts Revere Wrestling Show

Owing to wet weather, the Massachusetts Wrestling Association were forced to postpone their wrestling show which was scheduled for tonight at the Revere cycle track.

The show will take place on next Tuesday evening, June 16, with Tiger Jack Young meeting Jumbo Rumrill.

Carnera Bout Is Halted by Rain

New York, June 10 (AP)—Rain today caused the postponement of the 10-round heavyweight match between Primo Carnera of Italy and Pat Redmond of Ireland. Promoter James J. Johnston announced the bout would be held next Monday night at Ebbets Field.

New Jersey Solons Put Ban on Fouls

Trenton, N. J., June 10 (AP)—John McCutcheon, state athletic commissioner, today ruled that "hereafter no fouls will be tolerated in New Jersey and fighters will be obliged to provide themselves with a new type of protector which prevents a low blow from being injurious."

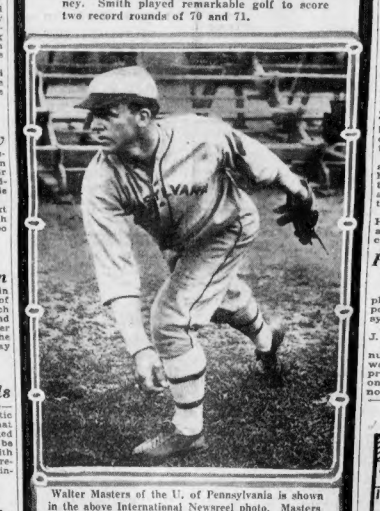
Klein's 14th Homer Helps Phils Win

Pittsburgh, June 10—The Phillies defeated the Pirates, 7 to 3. Chuck Klein's 14th homer of the season featuring the skirmish. Klein's four-base blow gave the Phils a lead which they never relinquished.

SPORTS REEL

DAILY SHOTS FROM EVERYWHERE

MacDonald Smith, the veteran American golfer, shooting out of a trap near the second green at Carnoustie, in the British open tourney. Smith played remarkable golf to score two record rounds of 70 and 71.



Walter Masters of the U. of Pennsylvania is shown in the above International Newsreel photo. Masters this year concludes his college sports career. He was a football and baseball star. He won 24 of the 26 games he pitched from Penn.

MALCEWICZ IS ALL READY FOR CANTONWINE

By RINGSIDE

Joe Malcewicz, Utica Panther, breezed through a workout at Jim Toland's gym and then announced he is ready for his finish bout, best two falls out of three, with Howard Cantonwine, Iowa Thunderbolt, which will be staged by Paul Bowser at the Arena tomorrow night.

"I only required a few days of training to make me fit for my meeting with Cantonwine as I have been wrestling steadily on the Pacific Coast," said Malcewicz. "I have taken part in 23 matches on the Coast since I last showed in Boston, and I won all of them.

"I returned East so as to open a drive against Henri Deglane who won the title by licking Strangler Lewis in Montreal. I get a tough break when Deglane won from Lewis as I was matched to wrestle the Strangler for Lou Daro in Los Angeles. I have always felt I could pin Lewis since we engaged in our four hour draw at Braves Field a few years ago.

"There's no sense in worrying about Lewis now, if I get by Cantonwine, which I feel quite sure I shall be able to do, I will then go shooting for a shot at Deglane."

Cantonwine has been in Boston since early in the week. He is all set for the tussle. He feels he will upset Malcewicz in which event he will be ready to sign for a meeting with Deglane, George or Sonnenberg.

Londos and Roebuck in Garden Tussle

Jim Londos, Greek heavyweight, who has been winning steadily, will make another bid for high honors on the mat when he collides with Tiny Roebuck, Indian heavyweight, in a finish bout at the Boston Garden on next Monday night under the direction of Ray Fabiani.

Londos has been one of the most active wrestlers in the world. He has gone into action three to four times a week during the present season, and he has always come through with a victory.

Penn Coach Hopes for 600 Gridmen

Six hundred football players will play as a result of the new athletic policy of the University of Pennsylvania.

This is the prediction of Harvey J. Harman, football coach at Penn.

Harman said his estimate of the number of teams and players that would answer the call to football practice in September was based on a survey taken after Penn announced its change in athletic plan.

RADIO MUSIC CONTEST

Prizes Offered for American Genius

National Competition Among Melody Men Takes Shape

Who was it that said "Action speaks louder than words." No need to know. Sufficient to observe the adage is perhaps as well known as any philosophical "wise crack" ever uttered. Furthermore, it doesn't require much work on the part of spies to reveal that in the realm of radio music, action has been considerably deferred for quite a spell. In fact, there never was much, though words have been plentiful.

So up steps M. H. Aylesworth, radio's rahjah, to do something about it. Mr. Aylesworth emphasizes action rather than words, using few of the latter himself, which probably explains why he is president of NBC. Here is his plan:

To conduct a prize musical series, during which compositions of Americans only will be entered. Substantial cash awards make the proposition all the more interesting and impelling. Decision to consider only Americans (or foreigners who have taken out citizenship papers) lends zest to the idea. A very sensible and patriotic angle to employ. This announcement of the plan is somewhat previous perhaps, since the actual contest is scheduled to get under way during October of this year. That is the information now available. Watch for further details.

Please, please, young writers, refrain from ditties about the Moon when contributing to the competition. Every state in the union claims that moonlight is brighter within its' boundaries—which must afford that heavenly old man of the night a hearty chuckle.

Singin' on the Chain . . . .

Who is more popular than Morton Downey? Frank Crumit, maybe . . . How about Kate Smith? . . . All right, then, Jessica Dragonette . . . no? Perhaps it's Rudy Vallee, Tom Kennedy, Dennis King, Lee Morse or Annette Hanshaw. If none of those, then forget the chain favorites . . . There are a few right here in Boston hard to beat, namely Ranny Weeks, John Herrick, Lou Baker, and last but not least, the silver-threaded Adrian O'Brien.

WNAC and WAAB program people report an interesting feature taking the air tomorrow and Friday. Originating at Shore Gardens, Nantasket, a half hour, from 11:30 to 12 midnight, brings the voice of "What Price Georgie" Price, along with that of Grace Hayes, Louise Groody and others. Dance music augments things as played by the Cocoanut Grove Orchestra. WAAB will pick it up Friday night from 9:30 to 10.

Sponsors Save, Listeners Rave . . . .

Ear cuppers protest against running to cover by major programs because of summer. These discontinuances perturb listeners no little. Just when a feature begins to win its way into the heart of fans, along comes a summer suspension speech, despite the fact that vacation periods are seldom of longer than two weeks' duration. Many people go away as much during the winter, nowadays, so to me comes the question: Is it economy or not?

An educational and novel undertaking comes through the NBC network tomorrow afternoon (4:30 to 5), when a human heart-beat will be heard. Blood pulsing through the living body, increased by an amplifying stethoscope, is the "Clinic of the Air" feature. Local stations do not list it, so dial WJZ direct. Philadelphia will feed the New York outlet.

If Scotchmen are frugal (as it is said) they also know how to make the money, no joking. Harry Lauder secures as high as $15 per second for his radio efforts. Hoot, mon! N. F. T.

FIVE AND TEN

of isolation around him? Even Jennifer, when she spoke to her father, rarely looked him in the eyes, but between as if staring off his glance. That was not right. Her period of convalescence would be a good time to soften things up somehow between these two. After all, he was entitled to his daughter.

Since the death of Avery, it had always seemed to Jenny, fantastically that the furrow between Rarick's eyes was the shape of a cross.

It was time to see that he got some kindness in return. He was being kind now. Trying to please.

It was terrible it was vacant, it was loathsome to sit there beside this man—this husband who was being kind to her—parched, as with a thirst, for the kind of kindness Mr. Ranton, plump, the high seas with Emanie Bursilap, had to bestow. God, I need to be forgiven . . .

"Do Your Best"

The hospital—one accustomed to the vagaries of the celebrated and important—grinned, the impersonal patter of the most highly personal enviroment in the world pausing around from nurse to interne to doctor.

"The Five-and-Ten Mrs. Rarick! New-rich, but, oh, how rich!"

"Do your best, girls," admonished the head nurse; "she may come through and endow our joint-disease wing."

"She can have her millions," said a girl in the training department, "but, oh, how I could do with a ninety-five-dollar civet coat in Macy's window. If only she would take ninety-five dollars' worth of fancy to me."

It struck Rarick, as he entered, that not a friend had felt close enough to intrude upon this arrival.

He wondered, without bitterness, how she had managed with the Spanish dancing-boy about whom she was always being so elaborately casual. Poor Jenny! There were the records of the social struggle of the years pinned along that Aubusson screen.

A terror of delirium began to settle on Jenny.

"Jennifer, see to it that they don't come near me with one of those hideous Mother Hubbard hospital nightgowns. If the pain in my side doesn't kill me, the touch of cotton , annel will."

"I'll dike you out in silk, miladarling, and a fol-de-rol of lace."

"Don't let them be efficient and hygienic and wheezy about my bed, either, Jennifer. No matter what kind of damaged goods they bring back to it, I want to be tucked back into this—make them stack it up for me while I am attending my own op. darling. It will occupy your mind."

"Then I hope to heaven you have to lie on it."

"Isn't she beautiful, Father, lying propped up there in her well-known magnificence?"

She Looked Well

"You look very well, Jenny." She slitted her olive-colored eyes and turned her head away. One was supposed to feel chastened in hours such as this. She did, of course.

"I want you to go now, Rarick. You, too, Jennifer. Promise me that you will both remain out until they have me all out of the ether."

"We promise."

"Of course."

They were a constrained lot, the three of them, and finally all bent to keeping casual, there were good-nights; and the final departure went something like this:

"Good night, Jennifer."

"Night, Jenny Avery."

"Good night, Rarick."

"Sleep well, Jenny."

"Sure to. Good night . . ."

The bed that Jenny left the following morning for the operating room was built up during her absence by her daughter, the maid in the Breton cap and two nurses, into its pyramid of finery.

All morning it stood waiting in its elaborate sort of trance for the return of its occupant.

Jenny was not to come back to it.

NEW VESSEL

The excursion steamer Electronic, which recently arrived from Rockland, Me., where she will be turned over to her new owners, the Vinalhaven & Rockland Steamship Co. service between Rockland and Vinalhaven is expected to be resumed shortly. Islands in the business made by seaplanes almost caused the discontinuance of the boat service when the Gov. Bodwell burned last March. Owners finally decided, however, to buy the Electronic and operate as usual.

The Ninety Who Voted Against New England

The ninety members of the Massachusetts House of Representatives who voted against the railroad control bill could not have served the Pennsylvania Railroad better if they had been on the payroll of that system.

It is about time that these gentlemen SUPPOSED to represent the best interests of Massachusetts should know that New England is engaged in a desperate fight to maintain control over her fine railroads.

It is a fight to prevent their absorption and emasculation by alien financial interests.

It is a fight to prevent a recurrence of the same disastrous conditions of twenty years ago when the Boston & Maine and the New Haven were wrecked by Wall Street and their wreckage strewn all over New England.

For twenty years the people of New England have been engaged in repairing that woeful damage.

Now that the Boston & Maine has been rebuilt at the expense of New England, now that it is in a firm financial condition which has enabled it to withstand the business depression era stronger than the railroads of any section of the country, it tempts the avarice of alien financiers who would milk it dry again.

This legislation, against which these ninety Representatives voted, would prevent the Pennsylvania or any other foreign corporation from exercising more than a ten per cent control over the Boston & Maine or any other railroad whose franchise was granted by the people of Massachusetts.

It is the sort of legislation which Governor Ely has proposed.

It is just the sort of legislation which the Governors' Committee of the New England States, after a study lasting eighteen months, declared to be essential to conserve the best interests of New England.

To say that the Legislature is on the eve of prorogation and should fail to give its attention to "important legislation" of this character no late in the day is a sorry excuse. These men are paid to transact the public's business and they should stay with it until it is completed to the satisfaction of the public.

The statement that the next session of the Legislature can "hold a club" over the Pennsylvania's head and prevent it from acquiring further control of the New Haven and Boston & Maine is an alibi made by gentlemen whose ignorance of the history of Massachusetts is appalling.

Wall Street twenty years ago promised Massachusetts that no further acquisitions of those railroads would be made until the State had formulated a definite railroad policy. But no sooner had the Legislature adjourned than Wall Street boldly and brazenly secured control of the roads and then wantonly wrecked them.

It may be that ignorance caused these ninety men in the House to vote for the Pennsylvania Railroad in preference to New England.

In any event, they will be compelled to explain their vote to their constituents.

Bail Ring Scandals

Hultman Orders Needed Clean-Up

If Commissioner Hultman can succeed in breaking up the bail ring which is a scandal and a nuisance to the city of Boston he will have achieved a primary reform second only to the regeneration under his administration of the morale of the police department itself.

The bail scandals smell to Heaven.

It is a notorious fact that the elite among this gentry haunt the police stations like sharks of the sea.

The more avaricious and cunning among them, who have been willing to peddle their profits, have no doubt secured the favor of those police officials whose favor could be bought for the price.

As the result, there had grown up in Boston a cabal of scheming bailsmen and unscrupulous policemen which was inimical to the morale of the department, which flaunted decency and which made of honesty in our public affairs a mere byword.

All people who fall into the custody of the police shall be allowed to select their own bondsmen without influence or threat.

The bondsmen will be required to retire to their own headquarters, no longer to loiter in police stations like harpies.

The orders are simple indeed. No doubt they can be made actually effective. The public will thank Hultman for this, as they ought to be grateful in these days of rampant graft and corruption to any public official who is determined to plant the seeds of honesty in public life.

Martin T. Joyce

Martin T. Joyce has gone to a reward, which we are told, is eternal happiness and surcease from care.

He had been President of the Boston Central Labor Union. He had been for more than 20 years the secretary of the Massachusetts State branch American Federation of Labor.

Martin Joyce lived and fought through that disquieting era when the labor organization was threatened with disruption by the forces of socialism on one side and the truculent industrial magnates on the other who were determined to destroy the right of working people to bargain collectively and to unite for their common protection.

He had won for himself a happy rest.

Young "Mr. Improvement in Business" sounds like something from Pilgrim's Progress, and means well. But he is a good deal of a "boob."

On the other hand old Prohibition's allies, on the right, are capable guys. "No sooner said than shot" is their motto.

Let us hope for the best as we follow this interesting series, but let us not bet on it. A little innocent girl, pursued by Prohibition, Bandits and Bootleggers. What chance has she?

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

What-I Know About Love

I AM about to write what I know bout love. It may not be popular, but it will be a great relief to me to write it—after all the blithering bunk one reads on the subject. And perhaps, it may be a relief to you to read it. For it is possible that you have come to the same conclusion.

I think that our fantastic eulogies of romance are tommyrot. I don't believe one of them. I have never seen them work. Personally, I must confess I have never had one of these ecstatic results from love. I can easily become fond of people, and usually make them fond of me—but I'm not a steady, reliable performer. Remain friendly—yes. But I simply can't go on crooning. Twenty-four hours of romance is about all I can endure. After that I get natural again. I don't want to look at the moonlight any more. I don't want to press any more violets. I want to go off and do something else . . . something serious and difficult and mature . . . something that I can do with a cool brain and an entirely indifferent heart.

Elsie Robinson

This attitude alone would disqualify me as one of the World's Great Lovers—but there is worse to follow.

Love is supposed to make a Grand Guy out of you. It doesn't make a Grand Guy out of me. As soon as I love someone I want to boss them. Of course I pretend that it's for their good. But who am I to know what's good for anyone? The truth is, I love to run other people's lives, and love gives me a perfect alibi. Why, I have done more ornery, contemptible, unfair things in the name of love that I ever would have dreamed of doing as a regular citizen. If I treated a stranger as I frequently treat those I love, he'd have me arrested as a common nuisance.

In short, love fails me and I fail love. And yet——

In spite of all this, I believe in love, and I'm glad I've loved. And I shall keep on loving until the end of my days. I'll never succeed at it, but I will always keep hoping. And that hope is the greatest, cleanest, finest thing in life.

Love, after all, is only a dream. It never comes quite true for anyone. But it is the best dream there is. It holds all we know of tenderness and fairness and generosity. To be sure, we never achieve these fine qualities when we try to put our dreams into practice. But, at least, it's something to dream about them.

And our very failure to realize love is, perhaps, the best thing about it. For that failure keeps us always hungry . . . always wondering and regretting and wishing and reaching out.

It's like that feeling that sometimes comes to you at midnight, after a troubled day.

The great stars that do not falter, that never dim.

And suddenly you forget your weakness and your bewilderment . . . and your hands go out and up . . . up and up towards the stars . . . as though they belonged to you . . . as though you had a right to them, in spite of everything.

Just Folks

Experience

They told me over and over again
The things that I had to learn,
They struggled to save me the needless pain
Of many a sting and burn,
But I was young, and I would find out
The truth of the dangers they talked about.

And now I know what they knew, and I
Have children of my own,
And the day will come when they'll want to try
Their strength in the danger zone,
For the way seems level and straight and fair
And they can't believe there are briars there.

But should they take what I wouldn't take,
In spite of the needless tears?
Should age regret that it cannot make
A short cut through the years?
How sad were youth if it really knew
As much as the worn-out oldsters do!

In spite of the truths which the grownups know
And the thick books on the shelves,
It is well that the youngsters still must go,
Some lessons to learn themselves.
Weighed down by the wisdom of seventy-three.

New York Day by Day

Artists and Models

NEW YORK, June 10—New York artists, from the attics of Greenwich Village to the duplex studios of effete West 67th st., have like many other professional workers undergone a skimpy days during the past year. Only recently did their world begin to brighten.

It is a guild notoriously improvident and in innumerable cases among a smaller fry there was absolutely hunger. But even a heavier blow fell upon the artist models. For weeks and in some instances months, beauties with a perfect 36 were without a livelihood.

In such emergencies heretofore many found temporary havens in musical revues and cabaret floor shows. But these fugitive sanctuaries were also undergoing a slump and there were more than a hundred applications for almost every job in the agencies.

Conditions became so alarming for many models that they resorted to gentle racketeering. A pale, beautiful girl would be admitted to the studio for a job and while her name and address were taken she would suddenly sway and swoon—"a tranquil flower on a tortured stem."

Such appeals rarely went unheeded by gallant artists. In almost every instance they would escort her to a taxicab. And a few blocks away when she would step out of the cab with surprisingly agility, she would find a bill tucked surreptitiously away in her purse.

One story drifting about the studios is of a girl collecting more than $100 in this fashion. And who came upon sudden good fortune through marriage to a wealthy young man. One of her first acts was to confess deceptions and make restitution.

Manikins in high class dressmaking establishments also had their lean period. About 75 out of every hundred lost their jobs. Some became waitresses to tide them over. But many have been restored to posts on full or part time.

But youthful yearnings for a life of adventure changed. At 16 I was lured by an advertisement: "Be a Detective: Wear a badge and make secret investigations. Earn big money. Work home or travel. Lock Box 118, Dept. J., Ottumwa, Iowa." I enrolled. My hip pocket bulged with a bull's eye lantern and I carried a false black mustache. Meeting with no success in my snooping I turned to "coloring photographs in spare time." For this I was promised from $20 to $60 a week. This didn't turn out so hot either. It was Spring and I had just fallen desperately in love with Mrs. Leslie Carter. So I colored her photograph out of a newspaper, mailed it to her and received this reply from a secretary: "Mrs. Carter thanks you for your letter and the highly amusing caricature." And kadap went the paint box among my souvenirs.

Amid the metropolitan hub-bub of West 23d st. today Bernard Sobel and I came upon this sign: "The American Jersey Cattle Club." And somehow it was like finding a sign "Outfitters to Poloists" on the main street of Plattsburg, Missouri. Or discovering the monocled George Arliss pitching hay.

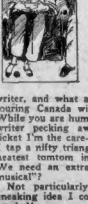
In a dully lighted movie the other evening I was conscious that a nebulous figure next to me was wearing silver toned day-time pajamas and as the lights grew brighter I saw she was stockingless and sandaled. And all the time I sat there aching in tight shoes trying to enjoy a Mickey Mouse.



Telegram: "I used to be a writer, and what a life! I'm now touring Canada with an orchestra. While you are humped over a typewriter pecking away for a meal ticket I'm the care-free jazz hellion. I tap a nifty triangle and bong the neatest tomtom in the Dominion. We need an extra boy. Are you musical?"

Not particularly but I have a sneaking idea I could sock a dirty cymbal!

Welcome, Mr. Curley!

MAYOR CURLEY AND MARY CURLEY ABOARD SHIP

He had suffered the loss of those nearest and dearest to him. But he carried on with unlimited zeal and energy the most effective and the most widespread measures to develop the city of Boston which we have seen in a generation and the most comprehensive program to abate unemployment which has been adopted by any of the great American cities.

If the Administration at Washington had shown one-tenth the daring of Mayor Curley and a fraction of his confidence in the future of this country, the business depression would have been by this time only a memory of the past.

We have had a new highway program to eliminate the insufferable congestion.

Our transportation is being enormously expanded by the $16,000,000 East Boston tunnel and is being expedited by the Governor Square extension and by numerous other facilities which Mayor Curley has inaugurated.

Thanks to his enormous energy and foresight, we are to have the greatest airport in the United States and probably in all the world. We are to have the magnificent new boulevard and marine park across the river and the expansion of the southern artery.

These improvements, which stand out as major projects, have all manifested a superb confidence in the city of Boston. They have and will provide enlarged conveniences for her people and visitors. They have provided constructive employment. They have derived the advantage of the lowered costs of materials.

We can, therefore, welcome Mayor Curley with enthusiasm for what he has already achieved.

And we can welcome him with the hope that his brief recreation has fortified him with renewed strength to tackle the many problems that still lie before us as the great metropolis of the Northeast.

Don't Crowd, Gentlemen!

King Prajadhipok of Siam has bestowed the Order of the White Elephant on a George Washington University professor.

There are a lot of bulls in the stock market who will hold that they are more entitled to the Order of the White Elephant than any college professor possibly could be.

There are many who would cheerfully nominate the G. O. P. elephant as the "Grand Bull" if the Siamese order has such a title to bestow.
